CHANGES/ADDITIONS TO THE CHIDESTER-CHICHESTER HERITAGE (1987)

(The amount of changes that we have received is an indication of the great value this book has been to the family, and consequently, a sincere tribute to the dedicated souls who wrote it, Elmer and Thelma Chidester Anderson. Prior to its publication there was probably a small minority of the family concerned enough to be sure the information we provided for it was complete, legible and accurate; but after receiving the book, many of us have been inspired to research names, dates and events and now wish to see that corrections are available for those who are interested.

Note: Additions do not go beyond the year 1978.)

FOREWORD

THE CHIDESTER FAMILY! Where did it all begin and where will it end? The CHICHESTER-CHIDESTER Family has deep roots, beginning in England and extending into early America. The purpose of this book is to establish the origin of our name and form a bond with those who have carried it through the annals of history bringing much honor to it. Through our earlier ancestors some of our characteristics were developed and a great heritage was created for each of us individually to add to. To these many ancestors this book is dedicated.

This work would not have been possible without the help of all those who have kept family records, journals and related stories that have come to light in the research of this Family History. We also gratefully acknowledge the efforts of many in research, financial support and family reunion support over the years. It would be impossible to mention all of these contributors, but I am sure that they will all join with me in special recognition of two people who have devoted a lifetime of work and effort through thousands of personal letters, thousands of hours of research and untold dollars of personal expense. From them have come the greatest part of record gathering, compiling, editing and typing. They are Elmer C. and Thelma (Chidester) Anderson of Burbank, California. To them we as a family owe a great debt of gratitude in the publication of this book.

While completion of this volume is a milestone in the family history, there is much material still to be obtained. It is expected that this work will continue as a regular activity of the Organization.

Robert D. Chidester, President
Chidester Family Organization

HERITAGE

Preface

In January, 1926, the writers began the work of compiling a history of the Chidester/Chichester families in America by visiting and conversing with aged people, taking notes from their recitals. These memories were gathered, not so much with a view to publication, as to preserve for their own children something that would tell them about the hopes, faiths, trials and tribulations--the love of families experienced by their ancestors.

It is time that the recollections of these pioneer ancestors were gathered together before the last of these shall have passed away. Little enough can be gleaned at the present time. A few years hence nothing further than has been written can be obtained except by uncertain tradition.

The material has accumulated year by year, slowly, as only time and means not devoted to raising a family could be used. Not until we retired were we able to visit some of the old homes of the Chidester ancestors. These old homes were in many sections of the United States and even as far away as the little hamlets of England. Family records were perused and time yellowed documents examined and copied; some were micro-filmed. Statements were taken from family members.

This has been a labor of great love and care. To make this work as correct and reliable as possible, no pains have been spared in examining, sifting and proof-reading every item of information; reconciling statements, holding in abeyance those portions that cannot be substantiated sufficiently. These disconnected and unproven records are held in file for use at a later date when additional source material can be found to unite them with the proper family lines.

This work has also been a labor of great love for our ancestors. Hundreds of hours have been spent in tramping cemeteries, searching old, musty libraries and court houses. It has been impossible to listen to the narratives without feeling a tender veneration, a peculiar filial regard for stories of the past.

HERITAGE

There is a host of men and women who have aided the researchers by furnishing answers to queries, looking up long forgotten documents, by assisting in searching records of churches, old cemeteries, court houses and historical societies and providing the records of their own families. It would be impossible to name them all. To all these we tender the most grateful acknowledgements for their generous efforts. Wherever possible they have been given credit in the body of the manuscript.

An especial thanks, however, must be given to Dr. Guy C. Squires, physician and surgeon of Exeter, Devon, England, for presenting us with the "History of the English CHICHESTER Family, 1066-1870.)

Gratitude is hereby expressed, also, for the support, encouragement and contributions that have been made by the CHIDESTER FAMILY ASSOCIATION OF UTAH. Without their support and encouragement, a publication would never have become a realization.

Notes and Explanation of Format

1. Multiple year dates, i.e. 1695/6, occur during the time when the change was being made from the use of the Julian calendar which used March 1st as the beginning of the year, to the Gregorian calendar which is still in use. In the latter calendar the first of the year is January 1st and there is a leap year. By the first, or Julian calendar a date in January or February would be recorded as 1695. The same date in the Gregorian, or modern, calendar would be 1696. To accommodate both calendars, then, the date is written Jan. 1695/6. Both dates have to be given because both calendars were in use at that time. It occurs during the last of the 17th century and the first of the 18th century.

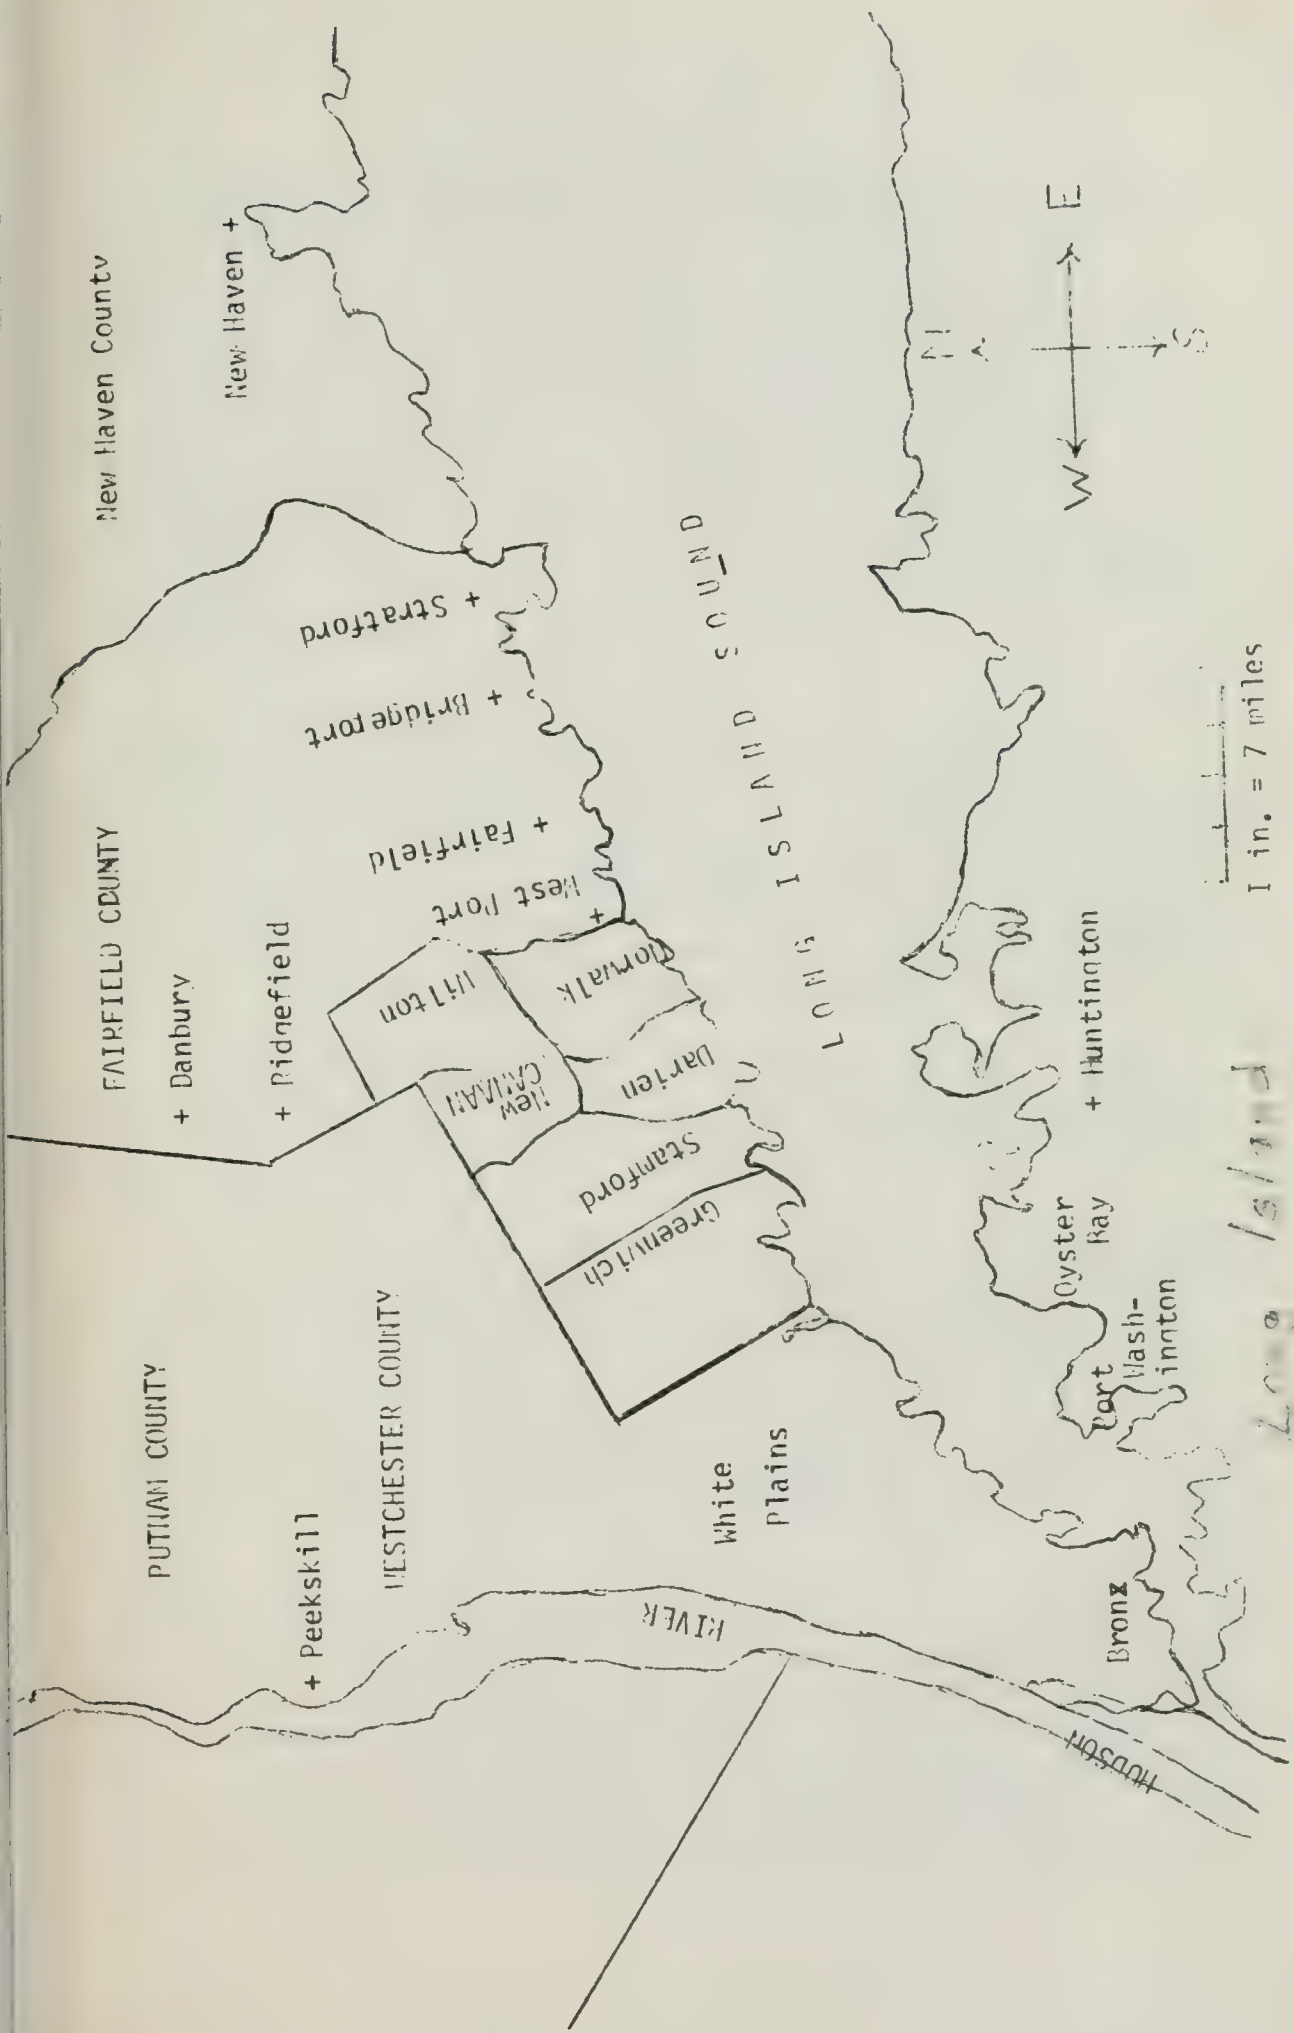

2. The book is arranged in generations, beginning with the first generation in America. The number for a person, then, is two-fold, the first number being the number of his or her generation and the second number referring to his place in that generation. For example:

James, the first of the line to come to America, would have the number 1-1, signifying that he is the first person listed in the first generation.

His eldest child, who happens also to be James, will be known by the number 2-1 because he is the second generation, but the first one listed in that generation, and so on.

Each person will be identified by his number wherever he or she appears in the record, making for rapid cross-referencing.

3. An asterisk (*) in front of a child's name and number indicates that he or she will be found in the next generation as the head of a family.

Books have been written describing the history of surnames and their development. So fascinating is this study that it has become a science. Briefly stated, it can be said that for many centuries there was no need for more than one name per person. Adam needed only one name to identify him. Even Abraham, Isaac and Jacob needed only one. But by the time that Jesus Christ was born, society had become so complex that it began to be necessary to add something to identify the particular person spoken of. So there was JOSEPH OF ARIMATHEA (a place) and Joseph OF NAZARETH. When Jesus chose his apostles there were two called who had the name of James. One, brother of John, shared with his brother the appellation SONS OF THUNDER; the other James was known as SON OF ALPHEUS.

The problem continued to multiply as time passed and by the time of William the Conqueror in the year 1066, many ways had sprung up for identifying people. As we have seen, there were place names and Joseph became Joseph ARIMATHEA. John could be John BROOK because he lived by a brook. There were also trade names. The village tailor became William TAYLOR; Benjamin who made barrels became Benjamin COOPER (meaning barrel maker.) Likewise CARPENTER, SHOEMAKER, SMITH and many other surnames developed.

Probably the largest and most popular group of surnames is known as patronymics - names derived by adding "son" to the father's given name. So James became James ALPHEUSSON, or ANDERSON, or JOHNSON, according to the father's given name.

The same thing is true in countries other than England and Scandinavia. FITZPATRICK in France and Belgium means "son of Patrick;" FITZSIMMONS would mean "son of SIMON". In the Scotch and Irish, the prefix Mc means grandson of; McDONALD, the Grandson of Donald. An O prefix means "son of"; O'BRIAN is the son of Brian. Similarly the suffix "ian" in the Slav and Armenian states indicates "son of." Each language and culture has its means of identifying people by their family relationship.

How does all this refer to or explain the unusual name of CHIDESTER? There are a number of forms of the name; in fact at least twenty-five variations of the name can all be traced back to a common origin. The spelling has been changed, sometimes by accident and sometimes by a whim. One man, Ephraim CHIDESTER, changed the spelling of his name to CHEDESTER so he wouldn't have so much trouble with the bank confusing his account with "Uncle Ephraim's" account. His descendants maintained the same form. Others thought that it would be easier for people to recognize and pronounce the name if the "d" was changed to "t"; hence the name CHITISTER or CHITTESTER.

The name CHIDESTER came first of all as a variation of the early American name CHICHESTER and took this form from the practice of using scribes for making legal documents. Many times a hand written "ch" looked more like a "d" and the next copy would assume the "d" spelling. Moreover, scribes wrote what they heard. In the same document one can find both the CHICHESTER and the CHIDESTER and CHITESTER spelling of the name for the same person, or other variations such as CHILESTER, CHISTIFER, CHECK-CHESTER, etc.

This indenture Mad ye eighteen Day of January 1695/6 Betwene Edward harnitt & Jeames CHITCHESTER wittnesseth yt ye sd. Edward harnet have for a valuable consideration bargained sold &c a cartaine parcell of land siteuate lying and beeing in the field commonly called or Known by ye name of ye west field of ye Town of Huntington Surounded with land of thomas brush, Jonathan Rogars, Jeames CHICHESTER Juer ye wood in Commons Containing four Acars be it more or less, with all Rights & priviledges. . . .

If the original name was CHICHESTER, you might ask, where did that name come from and what does it mean? The name CHICHESTER is a prominent one in present day England. The first CHICHESTER in America came from there, just when and from exactly where has not been determined, but he was English, as his name, tradition and circumstance indicates. He is found in Salem, Massachusetts in 1640. In England the name is found in the earliest written records, having been recorded in the "DOMESDAY BOOK." It was also woven into earlier tapestries.

According to an English historian, the name originated about the second century B.C. with the Roman occupation of Britain. A Roman general by the name of Cissa established a camp ground under his own name, the Roman term for camp being "caester" (pronounced chester.) As the Romans withdrew from the walled camp the area became a fiefdom for a feudal lord or land owner and was called "CISSA'S CAESTER." It was a valuable possession, holding strategic importance as well as being surrounded by fertile land. As the Anglo-Saxon kings who succeeded the Roman occupation began to unify the country the fiefdom became a valuable pawn to be awarded to men of valor.

"From DOMESDAY BOOK we learn that ENGELER held of the king two hides of land (a hide being an English land measure equalling enough land to support a family, usually about 120 acres) in the manor of CICESTR' (a place) in the county of Sussex; and he also held one carucate of land (about 100 acres) in the same manor in his own right, as likewise divers lands in Mendon, in the same county, which he formerly held of King Harold (the Anglo-Saxon king who was defeated at Hastings by William the Conqueror,) and he also held two hides of land of Adelisa, wife of Radulphus de Thellebroe, in Standune, in the county of Bedford, and also divers lands of Ernulph, in the county of Somerset, of all of which he was seised at the time of the Domesday Survey, A.D. 1080.) (See History of the CHICHESTER Family, by Sir Alex Palmer Bruce CHICHESTER. Bart., 1871.)

William the Conqueror bought Engeler's allegiance by allowing him to keep the land that he had held under the Anglo-Saxon king.

Engeler's successor to the lands in the manor of Chichester was Henry DE CICESTR' (Henry of CICESTR', a place. Pronounce the C's as Ch.) The name by now had evolved from Cissa's Caester to CICESTR' and was soon to assume the present day form of CHICHESTER, with CHIDESTER, CHITTESTER, CHEDISTER being the most common derivatives of the name.

In America the CHICHESTER name remained rather intact, in spite of the errors of scribes, until early 1700 when the brothers Samuel⁴⁻¹¹ and William⁴⁻¹² who lived in Connecticut formally accepted the name of CHIDESTER and continued with that form. By 1750 David CHIDESTER⁶⁻⁴⁷ of Danbury, Connecticut, was also changing from CHICHESTER to CHIDESTER. Land documents clearly show the process of acceptance, as will be shown. These particular families and their descendants have retained the latter form consistently.

Although there are CHICHESTER families at the present time, descendants of the same early Americans, the part of the family that elected to use the CHIDESTER form of the name is by far in the ascendancy. The descendants of the above named Samuel live mainly in Pennsylvania and New Jersey; William is the forefather of the illustrious CHIDESTERS of Ohio; and David is the fore-runner of the CHIDESTERS of Utah, Idaho and other western states.

COAT OF ARMS

During the twelfth century, between 1100 and 1200 A.D., Coats of Arms began to be awarded to Knights of the Realm to be a special identification of men of prominence--large land holders, courageous men in battle, governors. This coat was passed from father to eldest son, becoming an emblem of the family. The earliest CHICHESTER coat of arms was of a simple shield bearing ermine tails and portraying a knight's helmet in a square in the upper left hand corner of the shield. This emblem was to be emblazoned on the owner's uniform, his shield, and was also used to seal important documents.

In the year 1385, Sir John CHICHESTER, heir of the family,, married Thomasine RALEIGH and moved the family seat from Sussex to Devon where he combined the CHICHESTER inheritance with that of the Raleighs. Since that time the CHICHESTER arms have been quartered with the RALEIGH arms, with the RALEIGH taking the ascendancy, until in later generations, with other quarterings, the original has become all but lost.

Another important movement in the family line came during the reign of Elizabeth I when she sent Sir Arthur CHICHESTER, a descendant of Sir John CHICHESTER and Thomasine RALEIGH, to Ireland to bring order to that rebellious country. Sir Arthur became Lord BELFAST and founded the CHICHESTER family in Ireland, having its own coat of arms.

Since these early times other members of the family have been awarded their own coats of arms and crests so that there are a number in existence. The problem for eager Americans is to find which branch of the family they descend from. About 1702, one Richard CHICHESTER migrated from England bringing his arms and records with him, preserving his English connection. The descendants of James of Massachusetts, with whom this book is most concerned, are not so fortunate

Some historians have confused the name and history of the CHICHESTERS with that of CIRCENCESTER. The two families have been proven to be distinctly separate entities. Although there is a suggestion of CIRCENCESTERS in the south of England, the family itself is located in Gloucestershire ✓ in the northwest, far removed from the CHICHESTERS of ✓ Sussex and Devon.

Of interest to the family of CHICHESTER-CHIDESTER is the symbol used by the Anglican Church in CHICHESTER, England. The base of the lecterns of all English Anglican churches is a large, gilded eagle with folded wings, indicating strength and superiority. The CHICHESTER cathedral, most of the construction of which dates from the Norman Conquest with later Gothic style additions, is one of four cathedrals in all of England which uses a pelican as its symbol. These four churches like the pelican symbol better, they say, because the pelican will tear its own flesh to feed its young if necessary. They want to be known in this way--to have it understood that the church will give its all, even to the point of self-destruction if necessary, for the benefit of the parishioners.

In the year 1643, at Taunton, Massachussetts, a survey was made to ascertain how many men were living there who were able to bear arms. Among those listed was James CHICHESTER. Just where he came from and the date of his arrival have never been determined, but it is generally believed that he came from Devonshire, England. He does not appear on any ship's lists as a passenger and it is highly probable that he came on his own or a brother's ship and then elected to remain in the New World. The CHICHESTERS have always been noted as seafaring men. Five years later, in 1648, record was made in Connecticut of a shipment of grain on "CHICHESTER" vessel." This may have been James' ship or that of another as will be seen.

Sometime before 1650 James and his family moved from Taunton, going north to the seacoast town of Salem, Essex Co., Mass. There on 21 Apr 1650, he and his wife Mary were baptized in the Salem First Church. According to Savage's Genealogical Dictionary, three of his children had already been baptized 21 Feb 1650. They were John, Mary and Martha. Daughter Mary's death date, 25 May, 1686, aged 43, indicates that she was seven years of age at the time of her baptism.

The following year, 27 Feb 1651, the same church record shows that James CHICHESTER was "removed." Could he have been lost at sea, perhaps on a fishing expedition? His family was still in Salem for an older son, James, was baptized into the Salem First Church 9 Mar 1652, and a daughter, Elizabeth, was baptized 26 Jan 1654.

Son James was an adult at the time of his baptism for two years later he was a married man and involved in a land transaction.

The family of James CHICHESTER¹⁻¹, then consisted of himself, his wife Mary and children:

- *2-1 James CHICHESTER bp 9 Mar 1652, Salem, Mass; md before 1654 to Eunice PORTER
- 2-2 John CHICHESTER bp 21 Feb 1650. No family has been identified for John. However, he evidently became a seafaring man and had moved his port of operation to Huntington Harbor, Long Island, in the late 1660's. He appeared there in a suit brought by Robert PEARSALL (PEARSALL) on 6 May 1668, and was known as Capt. John, "skipper igestre." By 1674 he was listed as a proprietor in Huntington.
- 2-3 Mary CHICHESTER bp 21 Feb 1650; md 5 Sept 1664, to John MARSTON; she d 25 May 1686, ae 43.

(Ref: Pioneers of Mass; Pope; Savage's Genealogical Dictionary; Essex Institute, vol 6 pp 82-83, 243; EPS p 570.)

1-2 William CHICHESTER, possibly a brother of James, and his family were living in Salem, Mass., at the same time. William was master of the ship HOPEWELL and appears in the records of Marblehead, Taunton and Salem, Mass., from about the year 1641 to 1663, when he removed to lower Norfolk Co., Virginia, and became the pilot on the James river there. His family information is pertinent at this point because it is of the same generation as that of James and it so closely parallels it that it is difficult to separate the two families.

William was living in Marblehead in 1645 and 1646, and probably earlier. By 1650, however, his family had moved to Salem and his children were baptized into the Salem First Church. The move was probably made so that the two families would be near each other while the men were away at sea.

"12-2-1652 , Essex Co., Mass; deed Salem, Alexander FIELD of Salem hathsold unto William CHICHESTER of Salem his house and --- about it and to be made out five acres out of his lott in ye Southfield as by a writing dated 16th 1st mo. 1650. The price paid for the premises was 10 pounds in commodities and six pounds in mackerell." (Putnam's Montly Hist. Mag. 1897, Salem, Mass.)

2-6 James CHICHESTER bp 21 Feb 1651

2-7 John CHICHESTER bp 21 Apr 1650

2-8 Sarah CHICHESTER bp 13 Apr 1651

2-9 William CHICHESTER bp 15 Mar 1653

2-10 Susannah CHICHESTER bp 10 Mar 1657

Life at sea was uncertain at best. Some voyages were of short duration, others were long and would lead from port to port until families waiting at home could become rather hard pressed. Such was the case with William's family in 1658, when the Salem town council found it necessary to vote commodities for the sustenance of Sister "CHISTER, wife of William CHICHESTER." She was allowed one half bushel of Indian corn per week. Because of his prolonged absence, William's son James, then about ten years of age, was apprenticed by his grandfather, David CORWITTHY, to Francis SKERRY, who agreed to send the boy to school until he could write a legible hand; to give him a ewe lamb to keep; to give him ten pounds at the end of his time and two suits of clothes, one for Lord's Day and one for working days.

In 1662 Mary Corwithy CHICHESTER was ordered by the court to sell her house and lot to pay the accumulated debts and in turn was awarded a small lot on which she was commended to build a house within two years or forfeit the lot.

Some time during the next three years William returned and moved his family to lower Norfolk Co., Virginia. His will, recorded in Norfolk Co. Wills (Abstract) dated 23 Mar 1687/8, proved 17 May 1698, follows:

. . . "Unto my loving wife Mary--(torn) during her natural life (torn) and after her Decease to son Wm. CHICHESTER, and ---(torn) my son James CHICHESTER all that tract of land lying ---(torn) now liveth on. . . All that tract of land that William Morley now lives on bein. / . . (Ref: Savage's Genealogical Dictionary; Town records of Marblehead, Salem, Mass.)

1-3 Contemporary with the families of James and William CHICHESTER, and living in Marblehead and Salem, was Alice CHICHESTER. No clue is given as to her connection with the other families. She was evidently a ward of the various courts and had a son :

2-11 JEREMIAH CHICHESTER

The Salem Court ordered on 20 July 1658, at the time of her abode in Salem, for the maintenance of Alice and her child, Salem should pay three-fourths and Marblehead one fourth of the cost of maintenance. On the 30th of the month the Selectmen of Salem and Marblehead respectfully agreed that her son Jeremiah, "now about three months old" should be apprenticed to Edward HARNET, a tailor, who had been caring for Alice and Jeremiah. HARNET was planning to move from the area and was allowed eight pounds to apprentice the child and take him along. Alice was given seven pounds for her expenses.

Edward HARNET moved from Salem, Mass., to Huntington, Long Island. Jeremiah CHICHESTER grew up in Huntington and was no doubt the Jeremiah CHECHESTER who, with John SMITH, witnessed a sale by Zachariah MILLS, 20 Dec 1676, in Huntington, L. I. He was also witness with Tho. OKELIE of a sale made by Samuel MILLS 28 April 1681, in Huntington.

2-1 JAMES CHICHESTER, s of James¹⁻¹ and Mary of Taunton, Mass., bp 9 Mar 1652, Salem, Mass; md before 1654 to Eunice PORTER, dau of Jonathan PORTER and his wife Eunice. Their known children were:

*3-1 James CHICHESTER bp in Huntington, Suffolk, N.Y., 15 Sep 1668; md Elizabethⁿ DAVIS

*3-2 David CHICHESTER md Alice or Ales

3-3 Jonathan CHICHESTER, purchased land 31 Jan 1690 in Huntington, Long Island (Huntington Deeds, v 1 p 67); and was given land by his father James, 23 July 1692. (See Deeds.)

James and Eunice were married in Salem, Mass., and their children were undoubtedly born there before the removal to Huntington, Suffolk Co., Long Island. The first real record of the family is recorded as a sale of property to James by his father-in-law, on 2 October, 1654. The deed reads:

"Jonathan PORTER, of Salem, Mass., Essex Co., a planter, hath sold unto James CHICHESTER his dwelling house, with the land adjoining being about 1 3/4 acres, for and in consideration that the said James shall freely allow and give meat, drink and lodging unto his wife Eunice PORTER during her widowhood, in case the said Jonathan shall dye before her, as by deed dated 2 October 1654." (Essex, Mass. Deeds, vol VIII p 293.)

A few years later both families sold their property and removed to Huntington, Long Island for by the year 1662 James CHICHESTER, listing himself as James, son of James of Taunton and Salem, had become a respected and influential citizen of Huntington. On 19 Feb 1662/3 he was chosen a deputy to attend the "Corte of election helld at Harford (Conn) next may being in the year 1663." At this time Long Island had elected to be a part of the Connecticut colony rather than New York, which was at that time under Dutch rule, hence the sending of delegates to such a political convention. This alliance lasted until 1664 when the Dutch relinquished New York to the English. At that time the territory came under the New York mandate.

The previous June 6, 1662, James had been appointed as member of a committee to pass judgement on the desirability of new arrivals in the community. A law had been passed that no one could rent or sell to a new arrival unless the committee gave it approval of the new owner-to-be.

In the same meeting it was also suggested that James be nominated to keep the "ordinary." He accepted. The Ordinary was the inn maintained for the comfort and use of travelers and residents. It was the practice to select the most prestigious house on a highway for this service, so it was a distinct honor to be chosen. The family must be genteel and affable and able to impress the visitors. During the ensuing thirty years James added to and improved his home until it was rather an imposing structure which he named "The Peace and Plenty."

The home served as a roadhouse, inn, or "ordinary" for many years. It was still in service during the Revolutionary War and was the home of "Widow" CHICHESTER who, necessarily, served the British officers who at the time controlled the island. It was here that the youthful Nathan HALE collected the information that he passed on to Gen. George WASHINGTON. It was here, also, that he was apprehended, eventually. As late as the year 1968 the house was still in good repair and was being used as a home, the old tap room still maintained as it had been since it was built. On the hitching post in front was a plaque, placed there by the Huntington Historical Society, announcing its illustrious history.

James was active in committees determining town boundaries, organizing courts and all civic functions. Courts were thought to be necessary so a panel of three judges and a clerk were selected; with a jury of seven to be called if and when needed. There were no serious crimes to be prosecuted so the early cases consisted mainly in the easing of neighborhood squabbles. A case in point is a court action brought in October, 1662:

"Stephen JERVICE, an attorney in behalfe of James CHICHESTER, plf. vs Tho. SCUDDER, deft., acsion of the case and -of batery. Deft says that he did his indevor to save ye pigg from ye wolff, but knows no hurt his dog did it; and as for ye sow, he denys the charge; touching the batery, striking the boye, says he did strike the boye but it was for his abusing his daughter. The verdict of the jury is, that deft 's dog is not fitt to be cept, but the acsion fails for want of testimony, but touching the batery, the jury's verdict pass for plf^t, that deft pay him 10 schillings for striking the boy and the plf^t to pay 5 shillings for his boy's insevility."

Another case in the same court: "Rachel TURNER sayth, that being husking at Tho. POWELL'S, James CHICHESTER found a red ear, and then said he must kiss Bette SCUDDER; Bette sayd she would whip his brick, and they too scufeling fell by her side; that this deponent and Tho. SCUDDER being tracing, and hav ing ended his trace, rose up and took howld of James CHICHESTER and gave him a box on the ear. Robard CRUM-FIELD says, that being husking at Tho. POWELL'S, James CHICHESTER found a red eare, and then said he must kiss Bette SCUDDER, and they too scuffling, Goody SCUDDER bid him be quite, and puld him from her, and gave him a slap on the side of the heade; the verdict of the jury is, that James shall paye ye pl^f 12 shillings and the cost of ye cort."

The miscreant was no doubt James, the son of James²⁻¹

In 1668 James was elected constable of Huntington, and by 1676 he had begun to be known as James Senior and his sons were beginning to be land owners. By 1681 he was deeding land to his sons James, Jonathan and David.

1681, June 20: "Know all whom it may concern that I James CHICHESTER Senr. of huntington in the East Riding of yorkshier on long Island have as well for & in consideration of ye naturall love and affection which I have & bare to my well beloved son James CHICHESTER; as also for divers other good causes & considerations me at this present especially moving....doe give grant and confirm unto my above sd. son Mames a sertain parcell of land. . . (Oyster Bay Records III p 681.) in 1749 he was witness to a land transaction between his brother Ephraim and Richard DENTON Jr. He was termed "son" by James in a deed in 1708 in Huntington. In t he account books of Henry LLOYD, published in The Journal of Long Island History, Vol II, Abraham's first purchases were settled by his father, James. After May, 1734, Abraham and his wife purchased materials and were paid for their services. The name of his wife wasn't given. The account begins in 1728 and runs through 1735. In 1738 Abraham was paying board and pasturage for a horse and oxen. In 1739, April and July, his wife was again being paid for services and it is indicated that she may have been a Cornwell or Cornel.

James was a worthy successor to his illustrious father. On 20 June, 1681, his father deeded four acres of land to him and the city awarded him a house lot of two acres at the harbour. Thereafter the Huntington records are replete with his real estate dealings. One worthy of note for its portrayal of custom of the times was a sale by the burning of a candle. As the sale began, a one inch piece of candle was lit and bids were accepted until the last flicker of flame , the last bid taking the property:

June the 26th 1672

It was voted and agreed by the major part of the town that the Hassokey Swamp over against Jonathan ROGERS and joyning James CHICHESTER Sen^r home lot sh all be sold at a vandue by the burning of an inch of candle; and so may improve for some public use for the town as the Constable and Overseers shall see cause....

This day aforesaid, at the vendue James CHESTER Junr bade the last and greatest sum which amounted to twenty four pounds eight schillings. It being doubted by some whether James CHICHESTER or Robert ARTHUR bid the highest sum it is decided that Rob. bad twenty four pounds seven schillings. Testified by Jonas WOOD Jun. who was eye witness; as well as Jonathan SCUDDER, James SMITH and John ADAMS as ear witnesses, that James CHICHESTER Junr bad twenty four pounds eight schillings.

Possession granted to James CHICHESTER Junr.

Although David was paying taxes in 1688, having seemingly, reached the state of manhood by that time, he was still single when he became the executor of his father's estate in 1698. He may well have been the youngest in the family. On 14 Nov 1698, his brother James deeded all the property he had inherited from his father to brother David, reserving the r ight to use, enjoyment and occupancy of the property. This was the Peace and Plenty mentioned before.

David sold several parcels of land in 1698 and by 1705, at least, had moved across the sound to Wallingford, Conn., where he purchased property 8 June, 1708, from Daniel MESSENGER in Wallingford. It would seem that he returned to Huntington at least briefly, for LLOYD'S account book shows purchases there in 1714-15 which were closed out by brother James in 1717. David had no doubt returned to Connecticut. It may also be that he made those purchases and had them sent to him in Connecticut. (Wallingford Land Transactions; Jacobus, Simsbury Records vol 1 & 2.)

It will be noted that whereas before this time baptisms were usually of adults, that now they are being performed more nearly at the time of birth. This no doubt reflects the growth in the population, making the services of a regular minister possible.

- 4-9 Daniel CHICHESTER, s of James³⁻¹ (James²⁻¹ James¹⁻¹) and Elizabeth DAVIS; b in Huntington, N.Y. but moved to Connecticut before 1722. In Stamford, Conn. 4 May 1722 he md Abigail BISHOP. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Joseph BISHOP. Abigail was b 10 Mar 1697, dau of Benjamin BISHOP and Susanna PIERSON. (Susanna was the dau of Rev. Abraham PIERSON, the first president of Yale University.)

Daniel and Abigail were admitted to the church in New Canaan, Conn., 6 Aug 1749, recommended by a Mr. Strong of Stanwich, Conn. (New Canaan Ch Recs. vol 1) By a deed from his father, James, Daniel had a contingent inheritance in Huntington should his brother Ephraim die without issue.

In 1749, at a cost of 101 pounds, Daniel purchased a home in New Canaan that had been built three years before by a Mr. Timothy DELAVAN. There were about forty five acres of land with it, the house and property being known as Cherry Brook. The house was built of field stone and had walls three feet thick. Years later a clap board siding was added, the original house served succeeding generations down to the present day.

In 1762 Daniel deeded the home to his son Daniel "for love," reserving the south -part of the home for himself and his wife for their natural lives. Three years later, after Daniel's death, Daniel Jr. sold the house and land back to his mother for 100 pounds and sold the northernmost fifteen acres for fifty one pounds ten schillings, selling this parcel to his sons Abraham and David.

The exact date of Daniel's death is not recorded, but occurred sometime between 1762 and 1765. In his "Visitations" or 1772, Rev. William DRUMMOND said that Abigail was a widow. Abigail d 17 Mar 1807, in Ridgefield, Conn.

James¹⁻¹) and Alice; b in Huntington, Suffolk, N.Y; md 17 Dec 1719, in Simsbury, Hartford, Conn., to Mahabel TULLER (or TULLEN, given name also written Mabel and Mehitable.) She was b 22 Feb 1698/9 in Simsbury, Conn; dau of John TULLER and Elizabeth CHASE.

An adventurous young man, Samuel was evidently attracted to the prospering copper mines of Simsbury, Conn., where he met and married his wife. By the year 1722, he had enough capitol to buy property in nearby Waterbury, Hartford Co.

On 30 Sept 1726, he and his brother William jointly sold land, Samuel listing himself as "of Waterbury" and William as "of Wallingford, New Haven, Conn.," and both men signing their names as "CHIDESTER." Samuel also bought land of John HOUGH, 31st Jan 1732/3, signing this deed also as "CHIDESTER."

In 1735, Mabel appeared in court to receive an inheritance from her father's estate. Sometime after this date the CHIDESTER family moved to Roxbury, Morris Co., New Jersey.

There is no apparent record of Samuel's death, but Mabel (Mahabel TULLER) CHIDESTER, widow, died there 27 Mar, 1761; her son Samuel was the executor of her estate. (Indenture and Inventory rec. from State of New Jersey, State Library, Trenton, N.J.)

Eunice was md (1) 23 Dec 1714, to Jonathan SEYMOUR and had ch: Eunice, Jerusha, Lois, Martha and Eliakim. After Jonathan's death Eunice, on 5 Oct 1725, was granted guardianship of the children, but soon after her marriage to William CHIDESTER, the brothers and sisters of Jonathan SEYMOUR petitioned the court to appoint new guardianships, saying that "said Eunice" was now married to one "William CHITESTER, a poor, shiftless man, and the children are in a suffering condition." Accordingly, three of the children were placed with the Robert BOOTH family of Farmington, Conn., and two of them were given to their aunt, Mercy Seymour HUBBARD in Middletown, Conn.

When the complete story of William CHIDESTER is known it is difficult to understand the bitterness and jealousy with which the Seymours viewed him at the time of his marriage. True, he was young to undertake such a heroic task as the raising of such a large, made-to-order family. And he had been rather itinerant, but he was not without assets.

As early as 2 Nov 1723, he sold property in Wallingford, listing himself as "of Farmington." In 1726 he and his brother, Samuel, sold property jointly in Waterbury. His interests, up to this time, had been rather scattered, but he was a man of property.

William and Eunice remained in Wallingford until some time after 1734, when they moved to Cornwall, Litchfield Co. Land transactions there were made in 1740 and 1742. William also owned and operated the "CHICHESTER" ferry near Cornwall Bridge, across the Hoosatic river. The fares he could charge were regulated by law and were:

for man,	horse and load----	one pence
footman		half penny
led horse		three farthings
ox or other neat	kine	one pence
sheep, swine or goats		one farthing.

By 1751, the fare, by law, was increased to:
each man, horse and load -----three pence

ox, cow or horse	three pence
single person, sheep or swine	half pence

In 1742 William sold a substantial piece of property in Cornwall to Josiah ROBINSON for two hundred pounds.. William was quite a financier and was rather a wealthy man by the time he was 50 years of age.

He was, however, first and foremost, a pioneer with new frontiers always beckoning. In 1753 he sold his Cornwall holdings to his son William for 2,500 pounds "old tenor money" and left Cornwall. He and several other Connecticut men had learned of a new land opening up. It was in the mountainous northwest corner of Massachusetts--a frontier just west of Fort Massachusetts and directly on the firing line of the French and Indian troubles.

William bought two lots in what was called West Hoosic (the name is spelled in the records variously as Hoosic, Hoosac, and Hoosick.) It lay on the river bank west of the Fort, a vulnerable spot indeed, for it was at the river crossing that separated Massachusetts from the wilds reaching up into Canada. The developer presumed that the new settlers would be protected by the soldiers at the Fort, but such was not to be the case. The Massachusetts soldiers considered the Connecticut people, to whom the land had been sold, to be interlopers. There was a skirmish with the Indians and trouble all along the line. Some Dutch settlers a ways away, and others were given sanctuary at the Fort, but the people from West Hoosic were refused ammunition, food and shelter. They were given to understand that they were on their own.

As a result, in Oct. 1754, William drew up a petition for the building and maintenance of a fort that would protect the community and sent it to the provincial government in Boston. No action was taken. The feud between the Fort and the settlement became more intense and the Indian troubles more bothersome.

January 1, 1756, William drew up another petition, asking that he be allowed to build a blockhouse for the protection of the community. He carried it himself, traveling Indian style, on foot and stealthily, to avoid attracting attention from hostile forces. He presented his petition and argued for it until he was able to return with a commission of Sergeant and an agreement that if he and his companions would donate the land and erect a blockhouse by the first of March it would be recognized and a detachment of ten soldiers would be assigned to help guard it. The clinching argument had been that, situated as it was, in the mountain draw at the river crossing, it was a much more ideal place for defense of the province than the original fort was.

On his return, William could only find three other men who were willing to undertake such a task. In the dead of winter and with a frenzied determination, William and his three companions completed the task i n the allotted time, using William's lot #6 and the next one to it, #8, which was donated to him by Capt. Williams, the originator of the town project. The town now bears the name Williamstown in honor of this founder.

All went well with the CHIDESTER family for a time. Tensions between the fort and the people of the blockhouse eased. That is, until 11 July 1756. All had been fairly quiet on the front. Then cattle began disappearing. William and his son James, with Capt. CHAPIN, went out to hunt for some missing cows. They were ambushed by Indians and killed. William and his son died instantly, but Capt. CHAPIN was just wounded. The Indians dragged him away, tortured and scalped him. It was two days later before men could be sent from the fort to retrieve and bu ry the bodies.

Today, the site of William's blockhouse is a spacious field alongside the Williamsburg College and is used as a park. Near the road is a huge granite boulder bearing a plaque honoring William who pioneered there, his son James and Capt. Chapin who died with him,

As a result of this service, after having made requests and being issued various warrants, Jeremiah was awarded land in Charlotte County, adjoining the north bounds of the township of Hyde. It may have been that his removal to the mainland accounted for the omission in his father's will. He had signed a release and disclaimer to Queen's Village, 27 Oct 1735.

Like his forbears, Eliphalet CHICHESTER, known as "The Elder," was a man of high principle who suited his actions to his words. A fisherman by trade, it was probably when he had to post a five hundred pound bond in order to obtain a license to marry Mary PINE that he began to take note of laws that he would later rebel against. The bond stated that he was :

.". . firmly bound unto our Sovereign Lord George - by the Grace of God, of Great Britain - Ireland, King, Defender of the faith &c in the sum of Five Hundred Pounds, current money of the Province of New York, is to be paid to his Majesty or his Heirs and Successors; For the which payment well and truly to be made, and done, We do bind Ourselves, and each of us, our and each of our Heirs, Executors, and Administratories, and ev ery of them firmly by these Presents. Sealed with our Seale, Dated the 7th Day of September in the year of his said Majesty's Reign, Anoque Domini 1758.

THE CONDITION OF THIS SALE IS SUCH:

That whereas the above bounded Eliphalet CHICHESTER hath obtained a License of Marriage for himself of the one party and Mary PINE of Suffolk County, Spinster, of the other party. Now if it shall not appear hereafter that they or either of them the said Eliphalet CHICHESTER and Mary PINE have any lawful Let or Impediment of Pre-Contract, Affinity, or Consanguinity to hinder their being joined in the Holy bonds of Matrimony, and afterwards their living together as Man and Wife, then this Obligation to be void and of none respect, or else to stand, remain, abide, and be in full force and Virtue.

Signed: Eliphalet CHICHESTER
Martin PENDERGRAST

After such a binding contract no one could afford to change one's mind, have an accident or let anything interfere. Fortunately Eliphalet and Mary were married four days later.

It was just such exorbitant demands as this that lighted the freedom fires. This particular one accounts for the absence of confirmation of many marriages, especially in the colonies of Virginia, New Jersey and New York where magistrates and governors were adamant in enforcing such monetary demands.

Conditions did not improve; they only got more so, until in 1775, Eliphalet was one of the first signers of the Association Against England, which was a pledge to refuse any assistance to the authority of the King of England. He, Eliphalet, was a Minute Man and ready to back his words with action. A regiment was raised in Long Island to oppose the British authority. Eliphalet was a private in Capt. John WICK's Company, Col. Josiah SMITH's Regt., Suffolk Co., Militia.

Opposition to Great Britain was so strong in Huntington, that after the British won the Battle of Brooklyn, a detachment of soldiers was stationed at Huntington to control the rebellious population.

Huntington Harbour offered a convenient spring board to the continent. Connecticut and Massachusetts, hotbeds of revolutionaries, lay just across the Sound, making Long Island a strategic point of operation for the British. The town was subjected to the most ruthless treatment. Property was confiscated, cattle and provisions seized, and the people left in an impoverished condition. Those that remained were forced to sign an Oath of Loyalty, which included a declaration that they had surrendered all arms to the British.

Many men escaped to Connecticut to join the revolutionary forces. Some were able to take their families. Eliphalet was one of them. Having earned the reputation with the British of being "the worst rebel of the lot," he was able to escape detection and to evacuate his family to Stratford, Connecticut, in 1776. He had been active, and would continue to be, in underground activities, smuggling arms and ammunition across the Sound to the Continental Army, carrying them at night in small boats. (See "Refugees of 1776 From Long Island," by F. G. Mather)

It was at this time and under these circumstances that the "Peace and Plenty" was being used by the British as an "Ordinary" and the CHICHESTERS were forced to entertain them. However, this very fact gave Eliphalet the power to serve the revolutionary movement so successfully. His trade of fisherman, knowing all the coves and island accesses so well, provided the means of delivery of messages, materials and refugees. He was indeed a patriot. No wonder the British hated and feared him!

In the "Public Records of the State of New York," vol 3 p 220, is recorded:

At a meeting of the Governor and Council of Safety at Hartford, the 2nd Day of November 1780, Upon the Memorial of Margery SQUIER, Philon BEARDSLEY, and a woman whose name is CHITESTER, all of Stratford, praying for liberty to go under a flag to Long Island where their husbands are, and to carry with them such of their children as shall be thought proper; Resolved that General STILLMAN be directed and authorized to grant a flag to carry over to Long Island the memorialists and their children, as prayed for, at their own expense.

With this, the CHICHESTERS were back home in Huntington.

Abraham md (2) 30 June 1791, to Mary ROCKWELL (New Canaan VR vol 1; Stamford Register, vol 1)

Abraham was mentioned in his Uncle David BISHOP's will 14 Aug 1781, in Huntington, Long Island. (Vol 10, N.Y. Hist Soc Collection, p 160) He seems to have been very familiar with Huntington, the country and the families there, although he spent his life in Connecticut. A prominent doctor, he was known throughout the Connecticut countryside, serving the Stamford to New Canaan area.

He was chosen ruling Elder of the New Canaan Church 2 Aug 1754, and was sent as a delegate to the Presbytery at Brookhaven, Suffolk, Long Island.

He and his three eldest sons, Abraham, David and Nathan, served in the Revolution at the Battle of Ridgefield. One of the boys enlisted four different times. During the battle of Ridgefield, the youngest son, Stephen, ae 6, and his mother Jerusha had to hide in caves for safety.

Abraham bought part of Cherry Brook, his father's home place, and established a fine home which his son Nathaniel succeeded to. His son David became the owner of the original David CHICHESTER home at Cherry Brook. The Rev. Wm. DRUMMOND reported visiting in this home on Christmas Eve, 1772, and meeting Abraham, David and their families there.

- 5-24 Andrew CHIDESTER (CHICHESTER) (note change in the spelling of the name) s of Samuel CHICHESTER⁴⁻¹¹ (David³⁻² James²⁻¹ James¹⁻¹) and Mahabel TULLER; b 18 Oct 1720, Simsbury, Hartford, Conn; d in Morristown, Morris Co., New Jersey; md Susannah ----. His known ch:

6-37 Moses CHITESTER. In a court case in Newtown, Fairfield, Conn., Moses stated that he was the son of Andrew, son of Samuel, son of David, son of James of Huntington in Suffolk, in the province of New York; b 7 Aug 1743 (See Newtown, Fairfield, Conn. VR Vol 1 pp 13 & 517)

Moses was probably born in New Jersey but returned to Connecticut as a young man and bought his first property in Newtown 3 Oct 1763. On 15 Dec 1763, in Newtown, he md Cybel CABOT, dau of John and Mabel CABOT. She was listed as "of Milford" although her parents were living in Farmington, Conn. (See marriage Rec of Newtown, vol 8) In the Huntington, Fairfield, Conn., census of 1790, Moses is recorded as having 1 male over 16, 3 males under 16 and 5 females. The names have not been found. He does not seem to be in Connecticut in 1800.

*6-39 Phineas CHIDESTER b 13 July 1757; d 22 Apr 1814; md 26 Mar 1780, Rebecca BYRAM. (His Bible records were published in National Genealogical Soc. Quarterly.)

Andrew CHIDESTER was a weaver for a store in East Jersey from 1735 to 1746. The area is now known as Boundbrook, Somerset, N.J; He appears in the account books of Jacob JANEWAY, to wit:

9 Oct 1747, Adam RHEMER's wife Katherine paid a debt to Susannah CHIDESTER

1749/50 Andrew bought articles from Joseph MUNDAY (N.J. Archives v 30)

Rough times hit the family in 1771 for Andrew was imprisoned for debt. A New Jersey newspaper reported:

"Pursuant to an order of the inferior court of common pleas held at Morristown in and for the County of Morris, Notice is hereby given to the respective creditors of William MOCKERIDGE, William THROCKMORTON and Andrew CHIDESTER, Insolvent Debtors now confined for debt in the Gaol of the County of Morris; that the said Creditors appear before Jacob FORD and Samuel TUTHILL, Esquires, two of the Judges of the said court on Wednesday the third day of February (1772) next at two o'clock in the afternoon at the courthouse in Morristown aforesaid, to show cause, if any they have, why the said prisoners should not be discharged from their imprisonment agreeable to the directions of a late act of the General Council and General Assembly of the providence of New Jersey, entitled, An Act

For The Relief of Insolvent Debtors." (New Jersey Archives, 1st series, V28 p 371)

The most common cause of court action in New Jersey at this time was debt--the provincial governor really riding that hobby horse. It was no doubt to avoid such stringent action that Moses decided to go back to Connecticut where life was freer and times not so hard.

The children marked in this family as being carried forward will appear in a future publication.

6-45 Jonathan CHIDESTER, b 1759, Williamstown, Berks, Mass. By deposition of Elisha HIGGINS, his step-father, 30 Aug 1768, Jonathan was said to be seven years of age at the death of his father. Jonathan grew up in Williamstown and enlisted there in the Continental Army, 1 May 1775. Massachusetts Soldiers and Sailors in the War of the Revolution, vol 3, lists his service as "Jonathan CHIDESTER, Williamstown, Pvt. in Capt Abiather ANGEL's Co., Col. David BREWER's Regt. Muster roll dated Aug 1, 1775, enlisted 1 May 1775, service three months one week; also Capt. John WRIGHT's Co., between Jan 21, 1777 and June 1778, by Truman WHEELER, Muster Master, enlistment three years or during the war; also known as CHETHSTER and Jonathan CHIDISTER, Pvt. 6th Co., Col. John BAILEY's Regt., Continental Army pay accounts for service from May 18, 1777, to July 18, 1779; enlisted during war, reported died July 18, 1779; also Capt. Isaac WARREN's 6th Co., Col BAILEY's Regt., return dated Camp Valley Forge, January 24, 1778.

6-46 Mary CHIDESTER, said by Elisha HIGGINS in his deposition of 30 Aug 1768, to have been two years of age at her father's death in 1766. Elisha charged the estate for Mary's care, 4 pounds, 10 schillings in comparison to one pound ten for Jonathan for the same period. Inasmuch as there is no further record of Mary it is possible that she died and the extra charge was for those expenses.

William CHIDESTER⁵⁻²⁹ took over his father's holdings in Cornwall, Connecticut, in 1754, when William Sr. left to go to Fort Hoosic (now Williamstown,) Mass. He seems to have remained in Cornwall until his father's untimely death just two years later. William then made arrangements for the care of the property and, with his young wife Esther, went to Williamstown to care for his father's affairs there and to take care of his mother. Just ten years later he was to lose his own life in a skirmish with the Indians. It happened in this manner:

There had been trouble with the Indians as long as the French came down from Canada to stir the natives up--the action known as the French and Indian War--until 1763 when the French withdrew their action against the English settlers and life on the frontier became a little easier.

Almost immediately the pioneering blood of the English settlers began to stir anew and the adventurous among them began to look for new frontiers. Word got around that the valleys of the Susquehanna and Delaware rivers in Pennsylvania were very fertile and free for the taking.

Nathaniel CARTER, William CHIDESTER's brother-in-law, with several other families went there to settle. They staked out their claims, planted their crops and began trapping; built their cabins and seemed to be fairly free of molestation from the Indians, although they maintained a watchful sentry all the while.

Late one September afternoon while Mr. CARTER and his oldest son and the other men of the settlement were busy building a cabin further in the woods, Mrs. CARTER and her daughter Elizabeth were gathering corn for supper. The sentry, no doubt feeling secure, left his post and went a few rods from the house to tend to some traps and was out of sight of the buildings.

Elizabeth happened to glance up from her work in time to see war-painted Indians come out of the woods. She called out to her mother, but too late to save her. The Indians buried a tomahawk in the mother's head and then took Elizabeth with them to the cabin. The other women and children of the settlement were in the building. One woman and a sixteen year old girl were sick. The Indians tomahawked them, then picked the CARTER baby up and dashed its head against the wall. The other woman, Mrs. DIXON, the three CARTER children, Elizabeth, Sarah and Nathaniel, and three children of the other family were taken prisoner.

Upon hearing the cries of the women, the sentry came running but could only get one shot off before he was killed. The Indians set fire to the cabin and other buildings and then travelled for three days before stopping. After they made camp, a war party of about 100 braves was dispatched back to the settlement to see what else they could do and to forestall pursuit.

In the meantime, when Mr. CARTER and companions returned home and found the damage, they set about making up a posse to follow the Indians and try to recapture the hostages. It is not known how far reaching the alarm was nor how it was that William CHIDESTER became a member of the party. Most likely there was a second attempt to recover the captives and to punish the miscreants, for Elizabeth CARTER reported later that it was about five or six days after their capture that the war party returned and dangling from their belts were the scalps of Mr. CARTER and Mr. DIXON. Imagine the grief and despair of the prisoners when they saw that!

It was the following July, 1766, that William CHIDESTER was reported dead in the pursuit somewhere in the vicinity of where Wilkes Barre, Pa., is now situated. William must have been gone on this mission all winter and have been given up for dead by his family and friends long before he was actually reported killed.

Eventually, the band of Indians arrived at Niagara and there, after being persuaded by British officials under the leadership of Sir William JOHNSON, the children were ransomed--all, that is, except for Nathaniel CARTER, the boy.

Somehow Nathaniel had attracted the love of the Indians and became their favorite. He enjoyed their sports and the attention he received and when he was given the chance to return to his people the Indians refused to let him go and he, himself, elected to remain with them. He grew up as an Indian, married and had a family, but kept with him the family bible which somehow had been taken along. He read from it, taught his children to read and became an influential member of the tribe, sitting in their councils and acting for them in conferences with the government. He ended his life on the reservation in Oklahoma with his Indian family. (Historical Sketches, J.M. Edwards, 1884; Early Migrations to the Middle West and Massacres on the Frontier, Thos. G. Carter, Pres. S. Dakota Sons of American Revolution.)

The next month after William's death was reported, his widow, Esther, appeared in probate court as Esther HIGGINS, wife of Elisha HIGGINS, to petition for the guardianship of her three children.

Elisha had been a soldier stationed at Fort Massachusetts and later at Fort Hoosic for a number of years and had acquired property there. He appeared as a signer of William CHIDESTER Sr.'s petition for the building of a blockhouse in West Hoosic. He had evidently been married, inasmuch as he brought two children to this new union:

Josiah HIGGINS b 2 June 1762

Hannah HIGGINS b ca 1765

With his marriage to Esther CARTER CHIDESTER, Elisha took over the administration of the CHIDESTER estate. By the end of probate the property was all used up. In 1769 the two original CHIDESTER lots, #6 and #24, were sold by the state to the SEELYE brothers.

Very soon after guardianship was granted to Esther and Elisha, young William CHIDESTER⁶⁻⁴⁴ was sent to Cornwall, Litchfield, Conn., to live with his uncle, Hezekiah CARTER, who had a mill at the "Bridge" close to where the first William CHIDESTER had operated a ferry. Here young William was no doubt regaled with stories about his grandfather William, for he developed a deep respect for him. Later he would be the descendant who would sign a quit claim deed for Cornwall property which "formerly belonged to my Honor Grandfather, William CHIDESTER." He received $1.68 for the deed (Apr 1802.) This same William, for a sum of $40.00 paid to him by Ephraim and Reuben SEELYE, 13 Nov 1799, signed a quit claim deed to clear the title of the two lots, #6 and #24, that his grandfather had pioneered in Williamstown, Mass.

Elisha HIGGINS and Esther Carter CHIDESTER had ch:

- (1) Elisha HIGGINS b ca 1767, Williamstown; d 30 Aug 1818 probably at Willsborough, Essex, N.Y.
- (2) Isaac HIGGINS b Williamstown; d 28 Sept 1818; md in 1784 to Asenath CLARK (dates and name of wife given by a descendant, Mrs. Florence SOUTHWORTH, Saginaw, Mich.)
- (3) Mary or Lovila HIGGINS who md Thomas ADAMS.

Elisha HIGGINS served in the Revolution, 1775, enlisting from Williamstown. By 1781 he was moving his family to Vermont where they staid briefly, moving from there to Willsborough, Essex, N.Y., where Esther d 7 May 1778 and Elisha d 23 Mar 1801.

5-33 David CHITTESTER, one of the many enigmas of the early CHICHESTER-CHIDESTER puzzle, was "of Farmington Hartford, Conn."

(film #1680 V1 p 60 LDS Gen Lib, Salt Lake City, Ut.)*

Where David came from, his parentage or other salient facts have not been found. However, 24 May 1725, Jonathan HOUGH deeded to David, his son-in-law, part of his own home place, reserving part for his (Jonathan's) son John. The same Jonathan, on 23 May 1732, deeded land to his beloved son Benjamin, mentions his son Zephaniah and his son-in-law David CHITTESTER.

David, in turn, sold land to James LEWIS 4 Jan 1784. On 30 Jan 1734/5 Jonathan HOUGH deeded more land to his son-in-law, David CHITTESTER. On Mar 12, 1734/5, David sold property to John HOUGH, his brother-in-law. (See film #1480F, New Fairfield Land Recs pp 370-376, SLC)

7 May 1783, David CHITTESTER of New Fairfield, sold land "being part of ye farm which Jonathan HOUGH took up." (Fairfield, Conn., Deeds, pt 3 p 158-9)

The home place of this David CHICHESTER (CHITTESTER or CHIDESTER) which he obtained from his father-in-law Jonathan HOUGH, was so situated that it lay on the south border of New Fairfield, touching and partially belonging to the township and town of Danbury. The owner of the property was listed variously as "of New Fairfield" and "of Danbury." It is entirely possible that this last transaction in the name of David CHITTESTER, occurring as it did sixty years after the marriage date of David CHITTESTER and Jemimah HOUGH, could very well have been made by a son David, although no record of a family has been found. (See next generation, David⁶⁻⁴⁷)

Dr. Abraham CHICHESTER Jr. was so widely known and respected that his death was reported in the "Connecticut Herald" of 28 Oct 1823; in the "Hartford Times" of 21 Oct. 1823; the "Danbury Times" of 25 Oct 1823; and the "Hartford Courant" of 28 Oct 1823.

Abraham no doubt trained under his father, the first Dr. Abraham, as well as in the school at Norwalk. His son, Abraham, studied medicine and hoped to continue the medical tradition but died before he had a chance to do much about it.

In his youth Abraham served with his father and brothers in the Continental Army, Revolutionary War, notably in the Battle of Ridgefield. After he became a doctor he established his practice in Wilton, Conn., near Norwalk where he had trained.

David CHICHESTER, baptised into the church in New Canaan in his infancy, was admitted to full communion 4 Jan 1785 (New Canaan Ch Rec vol 1 p 62) As a young man he enlisted in the Continental Army with his father and brothers and fought in the Battle of Ridgefield. He enlisted in Capt. Reuben Scofield's company under Col. John MEAD four separate times: 1 Mar 1779; 1 Mar 1780; 1 Mar 1781; 1 Mar 1782, serving 9 months each time.

In all his service, he came nearest being wounded at Ridgefield when a ball tore through his clothes. In 1838 when his widow applied for a pension, his clothes, showing the bullet hole, were still in the possession of the family. During the 1870 enlistment he was stationed in Norwalk to guard that port from enemy invasion.

Before the death of his father, Dr. Abraham CHICHESTER, David became the owner of Cherry Brook, the home owned first by his grandfather Daniel. He was not permitted to enjoy it too long, though, for death came to him at the early age of forty six. His family continued to live there, however, and the estate eventually came into the possession of his youngest child, Mary Ann Chichester LOCKWOOD, who in turn made a home for her mother, Mary Nichols CHICHESTER and her unmarried sister, Polly.

On July 7, 1838, an act was passed in congress granting pensions to the widows of Revolutionary war veterans. Mary, aged 78, applied and was granted a pension of $80.00 per year. David's friends and military companions testified concerning his service. Alanson and Polly, children of David and Mary, testified of the long widowhood of their mother and a certified record of the marriage was filed. On 4 Sept 1839, she received $240.00 back pay and $40.00 for the current year.

When Cherry Brook was being repaired in 1933, a small tattered, black book was found in the attic. It proved to be a record book that had been kept by Carlisle (Charles) LOCKWOOD when he was clerk of the school board, 1825-1848. He had been a most efficient clerk for twenty three years and had recorded every decision made and each penny spent for and by the school.

The Cherry Brook home remained in the possession of the CHICHESTER-LOCKWOOD descendants until 1871 when it was sold.

Nathan CHICHESTER, with his father Abraham and brothers Abraham and David, spent the years of his youth supporting the war of Rebellion. In his application for a pension in 1832, he stated that he belonged to the Connecticut Militia as early as 1775 and was called to duty intermittently until 1780, serving anywhere from a day or week to a month each time. At one time he substituted for his brother David for a month and a half when David was unable to serve. He was in the Battle of Ridgefield "when the town of Danbury was burned" and was lying next to Lieutenant DAVENPORT when that officer was killed. His last assignment was with Capt. Reuben SCOFIELD's Co., and that worthy gentleman, (in his 90th year) bore witness to the fact. A certificate of pension was awarded to Nathan 31 Mar 1834-- the amount: $36.21 per annum. In Sept of that year he received $108.63 back pay, plus $18.10 for the current year, making a total of $126.73. The pension act had been passed 7 June 1832.

After Nathan's death, Theodosia was awarded his pension as his widow, under the act of 7 July 1838.

Nathan and Theodosia lived and raised their children in New Canaan, owning and farming much of the land of the original CHICHESTER estates in New Canaan, living in the home place that his father, Dr. Abraham, had built.

*7-56 Royal Canfield CHIDESTER, b 22 June 1802, Canfield, Mahoning, Ohio--the first male white child born in the Western Reserve; d 27 Mar 1874, Canfield, Ohio; md Caroline Elizabeth GROVER, widow of James JARVIS.

William CHIDESTER, orphaned at an early age by an Indian massacre, grew to be one of the stalwart men of his time. He had the sad duty of straightening out the affairs of his father and grandfather, both of whom lost their lives in Indian actions. It made him a serious, dedicated man. At the age of 20 he entered the service of his country, being first drafted as a militiaman under Samæel CANFIELD of New Milford, Conn., in the War of the Revolution.

He then enlisted in the company of Capt. Theo. WOODBRIDGE, Second Conn. Line, under command of Col. Heman SWIFT, in which company he served four years. He participated in the battles of Brandywine and Monmouth.

During the years of his war service, he married Chloe PECK and had a son, Alborn. Both Chloe and the baby died before he was discharged. After his discharge he returned to Cornwall and later married Martha DEAN. They started housekeeping near Cornwall Bridge where William followed the trade of tailor for three years. He then bought a nearby farm where he lived until 1802 when he exchanged it for land in Canfield, Ohio, the place being named for his former militia commander. The site was in what was then known as New Connecticut in the Northwest Territory, later known as the Western Reserve.

Until his removal to the new territory, William had remained active in the militia. In the Public Records of Connecticut, vol 8 p 114, is recorded: "The assembly do establish William CHIDESTER to be Captain of a Company of Light Infantry in the 35th Regiment in this State." Dated 10 Oct 1793.

"William, with his family, left Cornwall 27 Apr 1802, arrived at his destination, Canfield, Ohio, 2 June 1802. His large family and household good and store were conveyed in two wagons, one drawn by a team of horses, the other by oxen with a led cow. His route was up the Hudson to Newburg, where he crossed the river in a pirogue, at one load. Thence he proceeded to Easton on the Delaware, which was crost in a flat-boat, in two loads, thence by a then lonesome and dangerous road, over the Allegheny mountains to Fort Pitt, crossing the Monongahela here, they journeyed down the south bank, over a mere trail in the hills to Beavertown. They forded the Ohio about a mile and a half below, thence reached Canfield, Ohio, in two and a half days. He selected a plot No. 15, first division in the woods. The next house west being then 15 miles distant. Three years afterward he moved to plot number 18 in the third division, where he lived, and in 1811 built a frame house for his son Royal Canfield, the first white child born in the settlement. After the admission of Ohio in 1803, he was elected justice of the peace, which office he held until his death Feb 26, 1813. He also served as township trustee and commissioner of Trumbull Co." (Nelson's Biographical Dictionary, Erie Co., Pa., 1796.)

His wife, Martha, applied in 1838 for a pension. She was granted $80.00 per year and was given, in Sept. of that year, $240.00 back pay.

Thus, William, the pioneer son of pioneers, was instrumental in founding the illustrious CHIDESTER family of Ohio.

6-47 David CHICHESTER or CHIDESTER, was of Danbury, Fairfield, Connecticut during and before the Revolutionary period. Records of that time and place were casualties of the war. During the Battle of Ridgefield in 1777, in which so many of the CHICHESTERS of Connecticut were involved, the residents of Danbury were forced to flee their homes. The entire area was pillaged and burned by the British. Town, church and family records perished. The only documents concerning the town and its inhabitants to survive were land records that were filed, fortunately, in other places. From these sources many salient facts emerge, but no clues as to David's parentage have been found.

It is possible that he could be the son of Samuel CHICHESTER-CHIDESTER⁴⁻¹¹ who lived in Danbury for some time. Samuel had several children but only the names of the two born before the move to Danbury are known⁵⁻³³

This David could also have been the son of David and Jemimah HOUGH, which seems more likely. As has been seen, David and Jemimah owned land that lay in Fairfield Co., in the townships of New Fairfield and Danbury, which joined each other. Both this older David and the David with whom we are now concerned, are listed as being alternately from New Fairfield and from Danbury in their land transactions, according to which seemed most appropriate. There are other possibilities but no way has appeared to prove either one.

Certain it is that David lived and married in Danbury. Family tradition says that he was a doctor and served in the Revolution. No official record proves it, but, just after the war, two of his children, listed as the children of "Dr. CHIDESTER," were baptised in Weston, Fairfield, Conn. This was the nearby area where Dr. Abraham CHICHESTER lived and practised but Abraham had no children by the names of Hannah and Rebecca. Birth records are so complete in the Weston-Stamford area, that it would seem that the two children were born elsewhere. It can be assumed that David moved his family to Weston to the care of relatives during the destruction and rebuilding of the town of Danbury.

On 15 March, 1770, David CHICHESTER and his wife Hannah, of Danbury, Fairfield, Conn., sold to Thaddeus WARING a parcel of land in Norwalk, Conn., that Hannah had inherited from her father, John WARING. Thaddeus was her brother. (Grantor Deeds, Norwalk, Fairfield Co. B 1 14 p 376)

April 6, 1773 "Benjamin CHIDESTER, son of Daniel CHIDESTER of Mallbury Precinct, Decd. a minor of Danbury being of age for the choice of a guardian & having made choice of David CHIDESTER to be his guardian." court approved and David posted a bond of one hundred pounds. (Probate Recs., Hartford, Conn.)

July 19, 1777 "I David CHIDESTER of Danbury, Fairfield Conn." sold land to Ezra STARR. (Danbury Reg. of Deeds V 3 p 233)

Weston, Fairfield, Conn., Church records, p 8: "A record of those who have been admitted to renew Covenants, 12 Dec 1779; Doct. CHITESTER and wife renewed covenants." The same day, "Rebecca, daughter of Doct. CHITESTER, baptized."

Sept 2, 1781, "Hannah, daughter of Doct. CHITESTER ✓ baptized by Rev. Samuel Sherwood, Norfield Congregational Church in Weston, Norfield Parish."

Oct 6 1780--a deed was issued for property laid out for David CHIDESTER in Danbury.

Oct 12 1782, for thirty nine pounds, bought a lot with house from Samuel HIGGINS. The same day, "I David CHICHESTER in Fairfield Co., State of Connecticut" sold other property in Norwalk to Ebenezer GILBERT. "Furthermore, I the said David CHIDESTER do..

. .bind myself, . ." Signed: David CHIDESTER (Deeds B1 15 p 290)

According to these documents we know that David was an adult by the year 1770; that sometime before 15 Mar 1770 he married Hannah WARING, the dau of John WARING and Katherine TUTTLE, natives of Norwalk, Fairfield, Conn. There were no doubt children born during the 1770's but no record of them has been found, although a David Jr. went with the family later to New York. The known children are:

7-55 Rebecca CHIDESTER b- 12 Dec 1779, Weston, Fairfield, Conn; md probably in Pompey, Onondaga, N.Y. to Phebe or Paley HALE

7-56 Hannah CHIDESTER bp 2 Sept 1781, Weston, Conn; md probably in Pompey, N.Y. William OLDEN or OLDREN.

Hannah must have died soon after the baptism of her last daughter, for all land transactions from then on concerning the property that had been held jointly by the couple was sold by David with no mention of his wife.

On 27 Aug 1782, Rev. Joseph PECK released and quit claimed property to "David CHIDESTER and Mary his wife," of Norfield. (Deeds, Danbury, Conn V 2 p 86.) This particular bit of property had been willed to Mary PECK (now the second wife of David CHIDESTER by her maternal grandmother, Elizabeth Starr CHURCH, 17 Apr 1778. At that time Mary was a minor and the property was given to her father to care for. By 1782 she had either reached her majority or marriage had given her adult status.

The following month, 9 Sept 1782, "David CHIDESTER and Mary his wife, both of Fairfield, Conn" sold this property to Joseph WILDMAN (Register of Deeds vol 1 p 182)

Sometime before Aug. 1787, the Chidester family left Connecticut, moving first to Stillwater, Saratoga, N.Y. Their next move, before 1799, was to Cazenovia, Madison Co., N.Y., living in that township until after the 1800 census was taken which showed the family with 2 males 16-26; 1 male 45+, one female under 10, 1 female 10-16 and one female 45+.

The picture had changed a little by the year 1810 when another census was taken. Boundaries had shifted and although the family had not necessarily moved, they were now in Pompey, Onondaga, N.Y. and they had 2 males 10-16; 1 male 26-45; one female under 10; one one female 16-26; 1 female 26-45 and one female 45+.

David must have died about that time or soon after, for he is not heard of again. His wife, Mary, survived a number of years. In 1830 she appears in the Woodstock Baptist Church, Cazenovia, New York, as having been dismissed, whether by death or removal to another parish is not clear.

Oliver was a seaman and ship's captain for the New York and South Carolina Steamship Company. His last command was of the SS Tennessee which left Charleston 28 June, 1870, with a cargo of cotton, resin, and vegetables. There were also 53 passengers. A few miles out at sea a fire broke out and when it proved to be out of control, Capt. Chichester ordered the ship turned to land, which happened to be Little River, just south of Cape Fear. He and crew worked untiringly to save the passengers so that no lives were lost, but the ship and cargo were doomed. Later, all were picked up by a passing steamer. In the rescue and fire fighting activities Capt. Oliver had ruptured a blood vessel in his stomach. He had not been well when he left home for the trip, but he returned home with this new complication thinking that some time at home would repair all ills. He was unable to recover, however, and died shortly after his return. He was well-loved and respected by his crew members, neighbors and friends.

(1) Ira CHICHESTER

(2) Eleno CHICHESTER

Born in Amityville, Chauncy was raised in Moriches and remained there all his life, attending the common schools until he was seventeen years of age, when he began working for his father, driving the stage, and was made mail carrier for his route. In 1887 he opened an office in Centre Moriches and engaged in real estate, later adding insurances. By hard work and good management he accumulated a fortune and was highly respected in the community. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church and in politics was a Democrat.

She raised her sister's dau Cora who was ae 1 yr in 1850. She also raised Vesta, ae 7 in 1850, dau of Willard's first marriage.

Abijah moved from Connecticut to Unadilla, Otsego, N.Y. about 1805. In the early 1830's he moved from New York to Otsego Twp., Michigan. He was the Otsego Twp secretary 22 Sept 1832, and had real estate valued at $305.00 and personal property $70.00. He was school commissioner in 1836; school inspector, 1837; highway commissioner 1837-40; director of the poor house 1840-45.

In 1833-34, settlers in Allegan Co., took their patents from Andrew Jackson and later from Martin Van Buren. Michigan represented the lure of the rich and free west--the moving on of the frontier.

In June 1834, Abijah CHICHESTER and Oka TOWNE ran a raft of 30,000 feet of lumber from Pine Creek to the mouth of the Kalamazoo river where a saw mill had been erected. It was the first lumber ever floated down that river. They made the run in two days, stopping overnight with BUSHONG, the Indian trader.

The Allegan Co., settlers found the Indians friendly and did not have the frontier problems the family had experienced in Massachusetts and Pennsylvania earlier.

Abijah md (2) 28 Mar 1842, in Martin, Michigan, Margaret HANMORE, ae 40, a widow. They were married by F. GAGE M.G., witnessed by Ashbel GATES and Abraham SHELLMAN.

The estate of Peter HANMORE (File #18) on 14 Jan 1843, set aside one third of the estate to "Margaret CHICHESTER, widow of old Peter HANMORE."

Aaron was a farmer all his life. He also served as Justice of the Peace for a time. He entered the Connecticut Militia as private under Lieut. Samuel SMITH and served in the Bridgeport area, War of 1812. In 1852, he applied for and received 120 acres of bounty land in the west as a reward for the service. In 1855 he applied for more land, saying he had disposed of the first grant.

Aaron invented a machine for working hat bodies. He also served his town as selectman and as assessor.

d 30 Aug 1893, Washington, Utah; md (1) Mary Josephine PARKER; md (2) Leah Jane THOMPSON; md (3) Anna Charlotte ELDREDGE.

John Peck CHIDESTER, like his father, was a doctor, probably working with and learning the profession from his father and his close relative Dr. Abraham CHICHESTER. He no doubt attended and trained in the school in Norwalk, Conn., although no record has been found to prove the medical training of either of the Chichester-Chidester doctors. Until fairly recently in eastern states men "read" with a practicing physician, much as lawyers "read" and learned law by working in a law office.

John seems to have moved with the family through the various towns of Fairfield Co., Conn, and New York to Pompey, Onondaga, N.Y. It was in near-by Vienna, N.Y., (about 20 miles distant) that he met and married sprightly, young Mary Ann (Polly) GIFFORD whose family also had originated in Connecticut and had been drawn into the western migratory pattern.

At the time of John's death Mary Ann heart-brokenly said that she would never love anyone else. For a time she lived with her parents-in-law in Pompey and then probably with her own parents. It was not long, however, before she md (2) George DARROW, a widower who had lost his companion about the same year as Mary had lost hers. At first it was no doubt a marriage of convenience. Mary had two small children and no visible means of support. George had six motherless children and needed help. Later the union developed into a genuine marriage of love.

George DARROW was b 29 Nov 1777, Saratoga, Saratoga Co., N.Y; d 23 Jan 1843, Summerfield Twp., Monroe, Mich; s of John DARROW and Hannah FULLER; md (1) Bulah BIERs or BEERS who was b ca 1781; d ca 1810, in Oneida Co., N. Y. They had ch:

8-92 Darwin DARROW b 1831, Dundee, Monroe, Mich; d 1834

In the courthouse, Utica, N.Y. deeds show that George DARROW, on 7 Oct 1795, bought 226 acres of land in Herkimer Co., N.Y. In 1822 he bought other land in Vienna, N.Y. and probably owned land there prior to that time. Some time soon after the birth of their ch Amanda, the Darrow family decided to move on to Michigan, a newer, more promising frontier land. Before 1831 they were settled in what is now Dundee, Monroe Co., Michigan, on the banks of the beautiful Raisin River.

Michigan deeds show that they prospered there, It was a beautiful, fertile land, fairly level and easy to clear and farm. The Indians were not troublesome any longer and life was smooth.

After George's death Mary Ann yielded to the persuasions of her son, John Madison CHIDESTER, and with his help settled the estate in Michigan (1844) and moved to Nauvoo, Ill.

Later, during the Mormon move to the Rocky Mountains, she was married (3) to John YOUNG, brother to Brigham YOUNG. During the last years of her life she lived with her son in Washington, Utah.

When Solomon LOVELAND applied for a bounty land grant for military service, 14 Apr 1855, he declared that he was a drummer and musician in the company of Rangers commanded by Asa WELLS during the war between the United States and Great Britain, which was declared 18 June 1812. He was honorably discharged from this service at Smith's Mills about the 15th Nov 1814, and was allowed four days time to return to his home in Pompey, N.Y., having at that time served 35 days in the New York Militia. At the time of the application he had moved from Pompey to Hoosick Falls, N.Y.

On 15 Apr 1871, Clorinda, widow of Solomon Loveland, made application for a widow's pension and stated that during his service Solomon had been ordered to Oswego and to Sacket's Harbor; that before his decease he had been issued warrants for forty acres and one hundred twenty acres of bounty land. She stated that she was married under the name of Clorinda CHIDESTER, 16 Oct 1808. She also applied for funeral reimbursement and listed:

Coffin, hearse and services	$40.00
Four carriages attending hearse	12.00
Use of receiving vault and interment	5.00
Total	$57.00

His assets at time of death did not exceed ten dollars, one bureau and six teaspoons. Cause of death, old age.

The families of David CHIDESTER and Manoaah PRATT were neighbors in the township of Pompey, living about half-way between the village of Pompey and the town of Cazenovia. When they first settled there it was thought they belonged to the latter city, but the boundary later put them definitely in the Pompey district. The two families were united in the marriage of Jared and Betsey, a union that was happy for both families.

The "Pompey, Onondaga, N.Y. Reunion of 1871" p 143, reports: "Jared PRATT resided in Pompey till about the year 1830 when he moved to Jefferson Co., N.Y. After residing there about five years he moved to Michigan upon the territory in dispute between Michigan and Ohio and this left him in the latter state where he remained, engaged in farming. His failing strength obliged him to abandon that vocation and only one grandchild now remains of that family."

The upper portion of Ohio and lower portion of Michigan comprised a territory that was hotly contested by the two states for some time. The dispute was known as the "Toledo War." Both states wanted control of the belt of rich farm land. For a time no one knew which state to support until the boundary line was finally drawn as it stands today. The Pratt farm ended up being partly in Ohio and part in Michigan. Metamora, Ohio, and Blissfield, Mich., were close neighbors. While the family lived, technically in Metamora, they attended church and were most active civically, in Blissfield.

Jared and Betsey were admitted into the church in Pompey 30 July 1815, and were dismissed to Antwerp, Jefferson, N.Y, 13 Mar 1825. In the 1830 census they were shown living next door to Abial SHURTLEFF, whose dau Nancy later married Betsey's nephew, David Starr CHIDESTER⁸⁻⁸³.

On 20 Feb 1833, Jared and Betsey were admitted to the Presbyterian church in Blissfield, Mich., and their dau Mary Ann was admitted 30 Aug 1845. Jared PRATT was ordained an Elder in the church by Rev. John WALKER on 22 Dec 1839. He served the church well, officiating many times in behalf of or in lieu of the minister. So devoted were Betsey and Jared to the church, and so generous of time and means that when the present lovely frame church was built, a beautiful stained glass window was dedicated to them.

After Jared's death Betsey married a Mr. HOUGHTBY. No record has been found of the marriage, but her tombstone bears the inscription:

BETSEY CHIDESTER PRATT HOUGHTBY.

She was probably the third wife of John HOUGHTBY, the original immigrant from England. The "Portrait and Biographical Album of Lenawee Co. Mich (1888, Chapman Bros) says of him: "John HOUGHTBY was married three times," but it names only his first wife.

At the time of her death Betsey was living at the home of her son William.

John A. Weed was for some time an inmate of the Nehemiah Benedict home. Growing into a promising young man, he was public school instructor for a time. Afterwards, through acquaintance with Dr. A. J. McLEAN of Norwalk, he became familiar with drugs and started, prosperously, in that business. "He was for many years a reliable and highly honored citizen of the town." (Rev. Charles M. Selleck's History of Norwalk, Conn. 1896; p 33)

Henry CHICHESTER enlisted in the Revolutionary forces 1779. He was taken prisoner but was exchanged in 1781. He re-enlisted under Capt. Ebenezer JONES for guard duty off the coast. In 1832 he received a pension for services as a private in the Connecticut Line.

Lafayette moved to Illinois about the same time as his brother Horatio Nelson CHIDESTER did--about 1839. He helped his brother to establish and operate a school and was a teacher for quite some time, acquiring property and establishing himself as a citizen of value. In 1844 he was witness to a will made by Alexander M. Imbric of Mercer Co., Ill.

A brief year after his marriage, he died intestate and his wife, Matilda Chidester, was appointed administratrix 15 June 1855. Her last accounting of the property was made 23 Nov 1864 when she signed herself as Matilda ALEXANDER and stated that there were no children, she being the only heir. (Probate recs Mercer Co., Ill.)

Moving to Ohio in 1802 with his father's family, Erastus spent his teen years there in Canfield. He met his wife, Lydia Sackett, when she came from Warren, Conn., to visit her sister, Mrs. David HINE. In 1820 he was on the building committee to erect a house of worship for the village. It was a good, substantial frame building that stood on the east side of the public square. In 1835 the Congregational divided and the present Presbyterian church was organized.

Not content to remain in Ohio, Erastus moved his family to Illinois where he died. His wife and some of the children moved from there to Iowa.

Quote from History of Medina Co., Ohio, 1818:—

"One of the early taverns of Medina was the CHIDESTER HOUSE. This was the stage house, after a line was established from Cleveland to Wooster and Columbus, and , like the frontier tavern, was a place of considerable resort. About stage time, everybody flocked to the tavern to see the stage come in, just as t he boys of the present day gather at the depot about train time to see who can swear the biggest oaths, chew the most tobacco, squirt out the greatest quantity of juice and use the most obscene language. As the stage rattled up with the blowing of the horn, and the prancing of the 'Fiery, untamed steeds,' the people around milled, ready to pick up any stray scrap of news from the outside world.

"Chidester House was long a famous stopping place, and a well known tavern in this section of the State."

W. R. CHIDESTER, Proprietor."

No reason has been given for the divorce of David and Nancy. It may have been that the deaths of the two older children at such early ages frightened Nancy and she decided to leave the itinerant life of a minister's wife and devote herself to raising her surviving son. She never re-married. Living near her parents she reared her son to manhood.

Hattie was "ellocutionist" (dramatic arts) at State University of Minnesota; "elocutionist" and teacher of English at State Normal School, Shippensburg, Pa; taught in Young Ladies School, Clifton Springs, N.Y; was instructor at Teacher's Institute in Pennsylvania and Iowa; gave public readings in fourteen states and territories.

David Starr CHIDESTER said that he was raised in the home of his grandparents but did not specify whether they were the Chidester or Gifford family. He could have been with his mother and George DARROW when they lived briefly in Jefferson Co., New York, enroute to Michigan. It was possibly at that time that he first became acquainted with the Shurtleff family, with whom he elected to stay rather than go to Michigan, eventually marrying Nancy, the daughter of Abial SHURTLEFF.

Sometime during the early years of his marriage, he elected to become a minister and was to spend seventeen years in the service of the Methodist church, moving from place to place as required. In the Central New York Methodist Conference record is the following, speaking of David:

"He was received into the Black River Conference in 1838, and into full connection in 1840. His fields of labor were in the following order: Canton, Louisville, Hopkinton, Herkimer, Frankfort, Marcy, Newport, Lee, North Manlius, First Ward of Syracuse, Belgium and Collamer. His health was early broken, obliging him to retire for seven years upon the Superannuated list; but so strong was his desire to return to his work in the field, as to lead him to make several attempts to return. . .when he would again be compelled to retire.

"When not in pastoral work, he practiced medicine and dentistry, and occupied honorable positions in each of these professions."

The home his children loved and knew best was in Syracuse, N.Y. where David was pastor 1859 and 1860. In "A Century of Methodism in the First Ward of Syracuse, formerly Salina" Rev. Geo. E. Hutchings, 1907, we read:

"It is sufficient praise for the pastorate of D. CHIDESTER--the man who was both preacher, doctor and dentist . . . to say that at this time Thomas REDHEAD and his wife were converted. If no others had been reached and no other work done, this alone was well worth the two years effort." The Redheads went on to become "pillars" of the church.

When the "College of Missionaries" was incorporated 2 Aug 1871, Dr. David Starr CHIDESTER was one of the first trustees.

David was a generous, kindly man, and above all, a good father. He saw to it that his children were well educated. His home and office were centers for their every activity. His office at No. 12 South Salina St. Syracuse, was even used by his daughter Florence as the first secret meeting place of her fraternity.

David developed and sold a syrup which he claimed to be a cure for cancer. In many instances it served the purpose.

With all his activity and varied pursuits, he had too many philanthropies to become a wealthy man. His wealth was his church and his family.

trade, becoming a skilled artisan. He was probably still engaged in his apprenticeship when his mother and family moved to Michigan where they lived for at least two years before John seems to have joined them.

In his family record John records that he was married in New York to Mary Josephine PARKER. Like him, Mary had been raised by relatives, her mother having died when Mary was very small. An uncle, Eli HULL and his wife Polly, had cared for her and she was probably still living with them at the time of her marriage. Her father and his family had moved to Michigan several years before and lived in the same general area as the Chidester-Darrow family did. With both families living in Michigan, it is no wonder that soon after their marriage John and Mary decided to join them, settling in Summerfield Twp. Monroe, Michigan, near the town of Petersburg.

In the summer of 1832, two itinerant missionaries of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints came to Michigan. John liked the message they brought and decided to join them. On the 20th day of June, 1832, he was baptized by Elder Joseph WOOD and confirmed by Elder David PATTEN. The following summer he was ordained an elder in the church.

When a call for volunteers came, to make a march to Missouri to aid and defend beleaguered church members there, reached Michigan, it found ready volunteers in the Chidester family. Selling his property in Michigan, John, with his wife and infant son, set out on a great adventure. They traveled as far as Florence, Ohio, then paused to wait for the main group to come from Kirtland, Ohio. While there, a daughter was born, making four members of the family joining the camp.

It was to be a long, difficult march - a time of testing and trial. John and his family stood the test so well that many years later he was to bear testimony of his increased faith as a result of the experience. He told of the time when, after a hard day's march, they came to a lovely camp spot on the bank of a river. Everyone hurried to make camp, but Joseph Smith, their prophet-leader, insisted that they go on quite some distance to a much less desirable spot. Some grumbled but all eventually complied. The next morning it was learned that there had been a mob gathering the night before, intending to descend on the camp to destroy it. There were many such incidents that so inspired John with the leadership of the Prophet Joseph that he gave undying allegiance to him and would never henceforth be engaged in anything that was not a part of the church. Every demand would be met willingly.

After the emergency was met and the Camp was disbanded, John settled his family in Liberty, Clay Co., Mo. They were not to remain there long, however; mobs were incited against the Saints again. It was here that John acted as body guard for the Prophet. It was here that he was taken by a mob and condemned to be hanged for, as they said, the theft of a horse. It was a false charge but there was no chance for defense. As the mob prepared to carry out their sentence, John stood and defied them, saying that the first person who touched him, he would "lay out." So courageous was his action that members of the mob became sympathetic and said that so brave a man should not die. He was freed.

Mob action increased in intensity and the family, with other members of the church, was forced to leave their property and to move on. The story was repeated again in Far West, Missouri. Two children were born during this time, neither of them surviving the hardships. Eventually the family moved across the river to Quincy, Ill., where they remained for a year, going from there to Nauvoo, Hancock, Ill.

In Nauvoo there was comparative peace for a few years. For their protection, the Nauvoo Legion was organized and John joined it. On 8 June, 1843, John was commissioned 2nd Lieutenant of the 2nd Cohort, Nauvoo Legion. He became 1st Lieutenant of the 1st Cohort, Nauvoo Legion, 14 Dec 1844. (Executive Record, 1843-47, vol 4 pp 54, 238.)

John prospered in Nauvoo, although he had lost all his worldly goods in the previous moves and had arrived without means. He was able to leave his family long enough to serve a short mission for the church, going back to Michigan where he converted his mother and a sister. A year later, in 1843-44, after the death of his step-father, he returned to Michigan, disposed of the last of his own property there and helped his mother settle her affairs and dispose of her property and move to Nauvoo.

As the Saints prospered and built their small empire in Illinois, persecution from neighboring communities flared up again. The Prophet was the main target and was constantly under the necessity of evading the persecutors. The family tells the story of one time when John was out in the country peddling apples. The Prophet met him and asked his help, for a mob was after him. John re-arranged the apples so that the Prophet was completely covered--all but his feet. There wasn't time to do more. The mob came up and demanded that he submit to a search. They looked all around, did not see the uncovered feet, and finally left, whereupon John turned his wagon around and headed for home. At a fork in the road John decided to take the shortest route. but as he turned into that road a blinding flash of lightening struck just ahead of the horses. They were frightened and began to run, out of control. By the time John was able to calm them he found that they were well on the way down the opposite road. He drove on and when he arrived home he discovered that, had he gone the first route, he would have encountered the mob again and probably not been so successful in evading them.

The Prophet was martyred and events forced the Saints to abandon their homes yet another time. John moved his family across the Mississippi River to a camp on the edge of Sugar Creek, near Montrose, Iowa. He then loaned his wagon to one of the general authorities, Ezra Taft BENSON, so that he could accompany the new leaders in their scouting way west. He and family would wait until the wagon was sent back for them. While waiting, John and his eldest son built a raft and busied themselves in helping other church members to cross the river. While there, a daughter was born. John, disguised as a woman, cared for his wife and baby. Most of the Saints had moved on and he was alone with his family. Mobs would not, at that time, hurt the children and women if there was no man around.

In Kanessville, now Council Bluffs, Iowa, the family stopped to recoup their fortunes and prepare for the difficult journey across the prairies to the Rocky Mountains. John built a horse-powered grist mill and ground corn and wheat into meal to sell as well as to sustain the family. He and his sons worked to fashion wagons and carts for the pioneers. Eventually, the family was ready to move, but not before another child had been born. Again, as had happened twice before, Mary would walk the weary miles with an infant in her arms.

Arrived in Utah, the family camped in Salt Lake City for a time, then went to Bountiful for a year. During this time John made a living by building spinning wheels which were desperately needed by the women. Then the call came to settle in Spanish Fork, the area south of what was to become Provo, Utah. No other settlement had been made in that barren region. John became a spiritual and temporal leader of the group, serving as their branch president, as chaplain for all civic affairs and as a military leader during the time of the Walker Indian War.

In 1856 there was a terrible grasshopper plague that took all the crops and left the family so destitute that it was decided that they should leave, although they struggled on for another two years. Spending a short time in Parley's Park to recover a bit, they then returned to Salt Lake City where they lived in the Sixteenth Ward. The children were growing and some of them married when John and Mary received their last pioneering call.

In the fall of 1862 they were asked to join the "Cotton Mission" and go to Southern Utah where they would be involved in the production of cotton and cloth. John's skill as a "turner" was deemed necessary in the new community. They went without a murmur to this new, very difficult land and settled in what is now Washington. They were to experience many things. There would be want, Indian troubles, malaria and all the problems of building a life in a forbidding land.

John sold his water rights in the Mill Creek so that the cotton factory could be built. He helped to build and operate the factory, hand carving the reeds that went into the looms. His skill was constantly in demand. His next and last big venture was to help in the building of the St. George Temple, doing much of the hand carving of the interior.

As the temple became a reality, John was inspired to begin a family record. He wrote letters, researched all available means, and compiled a record that is the basis and inspiration of this present work.

Back in New York, his brother, David Starr CHIDESTER was instilling the same love and respect for family in the minds and hearts of his children so that they, too, would keep family records religiously.

After a life of hardship and trial, but content with his life, John died peacefully at his home in Washington, Mary having preceded him by several years.

In his early life John Chidester Loveland's parents moved to Hoosic Falls where he was apprenticed to Seth PARSONS to learn the machinist's trade. His specialty was the manufacture of shear blades for cloth dressing machines. He moved to Springfield, Vt., in 1851 and remained there the rest of his life. Although still living in Springfield when his son, William H., was born, he had sent his wife to Fairhaven, Mass., for her confinement so that she would be near her brother-in-law, Dr. William FORD.

In 1859, John C. LOVELAND joined the Congregational church in Springfield and had the reputation of being an honest, temperate, strictly moral person.

Quote from "History of Mercer and Henderson Counties, Ill" pub by H. H. Hill & Co, Chicago, Ill, 1882:

"Nelson CHIDESTER and his wife, Rebecca, are among the early pioneers who still live to enjoy the advantages their labors have helped to build up out of the privations of pioneer life. Mr. Chidester. . .came to Illinois in 1839, spending the first winter in Little York, Warren Co; removing in t he spring of 1840 to the northeast of section 16, in this township (Rivoli) where he still resides. Mr and Mrs. Chidester were original members of the Wesleyan Methodist Church, to which they still belong. The second school taught in the township was on Mr. Chidester's premises, occupying a back porch when the weather was pleasant and moving into the kitchen when it rained. This school was taught in the summer of 1843 by Mary Stewart. The next year (1844) Mr. Chidester built a temporary building in his yard with lumber designed for a barn, where Miss Pollock, of North Henderson, taught when the weather was pleasant; when it rained she had to adjourn the school to the house, and that was a frequent occurrence that year."

Horatio Nelson Chidester taught the school at times, and his brother Lafayette was hired as teacher. School records show that Lafayette received $1.15 one quarter. He served as Assessor at different times while Horatio Nelson Chidester served as Collector.

In January 1921, Royal CHIDESTER, son of Horatio Nelson, presented a petition to the court concerning the last will and testament of his father, stating that his father died in 1893; that he left his widow and his two children, Royal and Loama H. POWELL; that the said Rebecca S. Chidester had since died intestate, as had also, Loama H. Powell; that the only persons interested in the estate of Nelson Chidester were himself and his nephew, William N. POWELL. The following year, William N. POWELL filed an affidavit on 22 Sept 1922, saying that Royal CHIDESTER had died, leaving no widow, no father, mother, brothers or sisters as heirs. That he, William N. POWELL was the only surviving heir.

From History of Mercer and Henderson Counties, Ill pub by H. H. Hill, Chicago, Ill., 1882:

"Sidney CHIDESTER, farmer, worked with his father at the carpenter's trade until twenty-two years of age, when he came west and settled in Mercer County, where he has lived ever since. Being one of the early settlers of the county, he had to endure all the hardships connected with pioneer life. His education was limited to a common school course. In politics Mr. CHIDESTER had always been republican until 1875 when he joined the party known as the greenback party, of which he has since been a member. He was elected school trustee in 1845, and served twenty-five years consecutively. In 1847 he was elected justice of the peace, and served three years. In 1849 he was elected county associate justice for the term of three years. He was the first supervisor of the New Boston township and served as chairman of that board. In later years he has served ten years as township collector. He has always been an active temperance man."

Reared to farm life in his native Ohio, William N. CHIDESTER acquired the education available in his time from subscription schools. In 1855 he left home and went to Mercer Co., Ill., where he was employed in farm work for some time, then entered the employ of the John Deere farm implement manufacturing business.

After his marriage he engaged in farming in Mercer Co., Ill. for about eight years, moving in 1865 to Jefferson Co., Iowa. In Iowa he purchased one hundred sixty acres of raw prairie land in Polk Twp., where he began farming and also raised carriage and road horses. Another specialty was fruit culture.

He assisted in the organization of the school district and served as County Commissioner of Jefferson County. In his obituary it was stated that he was the parent of seven children, three of whom died in infancy. Only the name of one is known, all probably being born in the interval from 1865 to 1876. Of the surviving children, Mrs. A. L. Barr was living in Jefferson Co., Iowa; Mrs. Thomas in Shanahan, Canada; Mrs. McPherson in Topeka, Kansas, and Mrs. Braden in Golden, B.C. By the time Martha Ellen Titus Chidester died, Vera C. Braden had moved to Great Falls, Montana

Dr. Alban Benson CHIDESTER was a dentist and farmer. At one he owned and operated three farms near Watertown, N.Y. He also engaged in the shoe and boot business in Watertown, becoming very successful in both ventures, until some financial reverses took his assets. He then moved to Syracuse, N.Y., and entered the Syracuse Medical College, graduating with honors in the class of 1878. He had begun practicing his new profession and was doing well enough to warrant establishing a larger office in the city center when he died. He was taken back to Watertown for burial.

Through her mother Nellie was a descendant of Col. Nathaniel WOODRUFF of the Continental Army, Revolutionary War, and had relatives in every war fought by Americans. Her father was in the Civil War and she rolled bandages and participated in many ways in World War I.

A milliner by trade, Nellie was a gifted lady with needle and also with brush and canvas. She was a member of the Christian Science church.

It is said by the family that Wilbur was named for Wilbur Fisk, founder of Wilburforce College in England. He enlisted in the Union army 24 Sept 1864, and was a corporal in the 185th N.Y. Voluntary Infantry, Co. I. He was severely wounded in action 29 Mar 1865, near the South Side Railroad, Gravelly Run, Virginia, sustaining a gun shot wound in the left thigh. He was in the hospital in Washington D. C. when his father, Dr. David Starr CHIDESTER, and his sister Mary came to tend him. As soon as he could be moved and after his discharge, 6 June 1865, he was taken home to Syracuse where his father continued to care for him until 1870 when he moved to Watertown, N.Y.

In Syracuse he had worked as a salt inspector. In Watertown he was Justice of the Peace; a collector; superintendant in a cheese factory.

Growing up in the turbulent early years of Mormonism was not all bad. There was the companionship of the sons and daughters of the great leaders of Mormonism, the great excitement of military clashes and the challenge of the unknown that has always been manna to youth.

By the time John was sixteen years of age he had learned to work beside his father as carpenter and turner. He had helped in the building of many of the homes in Nauvoo; and most importantly of all, he had helped in the building of the Nauvoo Temple. In the fateful year of 1846, John helped his father to construct a raft and ferry the Saints across the Mississippi river. More often than not it was John who guided the craft until it reached the Iowa shore and disgorged its precious cargo.

In Winter Quarters, John continued to work with his father as they built and operated a grist mill to provide flour for the bread of the migrating Saints.

In the spring of 1850, not yet nineteen years of age, it was the turn of John and his family to cross the great plains to "Zion." That same year the Foy family was making the same journey and it is entirely possible that the two families journeyed together as Independent Pioneers, arriving in the Great Salt Lake Valley in the late summer.

Thomas Burk FOY, listing himself as of German descent, and his wife, Catherine Rebecca FINK, who said she was of Welsh descent, had joined the Church in western Pennsylvania early in 1840. Leaving Wheatfield, Indiana, Pa., almost immediately after baptism, they and their five children settled in Warsaw, Hancock, Ill., just a few miles from Nauvoo. Three more children were born to the family in Warsaw; another was born during the trek across Iowa; one was born the December after their arrival in Salt Lake City in 1850; and the last child of the family was born in 1853 after the family had moved to Farmington.

It was inevitable that Susan FOY (the second child in the Foy family) and John Peck CHIDESTER, with so much in common, should be attracted to each other. They were married and soon were pioneering the Spanish Fork area on the edge of Utah Lake. Their first home was a dug-out. Timber around Spanish Fork was difficult to obtain and very scarce. The dug-out was comfortable, affording protection from summer heat and winter cold alike. It was constructed by digging a hole in the ground about five feet deep, with steps leading down into the room. A roof of willows and mud stretched over all and a fireplace in the end opposite the stairway, provided heat, light and a place to cook.

The young couple entered into the life of the new community with vigor. Not only did they work to establish a home in this new frontier, but they were concerned for the welfare of their neighbors, a trait by which they would always be known.

With the eruption of the Walker Indian War, John was commissioned a Captain in the re-activated Nauvoo Legion. His wife and child, with other families, sought refuge in the adobe schoolhouse, the only public building in the community. They dug roots for food and lived the best way they could. The men were away in service so there were no harvests that year. The ensuing grasshopper plague and drought decimated the fortunes of the family, eventually forcing them to leave.

After a short time in the resettlement center of Parley's Park and a brief time in Salt Lake City, they were called to participate in the re-settlement of Southern Utah.

The journey south was an easy one most of the way. The Indians were at peace again and the young couple had high hopes for the future. Beyond Cedar City, however, the road became more tortuous. The Black Ridge with its deep, winding canyons and rocky hills, defied the travelers. Many times loads had to be lightened so the oxen could pull the heavy wagons up a steep incline, then the goods portered up. Brakes had to be applied on down-grades and sometimes a cedar or cypress tree attached to the wagon to slow the descent. At least once the wagon had to be lowered down a precipitous hill by the use of ropes. They reached Washington 1 Jan 1863.

The first winter, their home was the wagon box in which they had made the journey south. John worked hard to add a brush and sod shanty to ward off the icy winds and add room for his family to flex its muscles. He learned to work with adobe bricks and with rock to build more substantially and as the years passed he was able to build a fine home for his family.

John was quick to clear his land to begin planting crops to sustain the family and to bring in much needed cash. He planted cotton, vegetables, grain, fruit trees and vineyards. His skill as a carpenter was used to build the school house and other public buildings in Washington and St. George, as well as homes for the people.

In order to have farms it was necessary to provide water to irrigate the land. Washington had ample water from springs for culinary and town garden purposes, but water for the farms had to come from unpredictable Virgin River. Dams would be built only to be washed out in spring floods. There was constant need for repair and rebuilding of canals and dams. Finally after years of trial and error, it was John P. Chidester who engineered and superintended the construction of the diversion dam which held and is still serving the people of the valley.

From 1865-68 he was the chief carpenter and superintended the construction of the cotton factory, cutting the timbers and doing the mortise work with hand tools.

By the time the cotton factory became operational the Chidester children were old enough that they began working there. The mother no longer had to spend most of her time spinning and weaving at home--the factory did it better and faster. Susan found time to help there, too. From then until its closing the family took an active part in its operation. After it ceased to operate continuously, it was the Chidester girls who hastened to man the looms when important visitors came to see the mill.

Susan and the girls converted their attic to the production of silk fiber. John planted mulberry trees close about the house so that in tending their charges the girls would only have to open the windows to pick the leaves for the worms to feed on.

The family was close-knit and full of fun. They took their hardships stoically, made the best of them and enjoyed life. It was said in the cotton factory that Myron, the second son of the family, kept the work from being humdrum with his jokes. Both of the boys, John Foy and Myron, played the fiddle and combined with other musicians to provide music for the dances and celebrations.

During the erection of the St. George Temple, John served in the surveying of timber sources and superintended the scaffolding on the building. During much of the time he was also serving his community in leadership capacities, from being member of the bishopric in the church to heading committees for civic ventures. He cared for his aging parents and accepted from them the responsibility of continuing the work of record keeping.

After the completion of the temple and the dam, as his health deteriorated, John contented himself to the care of his farm and orchard and to making the yearly trips to peddle his fruit and molasses--and to work on his genealogy. At his death he had compiled 1500 names and had kept his family busy doing the same work. The record was turned over to his eldest son, John Foy Chidester.

In 1882 Susan Foy Chidester was sustained and set apart as Relief Society president of the Washington Ward. She survived her husband by five years.

Eunice Chidester HARMON, born on a pioneer trail, grew up knowing how to work hard and make the best of every situation. She and her husband, young newly-weds, lived for a few years in a dug-out in Spanish Fork, Utah, as did her parents and older brother, in the frustrating experience of opening that area to settlement.

They lived briefly, after that, in Parley's Park, a sort of resettlement community, then moved back to Salt Lake City. In 1862 the family answered the call to the Cotton Mission in Southern Utah. Eunice's parents and brothers were also going and her younger sister was already there, so it would prove to be anything but lonely.

Eunice would need the support of this loving family, for in 1874 her husband died, leaving her the sole support of her family. She was an expert seamstress and did millinery work. By thrift and diligence she was able to fulfill the monumental task of raising her family and seeing to it that all the children received the best education possible. All of them were able and did teach school for a time.

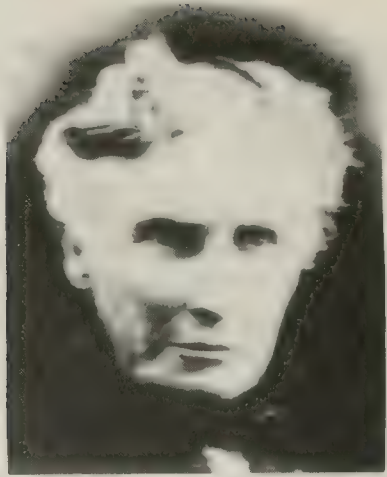

During the years of their widowhood, the sisters, Eunice and Esther, were very close to each other. Eunice would visit Esther in Provo and together they would re-live the happy times of their family life together and recount stories of their parents and brothers. For a short time Eunice made her home in Provo, then sometime after 1885, she decided to move close to her son Oliver John HARMON who was then living in Huntington, Ut. Arrived there, her son built a small shop next to his place of business and Eunice set up a millinery shop again and continued in gainful employment there.

In the first year of the marriage of David and Rebecca, a great problem developed. Rebecca had a half sister, Margaret Jane PEARSON who was b 13 July 1839, Pickens Co., Miss; d 29 May 1912, Cowley, Big Horn, Wyoming; dau of Moses PEARSON and Eliza Jane ADAIR. After the death of David LEWIS, Margaret md (2) Tarlton LEWIS, brother to David. This was not a happy marriage, however, and they were soon divorced. Margaret was a young woman with two children and no visible means of support. The best and most compassionate way to care for her, it seemed to David and Rebecca, was to make her a part of the family. Consequently, 11 Oct 1865, Margaret became the plural wife of David CHIDESTER. To them were born:

The home which John Madison CHIDESTER built in Nauvoo was on an acre plot of land described as block #34 lot 4, located on the northwest corner of the intersection of Hiram and Woodruff Streets. It was in this home, about six months before the city of Nauvoo received its charter, that David, the third son and fifth child of the family was born. David was just four years old at the time of the martyrdom of the Prophet Joseph SMITH. Two years later he was moving with the family across the river to begin the long, tedious journey to the Valley of the Mountains.

The custom of the Saints in their journey was to plant crops along the way. Succeeding pioneers would harvest them. David, at age 11, as adept at tying bundles of grain and had taught his friend to do the same. All the boys in the field made the work interesting by racing down the rows. The first time David and his friend participated in a race they didn't do so well. The second race, they ended about a third of the way down the field; but the third race, they beat the other teams by more than half the way. Making a game out of the back-breaking task got the wheat harvested and there was food in the camp.

The boy grew into manhood during the trip across the plains, the years in Parley's Park and in Salt Lake. Before 1862 he had begun to strike out on his own, for the journal record of Shoal Creek Branch of Hebron Ward, Utah, records:

"To keep all parts of the great work in motion John CHARLES and William PULSIPHER (David's brother-in-law) and David CHIDESTER undertook the herding business and on the 1st of Jan 1862 started out for the mountains with a herd of cattle, sheep and horses. We built a log house and coral about 20 miles north of St. George and wintered there. When spring came we moved on north past the mountain meadows over the rim of the great basin of Deseret, turning west 12 miles to Shoal Creek, a small stream fed by springs that runs a few miles and sinks again. This is about 45 miles from St. George, quite a distance, but the nearest location for a large stock that we could find.

"We had spent considerable time exploring during the winter by advice of Pres. SNOW. It was on the 5th of March that CHARLES and PULSIPHER started with a span of horses and cart to explore Shoal Creek. They located a road, visited the natives, a band of Piutes that inhabited the place, and they expressed themselves well pleased with our coming to live with them. We arrived at this place with our families, flocks and herds on the 27th April, 1862. We were very busy all the season taking care of our flocks in a strange place; for the first year we could hardly get a chance to rest on Sunday. David CHIDESTER started for Salt Lake City on the 14th of June and came back in December, sold out his share in the herd and settled in Washington City with his father."

David had gone to Salt Lake in time to be called officially to the Cotton Mission and had returned with his parents to accept the call. He didn't lose his interest entirely in the Hebron venture and was to return there later.

The summer of 1863 David was called to return to Winter Quarters, Nebr., with a wagon and help some of the Saints to come to Utah. He is said to have been paid for this service with a trunk, a set of dishes, a violin which he could not play and about ten pounds of sugar, a priceless commodity in the territory,

Between March and May of 1866, having acquired a family by this time, David moved to Hebron. The Fourth of July was celebrated in good style that year. Joseph HUNTSMAN fired a formal salute, flags were flown all day; the men enjoyed themselves in a game of ball; the little boys had a military parade. "We enjoyed the good things at several tables in the shape of big dinners. At 2o'clock C. PULSIPHER formed the people in procession and marched to the meeting house with music under the charge of David CHIDESTER."

During these early years in Southern Utah, David served in the armed services for a short time, defending the settlers from Indian attacks. His official service was not long enough, however, for him to receive a pension, but there was almost constant need to protect the people from hostile bands of Indians.

David participated in the erection and operation of a sawmill in Hebron, 1869. Cattle and dairy business remained the chief activity. Many acres of pasture land were fenced and hay was harvested for cattle to produce milk and cheese. The records say: "Besides our herding and building we helped our women some in the dairy business. We made about 3,000 lbs of butter and cheese which helped our friends in St. George to a better living than they would have had without it." David was always a good cheese maker.

In July 1870, J. W. HUNT moved back to Hebron from Clover Valley. David traded property with him and moved his own families to the Valley. Clover and Meadow Valleys, as well as Deseret Springs (now Mesquite) had been settled and farmed by the Mormons and considered part of the territory belonging to their state of Deseret (later known as Utah.) In December of 1870, after David had moved to Clover Valley, surveyors were sent in by the government to determine the boundary line for the new state of Nevada. The line was fixed about 15 miles west of Hebron, leaving these three settlements in Nevada. The new state was heavily in debt so levied heavy taxes on the farm communities. They also endeavored to extract back taxes for the years that those taxes had been paid to Utah. Many of the Mormon settlers moved away rather than pay such unjust assessments. David and his family remained until the latter part of 1875 when they returned to Hebron.

About the year 1881, the family moved again, this time to Leeds, Utah. Pressure against plural families was mounting and David was forced to divide his interests by moving Rebecca and her children to St. George. He now had two families to care for but separated by a few miles. David, Rebecca and Margaret suffered from the persecution heaped upon them by foreign officers, but David refused to desert either family. On 22 Dec 1887, a Thursday, in the Second District Court, (Judge BOREMAN) David CHIDESTER of Leeds was sentenced to six months imprisonment and a fine of $300.00 and costs for Unlawful Cohabitation . The next day he and three other men were imprisoned. His term was served in the old state penitentiary that stood in what is now Sugarhouse Park, Salt Lake City. He said that he would serve his time peacefully if they would let him have all the salt he wanted. During his stay he carved the pieces for a rocking chair with his pocket knife and put the chair together. That chair is still in the family. On 22 June 1888, a Friday, David CHIDESTER and four others named were discharged from the penitentiary.

After the Manifesto was issued by Pres. Wilford WOODRUFF, David gave up his second family. He could no longer visit them although he continued to provide for them.

At the turn of the century the Big Horn basin in Wyoming was opened for settlement. Margaret's daughters and their husbands, along with other Mormon families, moved north to obtain rich, new land. Margaret moved with them and died in Cowley, Wyoming.

The family always raised its own sheep, carded the wool and spun it. They also raised cotton in St. George and made their own clothes . It was hard to get shoes, though, so the children went barefooted. Times were just as hard in St. George as they had been in Hebron. By 1903 David was supporting his family by raising a garden and turkeys.

One hot summer day Leland CHIDESTER, a grandson, visited his grandmother in St. George. Rebecca Ann was fanning herself with her apron and Leland asked her how they could stand the heat. She replied that "when Brigham Young sent people to St. George to establish the Cotton Mission he picked only those who were too green to burn."

About 1907, David and Rebecca moved to Richfield, Ut., where they rented two vacant lots, raised vegetables and sold them. They would dry corn and before they could put it away they would soak it, boil it and eat it. David enjoyed cantaloupes. He would eat them three meals a day as long as they were in season but would not touch them any other time. The last place they lived by themselves in Richfield, David would sit by the hour and peel apples and put them out to dry as long as the apples lasted. The last job that David held was as a night watchman at the Sigurd Gypsum plant.

David loved his grandchildren and would greet them as "You little darlins" when they came to visit, but as soon as home was mentioned he would have their buggy loaded and was pushing them out the door. He would say to Rebecca, "Now, Ma, you know they got to get home to the chores." Later, David and Rebecca gave up their home and went to live for a time with their son Matt in Venice, Ut. David would keep the weeds out of the garden and watered it from an artesian well. He hated to hear a child shriek and would appear out of nowhere and pull its ears.

He was old and grey for a long time and was stooped from arthritis. His hands became so crippled that he could barely pinch a wash cloth between thumb and forefinger, but pinch it he did as he struggled to help Rebecca with the household chores. He did most of the cooking and housekeeping as Rebecca got so that she couldn't get around very well.

A kindly man with a Santa Claus beard, many children thought he really was Santa Claus. Stoop-shouldered and bent with age and hard work he would walk with both arms swinging forward and back simultaneously. He never wore glasses but used a magnifying glass for reading. He had all of his teeth at the time of his death, claiming that they were good because he always used them to crack nuts.

David and Rebecca went briefly to Delta with their son Matt and his family, but returned to Richfield, which was home to them, and lived there with their son David Jr. The last years of their lives, both David and Rebecca were bedridden. Each morning one or the other of them would reach over to see if the other was still there. When found, they would be content.

Added note by grand daughter, Barbara Michaelson:

While living in Hebron and just a few months after losing their first child, they were expecting another baby. It was 1 Nov 1867, and they were living in a log cabin. All through the night while the baby was being born, the family dog barked, snarled and growled. David could not leave Becky to shut the dog up. They supposed that he was barking at a wild animal or something. The next morning when David went to the creek for a bucket of water, he saw all up and down the other side of the creek the tracks of Indians. David and Becky had become the proud parents of a fine baby boy, David Jr. They told him, later, the story of his birth and of their love for the dog who had protected them during that long night.

Joshua Parker CHIDESTER was only eight years of age when he, with his family, crossed the plains to Salt Lake Valley. It was there, at school, that he eventually met Juliette BURGESS who became his wife--she 15 years of age and he 19.

A carpenter and furniture builder by trade, which he learned under the tutelage of his skilled father, he moved his family rather frequently, seeking better working opportunities. He built houses in the summer time and in the winter he made furniture whenever he could. Some of the chairs he built were used in the old Semloh Hotel in Salt Lake City.

During the years in Bear Lake Joshua also carried mail and supplies over the Shoshone Indian Trail between Bear Lake and Logan, Utah, traveling in the winter on snow shoes over the rugged mountain terrain. He thus established the first line of communication between the two communities.

He had a reputation for being a great speaker and could speak well on any subject, although he preferred religion. At one time some friends challenged him to speak extemporaneously on a subject of their choice. He accepted the challenge and, as he rose to address the congregation, he was handed a peice of paper.

"My friends," he said, "I am here tonight according to agreement to preach from such a text as these gentlemen might select for me. I have it here in my hand. I don't wish you to become offended at me, for I am under promise to preach from the text selected; and if anyone is to blame, I knew nothing of what text they would choose. But of all texts this is my favorite one. You see, the paper is blank." He there-with proceeded to preach a sermon on "Blank and the Gospel."

During their early years the family went through Indian troubles and had to be on guard at all times. One night while Joshua was away on business, Juliette heard sounds outside the house that sounded like marauding Indians. She took the gun down, went to the door and shot into the darkness. Next morning there was a trail of blood that had been left by a fleeing Indian.

While working in a sawmill, Joshua had the misfortune to cut the fingers off one hand. The wound did not heal very readily and the pain was intense. A physician advised that he take his mind off the pain by studying mathematics. Having always been an avid student, he took up the study and soon became an expert mathematician. During this time of healing he also attended the Brigham Young Academy in Provo and taught school in the city. He also taught in the communities south of Provo and in Kanosh, Ut.

The children were still quite young when Juliette became critically ill with consumption and doctors advised there was nothing more they could do for her. It was winter time, but her faith was such that she knew that if the men would cut the ice from the river and baptize her there that she would get well. At her insistence it was done. She survived.

During the latter years of his life Joshua was stricken with cancer of the stomach. The last year he lived in Manti, Ut., where he built harnesses and spent a great deal of time in the Manti Temple.

After Joshua's death Juliette moved to Wayne Co., where her brother and two of her married children lived. When a child, she had the misfortune to have lye spilt in one eye. Of course, it took the sight of that eye and left her handicapped to an extent. In spite of this, she was a fine seamstress. She liked to embroider and to make beautiful quilts. To support herself and her two minor sons she spun yarn and knit garments from the wool the boys were able to gather.

About 1899 Juliette went to Huntington, Ut., to take care of her invalid father, William BURGESS, who had become bedfast with rheumatism, caring for him until he died. She then md (2) Zenos Wing DODGE and moved with him to Mesquite, Nev., where they raised a large garden and made yearly trips to Utah to sell the produce. In 1903 they moved back to Thurber (Bicknell) Ut., for a short time, leaving there at the invitation of Juliette's three sons who had taken up homesteads on the Reservation in Duchesne Co., Ut. The boys built her a house and provided for her there until her death in 1917.

Esther CHIDESTER was a very young child when she crossed the plains with her family. She grew up during the hard, hungry pioneering years in Spanish Fork and Parley's Park, Utah, and was living in Salt Lake City, a girl of 15 years, when a neighboring boy courted her. Small and winsome, she was mature for her years. Pioneer life had made her so.

William PULSIPHER, eight years her senior, had been called by the prophet Brigham Young, to go to Southern Utah as a missionary to explore and settle the country. He was reluctant to leave as a single man for he didn't know when he would be able to come back. Besides he was in love with Esther. He proposed marriage to her but she thought she was too young to leave her parents so far behind. Anyway, she wasn't quite ready to take on the responsibilities of married life in so primitive circumstances. William persisted, finally taking her on his knee and telling her that he would not let her go until she consented. He also promised that if she would say yes that he would never go into polygamy. At this, she capitulated and the young couple was married in the Endowment House with Esther's father, John Madison Chidester (a former Branch President of Spanish Fork,) performing the ceremony.

For a time in Southern Utah their home was the covered wagon in which they had made the trip south. Esther cooked their meals on a camp fire. Often she would ride with her husband as he cared for the cattle they had accumulated; then again, she was left to her own devices at camp. These times were hard for her, and frightening, for there was the ever-present threat of Indians who, although they were not war-like, were still a problem. They had no conception of the meaning of private property and would take anything they fancied.

Realizing her fear, William made a pact with the chief that during his absence no Indian would molest the young woman, saying that she was afraid of them. He gave the chief a pony and saddle to bind the bargain. Not many days later as Esther was working in the wagon she heard an Indian singing, "Wait For the Wagon and We'll all take a Ride." Frightened, she quickly covered herself with a blanket and lay still hoping that he would go away. As he continued to stay by the fire outside, Esther finally concluded that the best thing to do was to pretend that she was not frightened and see what would happen. She left the wagon and went to sit on the opposite side of the fire from the Indian. In a little bit the Indian got up and came to sit beside her and began telling her the Indian names of various objects.

When William returned the Indian said, "You say your squaw afraid. She no afraid, she brave." After that he came every day to converse with her and teach her his language. From this beginning Esther became fluent in the Ute, Piute, Navajo, Mexican and Spanish languages.

After they had built a cabin, probably in Hebron, Esther had another experience that frightened her. William was away and she was alone with the children. A tribe of Indians surrounded the cabin. Some got up on the roof and beat tom-toms, damaged the roof and made wild noises. Esther got her pistol, loaded it and started for the door, intending to shoot if necessary. She was an excellent marksman and would not have missed her target. Suddenly the disturbance ceased and she felt sure that someone was approaching. Sure enough, William had been warned of impending trouble and had returned home. He grabbed the first brave he could reach and jounced him up and down on a pile of rocks, continuing until the brave begged for mercy. William's superior strength earned him the respect and love of the natives.

William was a shrewd business man and fearless in all his transactions. Soon, he owned ranches near Hebron, Clover Valley, and Beaver Dam, Nevada. For a time he had mining interests in Pioche, Nevada, but eventually sold them without realizing anything for them. There was a fine home in St. George where the family lived in the winter time, but the summers were spent on one of the ranches where they made butter and cheese for sale.

The first sewing machine in the country was a Howe which William bought for his wife. She became very proficient in its use and when her husband was away on business she would do sewing for others, making suits, hemming yards of ruffles. When paid for the work she would exchange the money for $2.50 gold pieces which she kept in a little box.

Esther and William loved to go to Salt Lake City for the conferences there, taking a week each way over "the worst roads in this country," said Esther. Each night they made a bonfire and had a hot supper and the next morning there would be a hot breakfast. During conference they camped close to the tabernacle area.

A mid-wife tended Esther at the birth of each of her children. When the fourth one was to be born Esther had been sick for 36 hours. Her father-in-law, Zera PULSIPHER, worried about her condition, covered her body by pulling her night clothes down over her feet, then taking her by the feet, stood her on her head, shaking her vigorously. Then he laid her down and said, "There, my girl, you will be all right." It was not long until the baby was born.

A prevalent practice among the poor Indian tribes of Utah and Colorado was to sell their children, usually to traders along the old Spanish Trail. Normally the traders took these children to California or Mexico where they sold them into slavery. After the Mormons settled the area, many of the children were purchased by Mormon families who raised them and, when they reached their majority, gave them a dower to begin life with. Sometimes the first one to obtain the child wouldn't be able to keep him and would in turn be re-imbursed for the purchase price by another family.

While the Pulsipher children were still small, William purchased a little six-year-old girl from a family that had not been able to care for her. Her hair was matted to her head, her clothes dirty and unkempt. The night that he brought little Susan home, Esther bathed her, cut her hair and cleaned her, then sat up during the night to make new clothes for the child. Little Susie was so happy about the new circumstance that she looked into Esther's face and said, "Are you going to be my new Mother? Please don't let anyone ever take me away!" As she grew up she became a good cook and her services were welcome everywhere. She remained in St. George when the family moved north.

In a like manner, Amos was obtained and raised by the Pulsiphers.

In the spring of 1875 William was called on a mission to the Pacific Islands. He had a great deal of property but not much ready cash. The family did not consider that he wouldn't go. Esther got her cash box out and turned over the accumulated gold pieces for him to use. He was gone for a period of only eight months for he was sick most of the time and had to be released. In the meantime Esther took care of the many family interests. Her sister Eunice had been widowed so Esther invited her to come and stay with her, for she was to give birth to another child soon and would need help. There was no one Esther trusted more than she did this older sister.

William arrived home 16 Dec 1875; the baby was born the next day.

Back home William quickly recovered his strength and soon was again riding the range. Along the old Spanish Trail bandits were as much a problem as were the Indians and they had hideouts in the wild southern mountains. Indians and outlaws alike respected this fearless man. One day when he and Jacob HAMBLIN were riding at the mouth of a big canyon they saw five Indians on the war path. William had a gun called a

"needly" gun. You could touch a lever or spring and three long spears would come out, one on each side of the barrel and one straight out the center. William worked it so fast that it frightened the Indians. They wanted to examine it, but William said he would show it to them. To Jacob HAMBLIN he said, pointing to the Indians:

"I'll get this one and this one and that one with the gun and the next one with my dagger. You take care of the other one." The Indians left and didn't bother the men again.

William would trade horses to the Indians for pine nuts and buckskin. There were always plenty of nuts for the family and Esther made clothes out of the buckskin.

Ben TASKER was a noted outlaw of the area. He and his gang had a hideaway in the southern mountains. From there they would steal anything they could get--from household goods to cattle and horses. William was a thorn in the side of the lawless gang. He was fearless in his pursuit of them and was instrumental in having a number of them arrested.

Once, when he and Esther had been out to obtain berries for canning, he saw a dust ahead and knew that the Tasker gang was driving the horses he had heard about having been stolen. He got down from the buggy and prepared to mount the saddle pony he always took with him, instructing his wife to drive home alone while he went after the thieves. Esther, realizing the danger he would be placing himself in, also dismounted from the buggy and refused to move a step until he came along. She knew it would be foolish for him to try to capture the desperadoes by himself.

As they neared St. George she finally said that she would drive on alone provided he would ride the pony into town and get help. This he did and the thieves were captured. One of the captured men swore that this would be the last time Bill Pulsipher would ever arrest him for he would kill him the first chance he got.

Ben TASKER felt the same way and sent word to William that he would be killed on sight. William didn't know what TASKER looked like so decided to find out. He had been riding the range one day. It was late. Bill was tired and found himself close to Deseret Springs (Mesquite) in an area known to be close to the Tasker ranch. He rode up to the ranch house, tethered his horse, then approached and knocked on the door.

A man who was known to Bill, opened the door. In amazement, he said, "What are you doing here? Are you acquainted with Tasker?"

"That is my business here," said Bill. Leading him through the room filled with men, the man took Bill to the far end and said,

"Mr. Ben TASKER, allow me to make you acquainted with Mr. William PULSIPHER."

Bill said, "Mr. Ben TASKER, I understand that you are going to kill me on sight."

"Oh, no," said the wary Ben, "I wouldn't do that. You are my best friend. You keep my animals from being stolen."

A good supper was ordered and a bed made for the visitor. Tasker made it a point to place his gun and scabbard on a cupboard--the first time he had ever been known to be separated from them. William laid his own weapons beside them, saying that he was not in the habit of carrying them except out on the range.

The man who knew William slept with him that night. William was so tired that he was soon fast asleep. During the night he had a nightmare that caused him to utter a terrible yell. The household awakened and was nervous. Bill asked pardon and promptly fell asleep again but Tasker was sure there had been a posse outside and this was a pre-arranged signal. When morning came a good breakfast was served and Tasker took his visitor on a tour of the place, showing him the exceptional storage facilities.

There was one thing William was to regret. He had a difficult time realizing that his sons were growing up. Young William Jr. began keeping company with some young people of whom his father did not approve. William Sr. scolded and threatened and finally gave his son a whipping. Young William would not submit. He left home. The father's intolerance estranged the older boys so that they had gone on their own and were serving other men as cow hands and catching and breaking horses for sale. So it was that, when William succumbed to exposure, contracted pneumonia and died, neither of the boys was there to help Esther to assume the heavy burden of operating so vast a ranching business.

In 1882 Esther applied for a release from the Cotton Mission to which she had been called so many years ago. The two older boys had their own stock and could not help with the ranch, so all property was sold and Esther moved her family to Provo, Ut., where there would be better facility for educating the children.

After she was settled there Willie and John took turns coming to Provo to attend school in the winter time.

Esther bought a large lot in central Provo and ordered a home built. When she moved in with her four little girls, she found the home to be much too big so she turned it into a hotel. For a number of years it was known as the Pulsipher House and was a favorite boarding place for students at the Academy. It was later to be known as the Oxidental Hotel.

Willie came to attend school. Some of his southern friends, thinking to have a little fun, wrote to Dr. Karl G. MAESER and asked him to teach Willie to pray. In a morning assembly Dr. Maeser called on Willie to open with prayer. Willie, seeing no way to escape, arose and began by saying, "Oh, Lord, bless - bless-who?" A girl in the audience called out, "Bro. Maeser." Willie continued, "Brother Maeser, Amen." and sat down. He was asked to pray every morning for a week. He then told his mother that he could now pray with the best.

After her marriage to Mr. SNOW, Esther sold the house in town and moved to Provo Bench where she had farm land surrounding a large house. The children grew up there and attended school, all receiving the fine education their mother had planned for them. It was a great sorrow to her when Willie died so young. He had been her main support and they were very close to each other in those last years. She had won him back completely and they enjoyed being together.

Her home was the central interest of her children. She loved to have the children gather around the old organ and play and sing during the evening. When her sister Eunice was visiting they would enjoy singing the old songs together and reminiscing about their lives in Southern Utah, telling jokes, relating special instances, re-living their times good and bad. Her daughters had the highest regard for her and would care for her all her days. A wonderful wife and mother, and a worthy daughter. Her life's motto: Honesty is the best policy.

A youth of eleven when the family moved to Washington, Utah, and the only child still with the parents, was not a bad situation for young Willard Darwin CHIDESTER. He enjoyed roaming the countryside in search of quail and rabbit for dinner. At that early age he was assisting his father, also, in the carpentry shop and before too long he was going with older brothers to Pine Valley to burn charcoal which was then freighted out to the wool and cotton mills and to Silver Reef Mine to be used in the smelter there.

Willard became most proficient in the latter process which was a matter of delicate timing. A huge mound of green trees was formed by standing the trees close together with the right cover of twigs and green branches to hold the fire in and still allow the whole thing to smoulder for about ten to fifteen days. There would be a walkway toward the center of the mound to be used for inspection trips by someone wearing protective clothing. If the burning was too fast, the air would be cut down to slow the process and allow the fire to seep through the green logs to complete the burning throughout the mound. At the completion of the task the fire would be extinguished either by spraying the fire with water or throwing soft dirt on it. It took skill to regulate the burning process and recognize the point of completion so that the residue would be charcoal and not ashes.

The untimely death in childbirth, of his lovely young wife was a great tragedy to this sensitive young man. For several years he went listlessly about the business of living, not being able to content himself at any one thing or in one place. Mostly, he did freighting, hauling goods to the railroad and bringing other goods back to the people of southern Utah. Some times he hauled rock salt from St. Thomas, Nev., to the Silver Reef Mine above St. George. The salt was used as a flux in the smelting process. And he burned charcoal.

Eventually he was attracted to young, lively Caroline GUBLER, and after their marriage life took on new meaning. The assets of the young couple were very limited, consisting of a few peices of furniture, one span of horses with their patched harness and a second hand wagon, but they were young and their hopes were high.

Willard settled down to farming and soon had a five acre tract of land on the south side of the Virgin River where he produced five crops of alfalfa each year. There was a garden and orchard on the north side of Washington and there were ten prosperous, happy years.

The growing family soon began to demand greater assets and soon Willard was augmenting his income by freighting again. By this time he had sons who were old enough to take along for company and help. How the boys enjoyed those times, camping out with their Father, having the chance to see trains and even be lifted up into the cab to see how it worked!

Then came the time when reports of free land and greater opportunity in Idaho enticed the family to move. The decision made, the family began to dispose of all they owned except for the necessary items that would be packed into two wagons. Besides the two teams and wagons, there was a saddle pony that was to be kept saddled each day of the trip and used for scouting the way. There was also a 22 calibre rifle attached to the saddle to meet emergencies or provide extra meat for the meals on the way.

The trip was begun 1 May 1902. The long, dreary journey was nearly all in desert country and was to take a month. At Wells, Nevada, the family ran out of bread that had been baked before they left Washington. Willard sent into town and bought some "store" bread. It was so light and spongy and tasted so different from the bread they had always had that the children marvelled. Somewhere along the way they were also treated to some store candy, the first they had ever had that was not made at home out of honey or molasses. That was a real treat to the starry-eyed children.

When the Snake river was reached it was found that they must cross it by ferry just above the Shoshone Falls. The ferry would accommodate the two wagons, but they were so heavily loaded with stuff packed on the outside as well as the inside that the ferryman had difficulty shutting the gate. He refused to move until he had devised a way to anchor the wagons sufficiently that he could close the rail, saying that he had tried to take a chance once and had lost a wagon that was swept over the falls. He wouldn't take a chance again.

It was 2 June, 1902 when the weary family pulled into Carey, Idaho and camped that first night. When Bishop Cyrus J. STANFORD, with whom Willard had corresponded concerning the Idaho prospects, learned who the travelers were, an invitation was sent to the family suggesting that they enjoy the evening meal in the Bishop's home. What a treat that was to people who had been camping for a month! Fresh strawberries and cream and delicious vegetables fresh from the garden.

The first three years in Carey, Willard and his sons operated a farm on shares. Then they took up a homestead of their own, which they proved up on and seemed to be well established at last. To be prepared to meet a threatened drought the entire valley was bonded to build a reservoir on Fish Creek. Drought came, all right, but the reservoir never filled. The Chidesters, along with many others, lost their entire investment and had to move back into town. Fortunately, by this time, the children were old enough to obtain jobs and help defray family expenses. The oldest son was dead, but the next in age obtained good employment and the next taught school one year and then went into a bank job.

In 1911 Willard and his wife, Caroline, and youngest daughter, Christa, accompanied the third daughter, Laverne and her husband Oscar L. JOHNSON, to Deweyville, Utah to attend a family reunion. They visited many of their friends and relatives, some of whom they had not seen in all the years they had lived in Idaho. Brother David and his wife were there and many others from the south.

Again in 1917, they were able to attend a reunion, this time in Richfield, Utah. It was October. The harvests were in and everyone could take the time to visit. On his return to Idaho, Willard expressed his pleasure in the trip. It was the finale to his life of hard knocks and varied experience. He died suddenly, 8 Nov 1917.

Adelbert Byron Chidester's great regret was that the early death of his father prevented him from continuing the long line of doctors to which he was born. He obtained an education through high school at various places in Syracuse and Watertown, N.Y., finally settling on Genesee St., Syracuse, where he went to work carrying staves to men who were making salt beds. After a bit he worked for Dr. Merrit B. FAIRCHILD nights and morning, tending the horse and cleaning the office.

In 1883 he went to Rome, N.Y., to work for his uncle, David Jerome WIGGINS, who had a furniture store and was an undertaker. After a time he returned to Syracuse where he obtained employment with Austin K. HOYT, the leading undertaker of the city.

His next job was at the YMCA as the first assistant general secretary for the new building under Rev. A. S. DURSTON, the general secretary in Saugerties, 1888. By 1895 he was back again in the furniture and undertaking business. He served the town of Lyons, Syracuse and Dexter for twenty-eight years.

He was a charter member of Dexter Lodge, A.F. and M., chapter at Sackett Harbor. His wife, Mary Hale CHIDESTER, was active in the Order of Eastern STAR at Syracuse and member of White Shrine of Jerusalem in Watertown, N.Y. Both were devout Methodists.

Adelbert had a great love for his family and kept a journal record of every member, turning it over to his son Augustus. He loved his children and when six year old Ruth died he expressed his love and grief by writing:

"Ruth, a precious little darling whom the Lord loved and took to his loving bosom April 18, 1898. Oh, how can we spare you, Ruthie, our dear, precious darling! You are safe in the arms of Jesus and never feel the sins and hardships of this life. You walk the streets of gold and those feet step along so pretty and that happy face beams with praises to the Lord. We will have to come to you. God keep us pure that we may, dear Ruthie, lovely Ruthie." Written 8 Aug 1901

John Foy CHIDESTER was a lad of ten when he moved with his parents to Washington, Ut. There were no doubt times when he went hungry in that harsh land but the resiliency of youth carried him through the growing-up years. The family was close-knit, working together in every venture. They were a fun-loving family, too, and always found challenging things to be involved in and to enjoy.

It could have been the violin that his Uncle David brought home from his wagon train call that inspired John to learn to play that instrument. He was a natural born musician and learned to play his "fiddle" very well. He may have had some training but in the main he was self-taught. His musical gift and his ready wit made him a favorite in all surrounding communities as well as at home and as he grew into manhood he organized a band and played for weekly dances around the countryside. In the summer time the favorite dance spot was in the open air on the old Shinarump ledge. This huge rock, out by the Virgin river had been worn flat and smooth by the flailing of the grain harvest each year. Eventually it would lose its recreational allure as it was flooded by the waters backed up from the dam John's father built, but for many years it was a spot of fun and relaxation.

As a youth John worked hard on the farm and in the cotton factory, taking advantage always of every opportunity for education. He did not have a chance to go away to college but he read everything he could find and became a well educated man.

His first marriage was to Mary NICOLL, a girl who had grown up in the same community, daughter of pioneer parents. The ceremony was performed by his father, John Peck Chidester, who was a member of the Bishopric of Washington Ward. The young couple went to Clover Valley to make their first home, farming there for a few years until the territory was claimed by the state of Nevada. When they moved back to Washington they were a family of three, their first child having been born in Clover Valley. Eventually they purchased the Nicoll home, Mary's parents having accepted a call to settle what came to be known as St. Johns, Arizona.

They were very happy in this home and seemed to be well on the way to prosperity. John was elected to be constable of the county and proved to be a most efficient and dedicated officer of the law. Mary worried about him when he was away on dangerous missions but John thrived on the work and began to acquire a taste for law and order that would shape his life.

He was relentless in his search for "bad men, of whom there were a number. One time he pursued a a Mexican desperado. Catching up with him, a scuffle ensued and John received a serious dagger wound in the abdomen. He secured the man and while taking him to jail, had to hold the edges of his own wound together to keep his vital organs from protruding. It took a while to recover from that episode!

All court trials for the southern part of the territory were held in Beaver, Ut., quite some distance from Washington. If he had a prisoner being held for trial it was John's duty to transport such prisoner to Beaver. At these times he would take his team and wagon, load up provisions for man and beast, and be gone from home for a week or two.

In Dec. 1882, as he was returning home from one of these trips, he was met by a messenger who informed him of the serious illness of his wife. Lovely Mary had never been really robust and at this time was carrying their fourth child. Now she was ill with pneumonia. In his anxiety for his wife, John decided that wagon travel was too slow. He tied one horse to the wagon, gave him an ample supply of food and water, mounted the other horse and raced for home. He would send someone else back to get the rest of his outfit.

With the tender care that John and his mother, Susan Foy Chidester, gave to Mary, she was able to improve sufficiently to complete the term of her pregnancy. But in January, still weak from pneumonia and the ordeal of giving birth, she passed away.

John was beside himself with grief. His mother took care of him and the older children and a sister, Lodema Chidester Ruby, took the baby to nurse with her own child.

Time has a way of dulling the pain of such sorrow and eventually John began to take an interest in law and studied in earnest. This interest led him over the hills to Panguitch, Utah, where he met a fine young woman who promised to love him and be a mother to his four children. They were married in the St. George Temple and the family moved to Panguitch where John could continue his legal studies.

The move was a difficult one for the older children. They did not want to leave the home they had loved and the memories of their mother. They didn't want to leave gentle, sweet Grandma Chidester who had taken Mother's place. There would be some friction between them and the girl who was to raise them, but John insisted that his family should be "one" and be with him. Soon they all adjusted to the new situation.

Making law his vocation, John read Kent, Blackstone and other commentaries and came to be known as one of the best versed men in law in the state of Utah. He was admitted to practice before the Utah bar in 1885. Later he was admitted to practice before the Supreme bench of the state.

Early in the year 1889, John was called to go on a mission for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, to serve in the Southern States. He was to travel without purse or script and his family would have to be self-supporting. He and Almina were expecting their third child and there were four older children.

Almina moved to Panguitch Lake and worked on a ranch there making butter and cheese on shares.

The times were hard for them, Many times the children cried with hunger, but they managed to survive and at times she could even send a small amount of money to John. The children learned to appreciate the sterling worth of this girl who had taken on such heavy responsibilities.

Life in the mission was equally hard for the young man. At one time he and his companion were without food for three days. John received twenty-five cents from his wife and with that the two men bought a watermelon and made it last for another three days. There were times when he and companion had to leave a house by the back door and hide in corn fields to avoid mob action.

Called to come to headquarters for a conference, the two missionaries wondered how they could do it in the time allotted. They had no money for transportation and the distance was too great to walk. They retired to a grove of trees and knelt in prayer. A sheriff came up and arrested them for, he said, the robbery of a post office and murder of the postmaster, saying that the two men fit the description given by witnesses to the crime. After a day or so in jail, the sheriff released them saying that the real culprits had been found. To compensate for the false arrest, he gave them money for a railroad ticket to any place they would name. They got to their conference.

Returning home, John continued his law practice and was a veteran lawyer of about ten years experience when the territory became a state and John was caught up in all the problems of creating a new state. He was a member of the Constitutional Convention and while there made a determined effort in behalf of women's suffrage and other progressive measures. Afterward he was elected senator from Garfield County to the first general assembly in Utah in 1896, where he participated in the formulation of public policy and interests.

After his term expired he was elected district attorney for the sixth judicial district, which position he held for a number of years. He was a recognized leader of the Republican party, serving as the first chairman of Garfield County. In 1902 he was appointed Judge of the sixth judicial district and later was elected to that office, which he held for ten years. During this time he had only one decision ever reversed - that of a negro for murder. He was then acting in place of a judge from Salt Lake who had been disqualified. Some time later the original decision was honored.

In 1912 he was appointed to the state land board, holding that position until his death. One commentary said, "Throughout the entire period of his course was marked by the most earnest devotion to duty -- a devotion that manifested itself in close study of every vital situation or problem and unfaltering effort to bring about the best results for the commonwealth."

His church activity was equally as impressive. Besides his mission, he served as Sunday School superintendent and as high councilman. He was called to travel for a time throughout the southern part of the state to teach and encourage the adoption of the Mutual Improvement Organization, for the benefit of the youth of the Church.

He built a large home in Panguitch, which became a community center in the town. He also lead out in the developing of Panguitch Lake as a recreational resort. He maintained a cabin there; built a race track and dance hall and sponsored civic events for every holiday.

By 1906 the beautiful home in Panguitch had been turned into a hotel and Judge Chidester moved his family to Richfield where he owned a large farm. His home there became the gathering place of the Chidester clan that had by this time divided and moved to various places in Utah and Idaho. It was then that he originated the custom of meeting in family reunions. Being the oldest son of an oldest son, he had kept the genealogical record that his father and grandfather had begun, and continued the research. He spent part of each year in St. George for that purpose. He thoroughly believed, also, that a family should be kept together, know each other and enjoy themselves. At these reunions there was always plenty of food, lots of laughter and general love and camaraderie. One year it would be held at John's home. He and his wife would cook and prepare well ahead. Beds would be made everywhere. The next year it would be held in Deweyville, Utah, so all the folks up north would be sure to come. At that time he would do all he could to see that the folks down south were able to get there.

An evaluation of him, quoted from the book, "Utah Since Statehood.":

"He was a man of jovial, kindly disposition, who easily made friends by reason of his sterling personal worth and always retained their warm friendship and regard. He was steadfast and honorable, kindly and helpful and his enemies and political opponents never once, even in the heat of party politics, questioned his integrity. He was charitable to a degree but without ostentation, and so quietly were his good deeds performed that oftentimes none knew of them save himself and the recipients. He was every inch a man and one in whose death southern Utah lost a most valuable citizen, the bar an illustrious member and many poor families a generous friend. It has been said, 'Not the good that comes to us but the good that comes to the world through us is the measure of our success,' and judged by this standard, John Foy CHIDESTER was a most successful man."

Susan Emma CHIDESTER, a Sketch by Herself.

I was born 2 Dec 1857, in Spanish Fork, Utah. . .
the daughter of John Peck and Susan Foy CHIDESTER.

My father was out in Echo Canyon at the time Johnston's Army was coming to Utah to get rid of the Mormons. Shortly after that we moved to a place called Parley's Park, then back to Salt Lake City. In 1861 my Father was called to take his family and help settle Dixie in southern Utah. Here we made our home, living in Washington, Ut. I remember many of the hardships the pioneers went through in those early days. I was taught to spin and weave cloth, made candles and colored cloth with the roots that grew around there. At the age of fifteen I was chosen a teacher in the Sunday School in Washington Ward. I was married on Mar. 22, 1875, to George Carlos DEWEY, at Washington, Ut; and that summer we lived on what was called the cotton farm. My husband had been called on a mission to Dixie to raise cotton.

In the fall he was released and we went to Deweyville and staid one year. Our first child was born there. We later went back to Washington.

I was chosen secretary of the Relief Society shortly after our return. Was also counselor in the Primary and President for two years.

We moved back to Deweyville and my husband was called to be Bishop of Deweyville Ward. I was chosen counselor in the Relief Society, which position I held with different presidents until I was called to work on the Bear River Stake Relief Society Board. I was also chosen first Superintendent of the Religion Class in Deweyville. This was in 1906 or 1907.

After being released from the Relief Society Board I spent twenty-one months in Los Angeles at the home of my daughter, Mrs. M. L. Sandall. I then spent two years in Caliente, Nevada, taking care of an aged aunt."

In addition to raising a family and doing the things she told about, Susan spent a great deal of time caring for the sick. She died at the home of her sister, Mrs. Andrew SPROUL, in Washington, but was returned to Deweyville for burial.

Lodema Chidester RUBY assisted other members of the family in the work of the cotton factory in Washington and in the culture of silk worms, learning all the skills necessary to life in a pioneering community. After her marriage she became a practicing mid-wife, which service she performed for many years. Because she was willing, in 1883, to wet-nurse her brother's motherless child, along with her own infant, she saved the life of Mary Aseneth CHIDESTER.

Amasa RUBY was postmaster in Washington from 1905 to 1909.

While there she spent a great deal of time doing genealogical research, concentrating on her mother's family.

Returning to Utah, Peggy took a beauty course and eventually opened a shop of her own in Midvale, Ut. Her free time was spent in visiting elderly relatives, giving shampoos, permanents, waves and doing whatever else she could to bring comfort and peace to those she visited.

Our lovely Peggy!

Myron A. CHIDESTER learned to play the violin when he was a youngster. He was witty, too, and when things got dull in the old cotton factory in Washington, Myron could be depended on to liven things up. With his older brother, John Foy Chidester, he had an orchestra and was in great demand at all socials, not only in Washington, but traveling to neighboring communities.

All of southern Utah regretted his decision to move away, but the time came when he decided to look for greater opportunity elsewhere and moved to Deweyville, Ut, up north, where he established a fine farm and soon had another circle of friends to delight with his music.

Sarah Ann Jackson, his wife, came to Utah with her mother in 1869. Her father had died in England while serving a mission for the church. The ocean crossing was made in the old sailing vessel, "Constitution." She was just five years old at the time but remembered vividly all the experiences of crossing the plains by ox team.

Emeline was a twin, born and raised in Washington, Ut. With her mother and sisters she spun and wove wool into clothes for the family until the cotton factory was built. Then she spent a great deal of time working in the mills. She had the experience of raising silk worms and winding the precious floss into skeins. She frolicked with her brothers and sisters at home and in the civic affairs.

When Samuel Hood Murray STEWART came to town it wasn't long until she fell in love and was married to him.

Samuel had been studying to be a Catholic Priest in his Scottish homeland when he heard the missionaries. He listened to their message and joined the Church, whereupon his parents disowned him. He left Scotland with an Elder MATHESON and migrated to Parowan, Ut. He worked there and in Cedar City, then because of his early scholastic training, became a school teacher and was hired to teach in Washington.

In April 1888, Samuel was called to be a missionary in the Northwest Mission. While he was gone Emeline supported herself and child by making hats for sale, sewing for others and taking care of the post office. On special holidays she made ice cream to sell.

Before he was released from his mission, Samuel was called to serve in the Washington Ward bishopric. Later he ran for the state senate but lost by a few votes. He served as justice of the peace in Washington.

After his untimely death, Emeline married Joseph SYLVESTER, a widower, and lived in Pintura and Toquerville, enjoying the opportunity to raise her family in the peace of a farm.

Eveline CHIDESTER was always aware of and interested in her family. As a youth she helped her father and older brother with the records and research. It was only natural that when her brother, John F. Chidester, passed away, that she should take the records over and really become the family center. For many years and at her own expense, she researched and added to the store of family knowledge.

Her home in Washington was also a social center of the town. Andrew Sproul was musically inclined and for many years was the best choir director in in all of southern Utah. The family was a gifted one and their talents and ready wit enlivened every civic and church activity.

In the settlement of the John Peck Chidester estate, the old Chidester home in Washington came into the possession of Lucinda Jane. The land had been divided among the other children, but this youngest of the family was the last to live in the home. In later years her children had the place remodelled so that there was an indoor toilet and shower bath; a sink in the kitchen with running water there. Other than that the place remained the same, the walls and attic whispering the stories of family fun and solidarity. No doubt Lucinda remembered with tenderness the times when she climbed to the attic to tend the silk worms housed there, or raced to the cotton mill to set the looms to work. She and James were content to remain in Washington to keep alive the legend of the Chidesters.

Oliver John HARMON, as a youth, walked five miles each way to go to school in St. George, Ut; He exhibited such a desire for an education that one of his teachers offered him the chance to attend school in Beaver for two years, working out his tuition, board and room. His father died when he was but fourteen years old and he had to assume part of the responsibility of supporting the family. He didn't get to Beaver.

In 1879 he was apprenticed to Mr. Joseph JUDD to learn the trade of cabinet-maker, serving there for two years until his marriage to Almira TERRY. The young couple built a small house in Washington, living there for two years before moving to Provo, Ut., in 1883. Oliver took a few music lessons and learned to play the piccolo. He enjoyed playing for his children and they enjoyed listening.

In 1885 he decided to move to Huntington, Ut, a new area that was beginning to be settled. His worldly possessions consisted of one Singer sewing machine, one Charter Oak cook stove, one wooden bed, a few dishes, one hundred pounds of flour; cash on hand amounted to $2.50.

Arrived in Huntington, they found a community consisting of eleven small log houses, two rough lumber shanties and a few dugouts. When Almira saw what they had come to she cried as though her heart was broken. She plead with her husband to return to Washington where their house had not yet been sold. But Oliver talked her into staying for three years to give it a chance before returning to Washington.

The log houses were roofed with slabs or small poles on which a layer of willows was placed and then covered with a heavy layer of dirt. Many times the heavy rains caused leaks all over the inside.

Three days after their arrival Oliver took sick with rheumatism and lay helpless for the next four months. During this sick spell one of the discouraged settlers who owned a half block on which he had built one of the frame shanties, loaded his family in a wagon and left, returning to Washington. When he got there he traded his property in Huntington for the Harmon home in Washington.

In the fall of 1887, Don ROBBINS came to Huntington trying to promote the mining of coal. He became very friendly with Oliver and the two soon bought out a small furniture store, with Oliver taking over the task of building the furniture for sale. Some of the first coal to be mined in the area was first burned in the Harmon cook stove. Besides the furniture business, Oliver pioneered in the planting of an orchard and soon had fruit of all kinds for his own family use and some for sale.

Oliver's mother, Eunice Chidester HARMON, came to live with him in 1888. She set up a millinery and confectionary store in a small corner of the furniture store. Later, Oliver built her a little place of her own.

In 1890, the WHITNEY brothers had the "Colorado" fever and sold out. Oliver became the new assistant manager of their business, which became the Huntington Co-op Store, owned by the town. Oliver began buying stock as fast as people wanted to sell; he was now making a wage of $60.00 per month, which was more than ample to sustain his family. He was doing well enough that in 1893 he was able to build a two story brick home and at last keep his growing family in style.

Shortly after he became manager of the Co-op Store, Oliver's partner in the furniture store accused him of falsifying the records. A Bishop's trial was called. By use of a small magnifying glass Oliver was able to prove that ROBBINS had scratched out the HARMON figures in the books and written over them to falsify them. Robbins confessed, the trial ended, and so did the Harmon-Robbins partnership.

In 1894 the settlers launched a move more effectively to take care of their farm produce. A mill company was organized with Oliver Harmon as one of the men to do the construction work, taking stock as part pay. Water power was used to operate the mill during the summer and steam power was used during the winter. Oliver gradually acquired additional stock and became Mill Manager.

About 1895 a company was organized in Price to build a telephone line from Price to Ferron. A station was put in the store at Huntington and Oliver also extended a telephone line to the mill and to his home. He continued to manage the Huntington Co-op and to buy stock in the business.

In 1899 he was called on a mission to the Central States. He wrote to his older brother, Levi, who came to purchase some stock and take over the management of the store and mill. By the time of Oliver's return the two brothers held the controlling interest in both the store and the mill. Levi took over the management of the store and Oliver retained the mill. Eventually, together, they built a store in Price, Ut; sold out in Huntington and moved to Price.

This latest venture did not turn out so well. Levi was elected to the state legislature and Oliver opened a store in near-by Wellington to which he commuted daily.

Oliver served his community as Justice of the Peace; was appointed president of the first school board in Carbon County; filled a term as Emery County commissioner; worked continually in church organizations, as member of a bishopric and stake high council.

In 1920 he leased the Wellington store and the following year, with his son, opened a carpentry shop, doing contract work, building caskets and other necessary items. After the terrible Castle Gate Coal mining disaster the two men went into the undertaking business, their last major venture.

Trained to be a teacher, Melvin Myron Harmon taught in Leeds and Kanarraville, Ut. The first of the year 1893, both he and his wife were called on a mission to the Sandwich Islands where he taught in the mission school and Alice worked in the mission kitchen and store. Two of their children were born there in Hawaii.

Returning to St. George, Melvin became the manager of the co-op store there and was doing well when he was called on a second mission.

This time Alice and the children remained home. They had acquired a home and a small farm in the Washington Fields. When he came back from Hawaii, Melvin concentrated on his farm and the raising of fruits and vegetables along with hay and grain for the cattle. Fruit was most varied of his crops, consisting of peaches, plums, pears, apricots, pomegranates, figs, grapes and melons. After providing for the family needs the balance was sold along with milk, butter and eggs. That income supported the financial needs of the family until he was appointed to be recorder at the St. George Temple, for which service he received $100.00 per month. He held the post for fifteen years.

All of the children received good educations, hold college degrees and are active in educational circles.

A news item from the Deseret News, 3 July 1897:

"Elder David Chidester of Richfield, returned from Texas in the Indian Territory Mission field this morning, for which part of the country he left home May 11, 1895. He reports the conference in splendid shape with the Elders laboring diligently to promulgate gospel principles. The Texas Conference was opened up June 17, 1893, at which time it was part of the Southern States Mission."

David was a farmer in Richfield and active in the church and civic affairs throughout his life.

Excerpts from a tribute paid to Myrtle Chidester, eldest daughter of the family, written by Elva SORENSEN, 15 Feb 1971:

"Her's (Myrtle's) was a noble life, unselfish, kind, charitable. Her patience, thoughtfulness of others, her sense of duty made her a good friend and neighbor to all.

"In 1906 her mother passed away leaving six children. . .the youngest only five months old. At sixteen, Myrtle assumed the role of mother of the family, all except for the baby who was cared for by the grandparents. She cared for the family in love, trained them well and they love and honor her memory. . She had a gift for sewing and sewed for many people to help with the family expense. I remember how beautifully she dressed Fern, who always was a picture of beauty. She helped Santa Claus dress many dolls in town. Our dolls in those days had kid bodies and china heads. They were lovely and needed new wardrobes every year. Myrtle did hemstitching, quilting, made over little suits for the boys; made bedspreads, curtains and drapes.

"In 1926, twenty years after her mother passed away, she went to Iowa where her sister Fern and her husband lived. Elmo was manager of J. C. Pennney Co., store. Here she worked for two years until she earned enough money to pay off an indebtedness that had occurred because of delinquent taxes. This was a new experience for Myrtle and she enjoyed being with Fern and Elmo who made her time there so happy.

"When she arrived home she found her grandparents both bed patients. She nursed and cared for them until they passed away in 1929. Then for a time she was alteration seamstress for a dress shop in town and worked part time at the court house. During her father's lingering illness she gave him loving care. It was at this time that her brother Roy's daughter came to live with Myrtle. . . .Then Evan, Roy's son lived with her two years, helping her with the chores and yards. Myrtle was very proud of all of these, her children. She was always so happy for their visits, letters, gifts and many acts of love.. .

"A tribute to Roy, who has been so wonderful to Myrtle, doing her shopping, keeping fuel in the house for the heater, taking her on little trips in the car; taking her to church and other meetings, she could not have attended without his help."

James Madison CHIDESTER, more familiarly known as "Matt", was born during the time that Clover Valley was considered part of Washington County, Ut. Later it was to be included in the boundaries of the state of Nevada and the family returned to the St. George area.

The family lived in a number of places when Matt was young, While in Leeds he and his father hauled cord wood for the Silver Reef Mine. In Hebron they tended cattle and farmed. Branching out on his own, Matt went to Delmar, Nevada to work in the mines, but finding that the mine dust was very unhealthy, he returned to work with his father in St. George. It was here, one summer, that he met Sarah Jane Casto who was visiting from Salina, Ut. During that summer, the young people met frequently for picnic outings, usually going to Red Hill where there was a natural spring and shade trees.

After their marriage they continued to live in St. George and it was there that their children were born. Two years after the birth of the last child, Sarah died, leaving a disconsolate husband and four children to mourn her passing.

It was not too long, however, before Matt was fortunate enough to win the consent of Cornelia TERRY and they were married. At this time he was working on Kimberly Mountain in a saw mill so the family moved there for a short time, going from there to Richfield, Ut., where Matt's parents had moved.

Some time between Jan 1910 and Nov 1911 the family moved to Venice, Ut., just a short distance away.

In 1924 Matt moved his family again, this time to Delta, Ut., where he acquired a dry farm. To do so he took out a government loan. For a time things went well, then the great depression came on and Matt, along with many others, was unable to meet his obligations and the farm was lost.

Matt's oldest son, Glen M. was in Salt Lake City running the Economy Coal Company which was located on 22nd South and State St. He offered his father a job if he would move to Salt Lake City.

Matt promptly borrowed a large flat-bed "bee truck" from a neighbor, corraled the cow in an area back of the cab, loaded up his possessions and headed for the big city. His family was quite grown up by this time--the youngest being already in the last half of the first grade, while some of the older ones were married and on their own.

Hauling coal was a very hard job. Coal was the main means of heating of residences as well as businesses. Sometimes it had to be carried in sacks to storage areas that were not accessible by truck. But the depression was on and Matt was really fortunate to have work. The family lived in a house in back of the coal company for quite some time, finally moving across State Street to Wentworth Av into the house that was to be their last home.

Matt may have moved away from the farm, but the love of farming did not leave Matt. He continued to plant a garden in any available space large enough to raise corn, peas, potatoes and one could even find a cantaloupe vine growing among the flowers in the yard. He had chickens and a cow for as long as he could possibly manage the care of them. Even when he was unable to sit on a milk stool he felt he and the cow could work it out "some way ."

He never looked more natural than when dressed in a pair of overalls and carried a shovel in his hand. "Dressing up" for some special occasion, such as Thanksgiving dinner with the family, meant putting on his new overalls and a suit jacket. Then he was ready for anything.

A home loving man, Matt always wanted to be home by dark. He loved to keep his fireplace ablaze and was forever foraging for scrap wood, stumps and any material that would keep it that way. If ever a member of the family had to be up early on a cold winter morning to be to work, he or she could count on "Dad" to be up an hour ahead of time, stoking up the furnace and fireplace to get the house warm before others had to go out in the cold.

There was a large family, but depression or not, they never went hungry. There were not many frills and luxuries but the necessities were always provided for. The home was always open to visiting relatives and friends who were in town for a day or two, and it seemed to the children that there was a constant stream of people to be entertained.

As he grew older and could no longer deliver coal, Matt still kept active working his garden. He also took on the job of walking eleven blocks to Sugar House to work in the Deseret Industries plant, tying bed springs or doing any other task available, then walking home again at the end of the day.

One day he stumbled over a wire fence that was hidden in the garden weeds. This crippled him and he was forced to sit around in his easy chair for a time. He was never again as able to get around as had been. It was then that he began to "grow old." Eventually he contracted pneumonia and was not strong enough to recover. He was buried in the Wasatch Lawn Cemetery, Salt Lake.

Cornelia Terry CHIDESTER, whom everyone affectionately called "Neely", was a wonderful helpmate to her husband. She was mother to a ready-made family in her youth and raised a large family of her own. Both families revere her as mother. She carefully kept a record of each of the children and their families, always encouraging them and loving them. She passed away while on a visit to her youngest daughter. Her body was taken back to be buried by the side of her husband to whom she had been so devoted for so long.

The Chidesters spent most of their lives in Bingham Canyon, Ut., where Lafayette served as sheriff of Salt Lake County. While he was sheriff, he was in the process of arresting some criminals one day and one of them shot him in the leg. Infection set in and the leg had to be amputated. He wore an artificial leg for awhile until it broke. He then made himself a wooden leg out of a cedar post. He always walked with a cane.

He had a great sense of humor and could always tell a funny story to fit any occasion. The following original story illustrates his vivid imagination and quick wit:

A group of men were sitting around one evening bragging about what great teams of horses they owned. Lafe (as he was known by his family and friends) just sat and listened while the stories became increasingly unbelievable. Finally, one man said his horses could out-pull any team there because they had just pulled a very large building several blocks. To confirm his story he turned to Lafe and asked, "Isn't that so, Chidester?"

To which Lafe replied, "Oh, I know that's so because my horses came right behind them dragging the basement!"

The first years of their marriage, Joshua worked at a sawmill in southern Utah. He went hunting one day and his gun exploded in his face and a piece of it entered his forehead. He was very ill for over two years because of this. He continued to have severe headaches although those around him would never know because he was very good natured and never complained.

He and family moved to Altonah, Ut., where he took up farming. As his headaches became more severe he finally went to Salt Lake City and had his head operated on. A steel plate was inserted to relieve the pressure.

He had a pleasing personality and made friends easily. While he was in the hospital recuperating from the operation, he would go from room to room cheering up the other patients. Just a few days before he was to be released he contracted spinal meningitis and died.

Enoch md (2) in 1960, Lois Emily Baker Hastings OLIVER.

A child of nine years at the death of his father, Enoch remembered the hungry years when Father was away teaching school most vividly. Then there were the lean years when even the shool money stopped and all the children had to do everything they could to help the family to survive. The three oldest were married and involved in their own struggles and Juliette, his mother, worked as a seamstress and kept the family together as best she could. It is no wonder, then, that Enoch did not have a chance for a great deal of education, nor did he have the fun of care-free childhood.

By the time he was fifteen, Enoch was hiring out as a farm hand and about that time, too, had gone to Bunkerville, Nevada, to work, where he roomed with another young man on a farm. Despite the long hours of hard work he had developed a keen sense of humor and was somewhat of a practical joker. One night a passing prospector stopped to ask the boys for a night's lodging. The two young men were happy for company and entertained the best they could. For breakfast the next morning, they served the visitor pancakes with sorghum syrup. The prospector ate heartily and expressed his extreme liking for the syrup. The boys decided they would give him some to take along, but could find no container to put it in except the man's pant pockets. Later when they encountered the same prospector, they asked how he had enjoyed the syrup. He said, "Oh, the syrup was fine but it sure ruined my pocket!"

It was probably from such visitors as this that Enoch conceived the idea of doing some prospecting on his own. Leaving the farm he went to Death Valley to try his luck. Talking to another man one evening, the man showed him a ball of clay in which he had hidden his gold dust so that robbers would not be tempted to steal it. Playfully, Enoch grabbed the ball and slung it into a thicket of bushes. Immediately the two men began to search for the ball but it was never found. That night Enoch began to grow up and leave his childish ways.

Acquiring a companion, Enoch went further into the desert to find his fortune. The day came when the two men found that besides their donkey they had only a gallon of water to sustain them. They cast lots to see who should have the water and who would get the donkey. Enoch won the donkey and set out immediately, heading towards Beatty, Nevada. It was pitch dark when he arrived there and he could not find anything so decided to sleep through the night, then make some contact. When he awoke the next morning he found only the dry bones of the former inhabitants. He buried them, then started on the dreary road to Las Vegas. In Las Vegas he learned that people there had become alarmed at the long absence of the two men and had sent a search party out to find them. They found the man who had kept the water - dead.

That was the end of his prospecting days. Enoch returned to Bicknell, Ut., and engaged again in farm activities. There he met and married Martha Mariah HEATH. A wagon had been packed and prepared for the honeymoon and the young couple was to sleep in it after the wedding ceremony, all ready to start out the next morning. A friend, knowing the chivaree customs of the community, suggested that he would trade wagons with them for the night. They agreed and retired with the friend going to bed in their wagon. During the night some young fellows attached ropes to the honeymoon wagon and pulled it far out into the countryside, when to their surprise the friend opened the wagon cover, pointed a shotgun at them and made them re-attach the ropes and return the wagon to its original place.

The honeymoon was spent on the Henry mountains, then they moved to Huntington, Ut., where they remained until 1909, moving then to Myton, Ut., where Enoch engaged in hauling freight from Myton to Price. The round trip of one hundred sixty miles required five days to make it. One winter Enoch and several others made the trip, but when they got to Price, a big snow storm arose. His companions decided to remain in Price until it had cleared up, but Enoch was anxious to get home so started out alone. The conditions were so bad that it took him eighteen days to make the eighty miles. He ran out of feed for the horses so fed them sugar from the freight load. There was a real celebration when he arrived safely in town. The only thing he had to pay for from the load was the red handkerchieves he had cut up to make face masks for himself so that he wouldn't go snow blind.

The following spring Enoch moved his family to Clay Basin, about three miles east of Altonah and four miles north of Bluebell, to homestead a tract of one hundred sixty acres of land. About sixteen acres could be irrigated, the rest dry farm. He installed a big horse-powered threshing unit, with the horses traveling in a circle to make the separators work. At threshing time the farmers would bring their grain to him to be threshed. The women would assemble to do the cooking for the crews. To the children it seemed a grand picnic time. It was good to have those times to remember, though, for by the time spring came there would often not be enough food left to satisfy a growing family and they would have to dig for Indian and Sego roots and snare rabbits.

There were Indian troubles, too. One time when Maria and the children were alone, three squaws and four braves came to the house. The braves started to enter the house while the squaws headed for the garden. Maria cocked an old 44 rifle and told the men she would shoot if they came in. Then she gave the gun to her oldest boy, went out the back door, got a hoe and drove the squaws out of the garden. The Indians left and didn't ever return.

Enoch chewed tobacco, a habit he had acquired in his prospecting days. One spring he was working in the field. The spring season was very short so it was important to make the most of every day. Enoch lost his tobacco one day. He stopped work, took a horse and rode twenty five miles to Myton to get another plug of tobacco. When he got home he began thinking about how foolish he had been. He threw the tobacco out and never again used it!

In 1916 the family moved to Sunnyside, Utah, where Enoch worked in the coal mines until 1918, when they moved back to the farm. That was the winter of the terrible "flu" epidemic. Fortunately none of the family contracted the disease but kept busy doing the chores for the neighbors who suffered from it.

The next summer Enoch and his sons took a job digging a tunnel to the bottom of the lake for the Farmer's Irrigation Company. The lake was right at timber line, 11,000 feet high, and they encountered snow until July 24th. When they left in September it was snowing so hard they could hardly see their way out.

That year, 1919, debts were so heavy that the farm was lost and the family moved to Price where Enoch bought six town lots and pitched tents on them for the family to live in until a house could be built. Eventually he sold four of the lots for enough to pay off the two remaining ones.

Going out of town a ways, Enoch started a lime business by digging a shaft in the side of a big wash, then constructing a chute leading to the bottom of the shaft. Gathering rocks from the side hills, they were rolled into the shaft and burned. Besides this venture, he and boys hauled gravel and sand for builders. During this time he served the city of Price as councilman for twelve years.

Energetic and versatile, Enoch worked hard all the days of his life to support his family and train his sons to be self-supporting and free. A man among men, trained in adversity, always self-reliant.

brother. until about 1898, when they moved to Huntington, Ut.

By the time his mother married Mr. Zenos Wing DODGE and moved them to Mesquite, Nevada, Charles was the only child left at home, the others either married or away working. One time when Mr. Dodge and Juliette took their produce to Utah to sell, Charles was left alone at home. He ran out of food and subsisted on melons until their return a week later.

Charles had a little pony that he rode wherever he went. He always went alone. One time he decided to go to Utah on his pony. He got nearly to Beaver, Ut., when his pony seemed to be shaking. He got off and discovered that it really was an earthquake. The quakes continued for three days so Charles didn't stay there very long. He went on to Bicknell.

About 1903 the family moved back to Bicknell. There Charles met Winnie HEATH and became attracted to her. About 1910 Charles and his brother Joe took a band of Indian ponies out to the reservation (Duchesne Co.,) to sell. They staid there, homesteading some land and beginning farming.

In the meantime Winnie's family had moved to Altonah. She and Charles renewed their acquaintanceship and were married in 1911, in Vernal, Ut. They lived in Altonah for ten years and suffered all the hardships incident to pioneering in that difficult land.

When the "flu" epidemic hit in the fall of 1918, Charles moved his family to Huntington, Ut. The "flu" found them there and in 1919 the entire family suffered from it. Charles had gone to Storrs to work in the coal mine there and came near dying with the "flu" while his family in Huntington was nearly as ill.

September 1, 1919, he took his family, consisting of four children and his wife, to the Manti temple. In 1923, after an extended strike that had closed the Storrs mines, Charles bought a home in Price, Utah, and moved there. For awhile he worked as an auto mechanic, then he went to work for Harry GORDON, traveling in Southern Utah as a buyer of pelts and wool - mostly from Indians. The Indians had a high regard for him and trusted him implicitly.

In 1932, Charles moved his family, now consisting of seven children , to Green River, Ut. While they lived there he operated a service station, a small store and camp cabins, or motel. He also continued to work and travel for Mr. GORDON.

They lived in Green River for nine years, then Charles developed kidney stones to such a degree that he had to be under the constant care of a doctor . Since there were no doctors in Green River, he took his family to Price. He had several operations for stones and finally one kidney had to be removed. He was bedridden for over a year before he died of cancer of the kidneys.

Charles was very good in mathematics. He was interested in geology and was a part owner in a copper mine in Wayne Co., Ut. He loved to travel and was always interested in going to new places and meeting new people. He had a talent for making friends wherever he went. He was very generous and was always helping anyone he could in any way. He was loved by all who knew him.

While living in Green River, Winnie not only operated the motel, but was active in her church, serving as Primary president, Sunday School teacher, Relief Society class leader and a counselor in the genealogy committee.

After her husband's death she continued to live in Price and continued her church activity, serving as counselor and teacher in the Primary, teaching Sunday School and Relief Society. She has traveled all over the western United States and in Mexico. She sings, plays the piano, does oil paintings and has written a book of poems. She has always loved genealogy work and has spent many hours doing research.

On her eightieth birthday, a grandson, James Ray CHIDESTER, took her for her first airplane ride. He was the owner and pilot of the plane. A great thrill for a doting grandmother. She has lived in Salt Lake City since 1949.

It was a lovely place and a recreational spot for many years. Her parents were well enough off always to have the first fancy buggy, the new type wagon, or later, the first automobile. Small in stature, Laura yet had learned to do many things and at the time of her marriage was teaching school.

Having been taught to work hard in the days of his youth, John had become rather self-reliant by the time his mother was moving to Provo. He elected to remain in Southern Utah with his brother Willie, and the two of them rounded up wild horses to break, train and sell. They worked as ranch hands and learned all the tricks of the trade. It was no wonder that he should become a very successful ranch and cattle man who always preferred the wild country to which he was born. Companions on the trail and around the campfire testified to his kindness, unselfishness and genuine worth. Although he elected to leave his family at an early age, he was still a devoted son and went frequently to the north to join the family for all important events.

"We lived in Clover Valley, Nevada, when Father died. He was out riding the range, saw a big band of his horses being driven off and, in spite of very cold weather, he overtook the horses, getting them back on the range. He took a heavy cold which turned to pneumonia. He stopped at his brother John's in Hebron. He got worse, raved and called for Tessie. Just as soon as he saw her he quieted down. She could keep him quiet but he kept getting weaker. All of us came from Clover Valley. He died a day or two later. He was buried on my birthday.

"We returned to Clover Valley until it was warm enough to move to the ranch on Shoal Creek, five miles the other side of Hebron. Mother hired Darwin CHIDESTER to gather the cattle to sell. She also hired Aunt Eunice Chidester HARMON to stay with her that summer. Three or four weeks before you were born she sent to Gunlock for a midwife, Mrs PARKER.

"We moved into Hebron for the winter. I was eleven years old. The next spring Mother got permission to move. Susie, the Indian girl, would not go. Mother bought land and had what is now the Roberts Hotel built in Provo and made her living by boarding students. Mother made the beds, I did the kitchen work.

"One day when you were carrying around the toilet chair, you fell with it against the heater, burning your face just awful. Mother held you in her arms, holding your hands so you could not scratch your face. I scraped raw potatoes to draw the fire out, until there was only one blister on your temple.

"In Shoal Creek and Hebron I used to be afraid to go to bed at night for fear Ben TASKER and his gang would come and kill us all."

The boarding house in central Provo was eventually sold and the family moved to a large home and farm on Provo Bench. Eunice and her brother Willie walked each school day, from there back to Brigham Young Academy where Eunice finished her schooling. She then taught school for three years until she married Alma Miner CARTER.

After their marriage Eunice and Alma lived for a for a short time in Clover Valley, Nev. Returning to Provo, they lived in a brick home which Eunice's mother had given them.

For some time Alma worked in the mines. His companions there were rough men and Alma began to absorb some of their bad habits and manners. Eunice toyed with the idea of leaving him, but one night she had a dream. A heavenly messenger seemed to come to her and advised, "Do not leave Alma, for he is a good man. Put white garments on him." She thought that had reference to his under clothing. He had been wearing grey flannel garments because of the mine work.

In 1902 Alma joined a group going to Canada to settle. They were under the sponsorship of Jesse KNIGHT who was interested in settling the Alberta country. Eunice and the five children did not make the trip until the following March. They settled in a small house in Raymond and assisted in the cultivation of two hundred acres of rich farm land, ninety of them being irrigated.

After seven years on this cooperative farm, the Carters moved out on the "Coulee", six miles away. They had a bumper crop of wheat that year, with the proceeds of which they bought cattle and began homesteading at Twin Rivers. Two more children had joined the family and they grieved at the loss of the youngest.

Life in Canada was good, though. The family prospered and gradually the old conflicts disappeared.

Eunice and her sisters were very close although many miles separated them. While she was in Canada, Arletta was in Montana; Minnie, Anna and LaPrele were in Utah. They corresponded frequently. If one learned something of another she was quick to pass the word along. At first they wrote to learn about Mother. Then they wrote to keep up with each other and their families.

Life at Twin Rivers had been good. The Carters prospered and raised their family to maturity. But as the years passed the severe winters began to take their toll. At first they tried spending the winters either in Raymond or Lethbridge where they would be near the children and have medical care. Then, after Alma died, Eunice found life on the farm too isolated and lonely and she moved to a small home in Raymond, near her son LaMonde. She had been blessed to have her companion for more than fifty years, her family was raised, and she was content to live quietly, caring for herself, raising her own garden and tending flowers, remembering and writing of her eventful life and doing fine needle work. Various ones of the children wanted her to live with them and a brother made an attractive offer, but she remained in her own home.

Frequently she went to the Temple in Alberta and faithfully she attended her church meetings. Her sisters and their families visited her several times and one lovely Christmas she was able to spend in Idaho with members of the family.

In March, 1972, Alma and Eunice could count forty three living grandchildren and many great grand children. Their eldest son, Ervin, had filled a mission to the Northern States in 1918. Their posterity filled church positions in many branches and wards. There were missionary grandsons from every family.

Minnie began working at age fifteen in a jewelry store. The next year she attended business college, studying bookkeeping. At age seventeen she took a normal course at Brigham Young Academy and in Sept 1893, had her first teaching position at Fairfield (Camp Floyd,) Ut; Married the next year, she lived in Fairfield until 1896, when she and her husband moved to Provo.

After a long illness, her husband died in 1906 and Minnie returned to teaching in Provo, where she was especially valuable because of her training in mathematics and bookkeeping. By the time she moved in 1919, to Salt Lake City, she had taught in all of Provo's high schools except the Maeser school. She eventually moved with her son David to a home at 833 So 5th East, Salt Lake City, where she spent the remainder of her life.

A severe attack of influenza in 1918, left her health impaired and she developed diabetes two or three years later. She spent two weeks in a hospital under the supervision of Dr. Gill RICHARDS learning how to measure and control her food. Thereafter she took pride in being able to take care of herself.

As she grew older and retired from the teaching profession, her sister Anna would often ride in from Midvale to spend the day with Minnie. They would visit and shop and enjoy each other. Money did not seem to worry Minnie for she had been frugal over the years, never wasting, never wanting. She was a fairly tall person and stood erect, much the posture one would expect of a strict, dedicated teacher. She never seemed angry with anyone. She resembled her mother most of any of the sisters; she wore glasses, combed her hair straight back caught in a bun at the back and ornamented with a few colorful pins. She dressed modestly .

Minnie bought a car, learned to drive it and enjoyed traveling in it. She was active in church; taught Sunday School and Mutual classes during her working years. After retirement she taught in Relief Society and also did tutoring.

In the spring of 1932, she md (2) Charles F. WESTROPE of Farmington, who survived her. His funeral was held 11 Oct 1944.

10-153 Sarah Edna PULSIPHER, dau of Esther CHIDEST-ER⁹⁻¹⁰⁹ (John M⁸⁻⁸⁵ John P⁷⁻⁵⁷ David⁶⁻⁴⁷) and William PULSIPHER; b 12 Feb 1878, St. George, Ut; d 18 Nov 1961, Provo, Ut; md 3 Jan 1900, to John Tranham TAYLOR who d 23 Apr 1960; and had ch:

11-307 Nadine Louise TAYLOR who md 24 Jan 1943, Morrell ASHBY

11-308 John Max TAYLOR lives in New York City

11-309 Wendell H. TAYLOR who became a doctor and lived in Santa Monica, Ca.

11-310 Norma TAYLOR md 9 Oct 1943, Frank H. GARDNER of Provo, Ut.

11-311 Henrietta TAYLOR md A. J. FOWERS and lived in Albany, N.Y.

Sarah Edna PULSIPHER trained as a teacher and spent her first year in the profession teaching in Richfield, Ut., then taught in Provo, Ut. Her teaching career ended when she married Mr. Taylor, for they went into the grocery business on the north side of Center St. in Provo, Ut. In partnership with Mr. Taylor was his sister Polly. Edna's career from then on was her marriage and the raising of a fine family. She would be able to celebrate her sixtieth wedding anniversary, eventually.

A letter she wrote to her sister Anna, 4 Jan 1934, shows her dedication to her family:

"Wendell came a week before Xmas and we were so full of joy that I neglected my correspondence . . . Isn't it grand that our boys do not smoke or drink? Max is down in Saxony from up by the Baltic Sea (he was serving a mission to Germany at this time) transferred Dec 2nd. It is soon two years since he left. He sang over the radio at Leipzig on his way down to Mittweida, also had some phonograph records of his voice and sent home for Xmas. He is now laboring with Oscar KIRKHAM's son. They are so happy together. I wish Wendell would get the desire to go on a mission. It would just finish him up right, he is doing so well in school.

"We had a delightful time during the holidays. Nadine and Wendell entertained eight friends at dinner, after which they attended a Norm party."

A card from LaPrele, her sister, tells of an accident, July 1954: "Edna is in the hospital. She was taking food on a plate to Norma's children Sunday, as Norma is in Calif. She had the plate on the seat. It slipped. She grabbed the plate, putting her foot on the gas pedal instead of the brake. She sheared off a metal light pole, wrecked her car and bent the steering wheel against her chest. Her nose is broken, lip cut, face swollen, eyes black, chest and arm, knees and ankle bruised. I hope nothing else more serious is the matter and that she gets well."

She did get well and three years later was able to write, "Isn't it good that we have been spared all these years? If I had not asked my Heavenly Father in prayer, I would have left Nadine and Norma just little girls, but I told Him if He could see fit to spare me and let me live, I would serve Him as long as I lived."

Edna kept her promise well. Among other teaching assignments, she was a counselor in the Relief Society, helping with the nursing, sewing and cooking. She was a chorister and her group sang in many places. After she became stake Relief Society chorister her group sang in the April Relief Society Conference. She trained her children to sing and play musical instruments and to live clean lives. She spent a great deal of time in her later years compiling and writing the stories of the lives of her father, her mother, sister Minnie and others.

Anna Luella PULSIPHER was born after her father died and was very young when the family moved to Provo, Ut. She did not experience the rugged life that older members of the family did. Her first memories were of life in the boarding house that her mother kept during her early childhood. Of course, she yearned to know her father as the older brothers and sisters did. Her position as baby of the family, yet the contemporary of the younger family her mother had, gave her the enviable position of pivot of family interest. She was the connecting link between the two and she would always be the central figure -- the older ones concerned for her welfare, the younger ones looking to her for leadership and guidance.

When, a baby, she fell into a heater and received severe burns, the older family members nursed her tenderly until she recovered.

As the bride of Edgar Lafayette CROPPER, having been married in the Salt Lake Temple, Anna made her first home in St. Johns, Ariz., where Edgar had a teaching position. As teachers are wont to do, there was a period of time spent in gaining experience and working up to a place of desirability. In rather quick succession they lived in Kanosh, Ut., then Provo, followed by a lengthy stay in Charleston, Wasatch Co., Ut.

When Edgar first began teaching in Charleston there was no place available for him to rent so that his family could be with him. Anna and the children remained in Provo, living with her mother, with Edgar riding the narrow gauge railway up Provo Canyon to reach his school. He boarded during the week, then returned to his family for the week end and in the summer he went to Deseret to work in the fields with his father, taking the boys with him as they grew older.

After a year or two, Edgar bought a small hotel in Charleston and moved his family there. He had been offered a teaching position in Provo, but he had become involved in the affairs of the little mountain community and in the school problems of the district. Being an innovative teacher he rose to the challenges and preferred to stay until they could be solved. While he was teaching, Anna cared for the boarding house hotel and the family. Two of her children were born there. Both times she was confined in the lobby of the hotel where she could be cared for most comfortably.

The time came when a lucrative offer was made for Edgar to teach in Midvale, Ut., a suburb of Salt Lake City, so the hotel was sold and the family moved. Four years in Midvale, Edgar taught and supervised the school, the last year spent in teaching history and government in the eighth grade. Ending fifteen years as a successful teacher, he was attracted to other more lucrative employment.

For four and a half years he was in charge of a smelter. Finding promotions rather slow after that time, he quit the company and spent some time on the farm with his father and in electioneering for the Republican party. During the 1921 session of the state legislature he served as "Minute Clerk". When the session ended he staid on to help correct and revise the House Journal and had it printed. He was then appointed an accountant in the new department of Finance and Purchasing under Lincoln G. KELLEY, at $150.00 per month. Home improvements were made and life was easier for Anna and the children.

In the fall of 1922 he was made State Purchasing agent for the University of Utah, Utah Agricultural College, Branch A. C., and the Mental Hospital, State Prison, the State Industrial School and the School for the Deaf and Blind.

A party change in state government in 1925, changed his employment and Edgar worked for a time for the Granite Lumber Co., then became affiliated with the Chesterfield Coal Co. Energetic and creative, he was an asset to any company or group for which he worked.

Anna spent her days raising her children and providing an attractive home. As they grew older, she sometimes accompanied her husband on his many business trips. Their vacations were visits to her sisters in far-away places and she was in constant contact with the sisters who were close to her. Many times she would ride to town with her husband and spend the day while he was at work, visiting her sister Minnie.

Anna raised a fine family and taught them all to be proud of their heritage and loyal to their families. Her son Kenneth, at her urging, succeeded in gathering and preserving the stories and data that make the Pulsipher and Cropper families beacon lights in the story of the west.

LaPrele began school teaching in Charleston in 1906, where she boarded with her sister Anna. She taught until her marriage in 1914, then lived in Provo, Ut., caring for her husband, raising her son and tending to the needs of her aging mother. It was LaPrele who was able to keep the family informed about Mother's health; who worried about Mother's welfare when she went on a visit to one of the other children and who welcomed her home on her return.

Sometime between 1914 and 1918, Arletta and William decided to try the ranching business in Montana. It was to be a rough life reminiscent of the pioneering experiences of her mother. In a letter to her nephew, Kenneth Cropper, Arletta said, "I have had a lot of frontier activity. We were thirteen years in the "Big Hole" among a rough element that drifts in for haying season. I took care of one shooting and one stabbing, besides setting broken bones. Twice I had to come to your Uncle Will's rescue."

They had ranches near Dillon, Mont., in Jackson Hole, and their last home was in Hamilton, Montana. Arletta kept in touch with her sisters and visited them whenever possible. She was really at the half-way point between Provo, Ut., and Raymond, Canada. She could report on the sister living so far north, and when any other member of the family went to Canada to visit it was convenient to stop off and spend a few days with Arletta on the ranch.

Will and Arletta were living with their youngest daughter in Anaheim, Cal., when they became ill. It was Wanda who had the privilege of easing their aches and pains and listening to their memories in their last days.

The following story was written by Ruby Laverne
J.H. Neelll-356:

Mother came to Carey Valley, Idaho, when she was nine years old, traveling by covered wagon. She attended school there and grew to young womanhood. She met Oscar who then resided in Marley (now Richfield) Idaho, where he had a farm. They lived in Marley several years, then moved to Emmett where Oscar had a ranch. At this time (1917) there were terrible hardships - banks closed, crops left in the fields because there was no help available to do the harvesting. All young men were in the army (World War I) Oscar sold out and moved to Melba, Ida., where he built a big, beautiful home and began again. They lived there until 1924; conditions got worse and Oscar had to sell for what he could get out of his farm and hired out as a farm hand. We then moved to Mt. Hebron, Siskiyou, Cal., where Oscar went to work for a friend.

During the depression years we lived in many places, wherever there was work to be found. They returned to Richfield in 1942 where they grubbed a farm out of sage brush and lived there until Oscar died in 1961. Esther then bought a house in town. She worked in the L.D.S. church; was Relief Society president; work director; choir director; vocalist, singing with the "Singing Mothers." Two years before she died she moved to Grand View, Idaho.

Oscar was the first white child born in Price, Ut. He was Presiding Elder from 1915 to 1917 and had served on a mission before he was married. He held two college degrees, was an excellent carpenter and did dry cleaning as well as farming. He introduced irrigation into Richfield Valley.

Both Esther and Oscar loved music. Esther played the piano and Oscar played any instrument he picked up. We children remember many times we could bring friends home to music and food. No one was ever knowingly turned away hungry from our home. We could go to a dance and bring home the orchestra and friends and Mother and Dad would make everyone welcome in the middle of the night. Ours was a very happy home. We might not have had all the money in the world, but we had family love and unity.

When I was almost five years old my parents and brothers and sisters moved to Carey, Idaho. I attended school in Carey and inasmuch as Carey was a Mormon settlement, I attended church there.

Because my husband was a returned missionary we were married in the Salt Lake Temple. We made our home at first in Marley, which is now Richfield, Idaho.

One of my greatest desires was to have my children acquire a good education. My oldest daughter, Caroline received a master's degree in research Librarian. My next daughter, Esther Lorraine, graduated from the Brigham Young University. My son Dean went into the service in World War II as a dive bomber pilot and was a major in the Marine Air Corps. After the war was over he had a flourishing business in crop dusting and was killed in his own airplane, leaving a wife and two children. My youngest daughter married quite young and since her husband is a flier, she has lived many places in other countries.

I have been very active in the church all during my married life and even after I lost my husband, just seven months after I lost my son.

We were living in Colorado Springs, Wyo., for a time. I was Relief Society president there for three years. After moving to Oregon I was Relief Society president for ten years. I was called to work in the Stake

Board and worked there for fourteen years. My husband was the branch president in McMinnville and was responsible for the building of the beautiful chapel there. Later he was appointed to the high council and worked there until his death.

I have eleven grandchildren, two of whom are adopted; and I have three great grandchildren.

I was the eighth child born to Willard Darwin Chidester. My mother's name before she was married to my father was Caroline Gubler. I was the only child in the family who was born in Idaho. At the time of my birth my family lived in a little suburb of Carey called Tikura.

My parents and their seven children had migrated to Carey from Washington, Utah, in two covered wagons. They had heard of the little Mormon settlement from a man named Cyrus STANFORD and my father was anxious to secure more land for his three sons to work on.

After my father had worked on other ranches for some time he bought a home in Carey and then started proving up on some land about five miles from Carey in an area called Fish Creek. He and my brothers hauled logs to build our house on this land. Also logs were hauled from the mountains to build an ice house and many other buildings.

I remember my father as one of the kindest men, also generous and very honest and humble. My mother was a meticulous housekeeper and had many talents such as sewing and making beautiful quilts and was quite musically inclined.

I think of the time that I spent on the ranch as one of the happiest times of my life. I had a very difficult time attending school as in order for my parents to prove up on their land they had to live on it seven months out of the year. I usually staid with friends of my parents until they could move in town for the winter.

My father passed away when I was fourteen years of age and my mother passed away when I was nineteen. My brother John was cashier of the bank in Carey and I worked there for a short time, then went to Boise, Ida., and attended Link Business College and was able to get work in the Auditing Department of the telephone company in Boise. Later on I went to Portland, Oregon and secured work in the First National Bank there.

In 1926 I was married to Allen Ross ARTHUR. He had been attending a business college in Portland and at the time we were married he was working in a lathe mill.

We lived nine years in San Francisco as my husband started working for the stock yards there, owned by Swift & Co. He was hired out as a lamb buyer for Swift and we were later transferred to Los Angeles as it was a big promotion for him as head lamb buyer for Swift & Co., there.

During the depression my husband was out of work and at that time my oldest son was born. I had worked at the P.G.&E. in San Francisco and we had been able to save enough money to see us through the depression.

When we moved to Los Angeles, I became very active in the church as I worked in the primary organization for nineteen years as secretary, first counselor and president. Then I started working in the MIA as president until I was called into the stake MIA as secretary. All told I worked in MIA fourteen years. I also worked several years in Relief Society as president and first counselor, and also work director.

All of my church activities have enriched my life. I have two wonderful sons, four grandchildren and one great granddaughter. I feel truly blessed as we celebrated our fiftieth wedding anniversary on Apr 24, 1976.

 Ariz., training Cadets and joined the U,S, Army Air Force in 1942; was released to Army Air Base Unit and was inducted into the Army Air force training school on Thunderberg Air Field; paid by Thunderberg but under army control; received his honorable discharge June 1945. In 1977 he was living next door to his mother in Santa Ana.

Mrs. Kate Stanford, who collected all the information from her branch of the family, enthusiastic and vivacious at age 89, became a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution, on application #135336, proving her descent from Justice SACKETT who was b in E. Greenwich, Conn., 9 Mar 1730; d 16 Mar 1815. In 1765 he was commissioned Capt. of the Second Train Band of the town of Kent, Conn., and during the war he participated in several short campaigns. He was a representative from Kent County to the General Assembly in 1775 and later. She is also eligible for membership by reason of the participation of her illustrious Chidester ancestor.

Although, in 1977, she was hard of hearing and wore a pacemaker, she was a delight to be with.

Dr. "Gus" CHIDESTER graduated from Syracuse Medical College as medical doctor and physician, later becoming a gynecologist. He began practice 15 Oct 1923, in Cato, Cayuga, N.Y., moving later to Auburn, N.Y., where he was prominent in medical circles for many years. About 1961 he decided it was time to retire but to do so he would have to leave town.

He moved to Hendersonville, N.C., where he built a lovely new home. Retirement was not his "metier," however, and after a few short years he went into partnership with another doctor and practiced on a limited basis with frequent times off to attend conventions and make extended visits to his children, relatives and friends. In 1977 he again decided to retire, but still kept an interest in the office and the practice, on an advisory basis.

Dr. Chidester preserved his father's journal and took up the pursuit of family history, keeping complete records of the descendants of David Starr CHIDESTER, acting as the connecting link between the ever-scattering branches of his family.

Theodore CHIDESTER came to Panguitch when he was seven years of age and lived there from then on. His early life was spent in farming, then he operated a bus service between Panguitch and the railway terminal in Marysvale, Ut., for several years. From 1921 to 1951 he and his wife operated a cafe and service station and they also ran a resort at Panguitch Lake, keeping the tradition his father had started.

Ida Sargent CHIDESTER was a most remarkable woman. Handicapped most of her life by deafness, she never let it stand in her way. She was a good teacher at school and in church. Active in all civic affairs, she was co-author and publisher of a history of Garfield County, entitled "Golden Nuggets of Pioneer Days," She was a charter member in the Daughters of Utah Pioneers; served many years as correspondent for a northern newspaper and was known in Garfield County for her excellent cooking--especially for her delicious pies.

"Aunt Ida" was the matriarch of the Chidester family during her later years, encouraging genealogical research and seeing that the entire family had a good time at reunions.

John N. CHIDESTER was an enthusiastic athlete during his school years. After graduation from Panguitch public schools he attended Murdock Academy, in Beaver, Ut., and Snow College in Ephraim, Ut. At both schools he was a star basket ball player and foot racer. He held the state record for the 100 yard dash. In all civic sports events he was the center of attraction, often entering every event.

Immediately after his marriage he left for a mission to the Central States, spending more than a year in Kansas and Missouri, proselyting for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. While there, his health broke and it was found that unwise exploitation of his athletic skills had damaged his heart which had no doubt been weakened by a childhood bout with rheumatic fever that had not been recognized at the time.

Returning home, his health improved to a certain extent and he was able to work to sustain his family. During his absence, his wife had operated the Chidester Hotel in Panguitch. They continued this activity for a time and John also helped his father at the Panguitch Lake resort as well as working, when able, as a carpenter and builder.

After the sale of the hotel he moved his family to Delta, Ut., where his wife's parents had settled, thinking that the dry desert air there would be better for him than the high rarified atmosphere of Panguitch.

In Delta John built a lovely home for his family and continued to work at carpentry but his health deteriorated consistently. His daughters remember the lovely things he did--the stained glass windows he installed in the kitchen; the way he would take them for rides with him and converse with them as equals.

He took a job selling books - the story of the sinking of the Titanic. Thelma accompanied him on those selling trips as he drove to neighboring towns. On the way, as the horse plodded along they would converse about the things of nature, the sun. It was on these trips that Thelma developed a love for things of the universe

Then there was the night that his daughter Julia was being born. The labor was long and difficult. He waited patiently and did all he could for his suffering wife. But Thelma was upset and worried about her mother's illness. John took her out on the porch and talked to her about the stars, pointing out the big dipper and other constellations until she quieted and could be put to bed and to sleep. Later, when Thelma studied astronomy in college she would relive that night under the stars with her gentle father.

It was many months before his wife regained her health after this experience. John cared for the children and the house until he was stricken with the illness that did not end until his death. Because of his ill health Mary, who had been a school teacher in her youth, went back to the school room, the first job being in Abraham, a neighboring village. Here John would spend the good days going to the school to coach the big farm boys in basket ball. On the bad days Thelma waited on him and tended the baby, going to school to get her mother when the doctor came.

John did not live to see his last child who was born months after his death. He had been wise in his marriage, for he left a wife who assumed the responsibility of parenthood, being father and mother to the children and creating a good life for them.

12-39 Russell Boyd BAKER b 13 May 1916, Union, Ut; was a career man in the U.S. Navy.

Mary Asenath, known more familiarly as Cenneth, was left motherless in the first week of her life. Means of feeding an infant other than at the mother's breast had not been developed yet in 1883. Fortunately her Aunt Lodema Chidester RUBY had a young baby and lived nearby and was willing to feed this little one along with her own. Aunt Lodema was a midwife and, at least in this instance, was a wet-nurse. Between her aunt and her paternal grandparents, Mary was cared for until her father re-married and took his young family to Panguitch to live. Her new young mother took the infant to her heart and cared for her so tenderly that Mary would honor her by giving her name to her own daughter.

There was a disappointing first marriage, then Mary Asenath became the wife, again, of a farmer and served her family well. Eventually the farm was sold and the Bakers moved into Salt Lake City where they operated a small grocery store on Center St. This did not prove to be a satisfactory way of life for people who were used to the open spaces. The store was sold and the family moved back to a farm, this time in Midvale, Utah.

After Elijah's death, Max continued to run the farm for his mother for a few years, then the farm was sold and Mary moved to San Diego so that she would be near her daughter.. The children saw to it that their mother never did want for anything she needed. Merle and Edyth took her on trips with them so that she visited most of the United States and saw a great deal of Europe. Max and his wife cared for her months at a time, doing all they could to make her happy. and Russell contributed to her well-being.

11-71 Almina CHIDESTER, dau of John F¹⁰⁻¹⁰³ (John P⁹⁻¹⁰² John M⁸⁻⁸⁵ John P⁷⁻⁵⁷ David⁶⁻⁴⁷) and Almina WORTHEN; b 7 July 1887, Panguitch, Ut; md 8 Apr 1909, in Salt Lake City, Ut., to Leonard William OGDEN who was b 25 May 1881, Richfield, Ut; d 6 Oct 1948, Richfield, Ut; s of James OGDEN and Betsy MARSH; and had ch b in Richfield, Ut:

*12-43 Carl Foy OGDEN b 6 July 1918; md Jean Marie SPERRY

Born of good Latter Day Saint pioneer stock, Almina was extra weak at birth and it was doubtful that she would live, but one of the general authorities of the church who was visiting at stake conference, was asked to administer to her. He blessed her that she would live and grow up to be a mother in Israel. She lived to fulfill the blessing and to celebrate her 90th birthday.

Almina was the eldest daughter of her mother, but she came into a ready-made family with older brothers and sisters. Her father always said, "There is no such thing in this family as half brothers and sisters. We are one family!" Almina was the mediator, the one who linked the two families into one and made her father's words come true. All members of the family, older and younger, looked to her for leadership and love which she gave freely.

At the age of fourteen Mina was given the assignment of primary teacher. At sixteen she was secretary of the Sunday School. When she was seventeen her father was appointed District Attorney and the family moved to Richfield. There she finished school and went part of a year to school at the Agricultural College in Logan, Ut. Back in Richfield, she was given the job as assistant secretary of the Young Women's Mutual Improvement Association.

After her marriage to Leonard Ogden in the Salt Lake Temple, the couple proceeded to pioneer the Hard-scrabble country southeast of Richfield. For many years the family milked cows and raised crops there.

Mina has been a Relief Society visiting teacher almost constantly since her marriage, going first by horse and buggy and later driving her own car until age and infirmity forced her to give up the calling. She went monthly to visit and bring love and aid to her associates in the church.

As she raised her family she filled many positions in the religion class and primary. She served as Spiritual Living teacher in Relief Society for eight years; two years were also spent on a stake mission, working with the Indians and she was the first Relief Society president in the Yoomeenchoopeets Branch when it was organized.

After retiring from the farm, Mina maintained a lovely home on Center St. in Richfield, still serving her family, going frequently to the Temple in Manti, recording her family records. Inspired by their mother's love and example, her children have rewarded her with love and concern for her well-being. She is an inspiration to all the family, brothers and sisters, nephews and neices, as well as her own children and grandchildren.

Samuel H. CHIDESTER started out with a farm and he would always have a peice of land and a productive garden; but really he was a musician. His soul delighted in song and his violin sang for him. He taught school in Escalante, Ut; in Panguitch and in Bicknell. But wherever he went his violin went with him. He always had a dance band going and would travel the countryside to play for dances, give musicals, participating in holiday programs.

As his children grew up he taught them to play various instruments and soon his own family band was making the rounds. They brought joy to the country and were known far and wide for their versatility and prowess in entertainment. At family reunions there was always the time when Sam brought out his well-worn instrument and a brother or sister would accompany him on the piano and there would be toe-tapping music--the frosting on the cake.

Before his marriage, Sam served a mission for his church, going to Germany. All his life he was an ardent member and participant in all church activities.

As a young man Arnon was his father's main stay on the farm. While father was busy with politics, the law and various committees, Arnon took charge of the farm. During his mother's widowhood he and a younger brother maintained the farm for a time until the younger one took over and Arnon was free to make his own family living.

For many years he and his wife Adell worked with Indian youth who attended school in Richfield, giving them a home away from home, socializing with them, offering spiritual guidance and advice as needed.

Arnon served as milk tester for the state, collecting milk samples from the dairy herds and testing for tuberculosis, Bang's disease, etc.

Family reunions had gone into a decline. It was Arnon who re-instituted and re-organized them and served for a number of years as secretary-treasurer. When his aunt Eveline C. SPROUL found it necessary to give up the research and record keeping, Arnon assumed the responsibility and got it rolling again.

The avocation Arnon probably enjoyed most was during the years when he acted as guide in the wilds of southern Utah for hunters and fishermen. He knew every nook and cranny of the mountains; where one would most likely be able to bag a deer and in which lake or stream the best trout would be found. During the season his refrigerator was stocked with big trout and the family came to enjoy a real fish fry often.

A dutiful son and loving father, his family stands as a monument to him.

Vera worked for a number of years as a secretary and was efficient and thorough in her work. After the move to California she and her husband went into the real estate business and eventually worked it into a thriving enterprise with Frank selling property and Vera taking care of the escrows.

Both Vera and Frank were active church members, she concentrating on Relief Society and Frank becoming prominent as a choir director, among various other assignments.

After Frank's death, Vera disposed of the business, did considerable visiting with family in Utah and Idaho, and worked as a seamstress, making swimming suits for Marie Reid Inc.

At family reunions her laugh and spontaneous good spirits made her the life of the party. She was always in the middle of the action, serving the dinners as well as cooking them and making a big event of each family get-together. She often accompanied her brother Sam on the piano, and in other ways contributed to the joy of the occasion. She counts among her children, a bishop, a high councilman and a stake president who honor her name.

After Myron's death Lucinda md (2) Thomas Raymond HARRINGTON.

The following story was written by Lucinda M. L. Chidester Harrington:

A story of a man who forgot himself and found time amid this world's strife to live up to Christ's teachings: "Do unto others as you would have them do to you."

Myron Alphonzo Chidester. . .had very little schooling as the family was in poor circumstances. He remembers working in the woolen mill while so small he stood on a box to run the loom. His talent for music led him to learn to play the violin and guitar while still very young.

When Myron was about sixteen years old his father went on a mission to the southern states, so he and a younger brother, Elmer, went to a mining camp to work to help support the family. They were subjected to all kinds of temptations but they managed to keep clean and away from tobacco and liquor habits. After their father returned home, Myron and Elmer went to Deweyville to work. They boarded with their Aunt Susan Dewey. There they met the Loveland girls, Lucinda Maud and Florence Ethel and the following year Myron and Lucinda were married.

When their second child was about a year old they filed on one hundred sixty acres of land in Curley, Ida; He was not a success as a farmer, being a musician. However, they staid there thirteen years, being pioneers in very deed. He helped to build a school house there and established a school district. He also helped to build a chapel. For two years school had been held in his own home.

He worked in the Sunday School superintendency, was MIA officer and was Stake Secretary for the Elder's Quorum.

Their fourth child was born in Mountain View, Curley, Idaho, where Myron, together with his bride Lucinda who was a born farmer, cleaned the land of sage brush, ploughed and planted it to grain, built a good two room log house and fenced the land. They also built a barn and a granary. For two years they hauled water about two and one half miles for household use and for the stock. They raised horses, cows, sheep and pigs. They were always poor, but managed to pay tithing. Many times Myron came near to losing his life. Once when digging a well he was just ready to step in the bucket to go down over one hundred feet when they tied the rope on the windlass and it parted like a cobweb. He was always cheerful and could exercise wit in any situation. He would work all night if necessary to do what he started to accomplish.

He hauled grain over the mountains to Malad in snow and mud and over icy roads when the wagon would slide until it was even with the horses. He was handy at fixing any kind of machinery from a watch to a thresher and would leave his own work anytime to help a neighbor, never expecting any pay.

After eight years, when crops were destroyed by drought, grasshoppers, frost and hail, the family moved back to Deweyville where he worked his father-in-law's place for a year. About 1922 he moved to Salt Lake City where he worked in the service garage for a Mr. PECK and Mr. BREWER. He worked nights and when no one was around he would play his guitar and sing.

While in Deweyville he was busy in Genealogical work and, as a ward teacher, converted his brother Ray CHIDESTER's wife to the gospel. He also took Lewis GARDNER and family to the Logan Temple. His musical talent and dramatic ability were in constant demand. He trained a group of boys besides leading the choir. In Salt Lake City he was chorister and choir leader in the

South Gate Ward

Mary Isabella STEWART and Archie Edmund BATTY sealed their love and took one step ahead into eternity by getting married in the St. George Temple. They first became acquainted when Mary's widowed mother married Joseph SYLVESTER and moved to Toquerville. They happened to live just across the street from the Batty's Archie was an outstanding musician and athlete. He played for many dances and Mary was his companion as they danced in the lovely Dixie evenings into a deeper, more meaningful relationship.

Archie played the violin, harmonica, guitar, mandolin, piano and organ, to mention a few. He often said he had never picked up an instrument he couldn't play. He was one of the rare ones with true pitch and a wrong note or discord was most painful to his sensitive ears. It was only natural that music should set the background in their home life. Later on he had a family orchestra to cheer loved ones and friends.

In the baseball field, Archie was the main pitcher and his left hand curve ball was deadly and feared by the opposing team. Mary was ever by his side in the ball game to cheer and encourage.. They were a winning team and after they had a family of their own they liked nothing better than to have a good base ball game, with all family members taking part. When they outgrew the family yard they went to a level place south of Pintura. This tradition has carried over into some of the children's homes.

Archie played the organ from the time he was two years old. Many times the family organ could be heard in the night as little Archie couldn't sleep until he got up and played the music that kept going through his mind. He was so small he would stand with both feet on one tread, hold on to a stop with one hand, and play with the other. He related that many times he had never heard a piece of music he couldn't play and on any instrument.

Mary was very industrious and hard working, her father having died when she was four. She was a lovely, fun-loving girl and a favorite of Washington where she lived. Bishop HALL wanted to adopt her but Grandma preferred to keep her little family together.

The BATTY home was one of love and dedication, where discipline, education, hard work, honesty and cleanliness were stressed. The hours of washing, ironing, mending, making over clothes to keep the family going were without number.

There were rows and rows of home grown and canned foods when your two years supply wasn't even heard of. There were bushels of fruit grown and sold to help the family along. Strawberries grown and fruits dried were numerous and each married child could return home in season for his full share.

Family ties were welded stronger by two boys serving their country. By each child, who lived to maturity, graduating from seminary and being married in the temple. By living through the deaths of three family members at an early age and a depression when you had to be self-sufficient to survive. By learning to respect our neighbors. We were always taught to address them as brother and sister. By learning that family fun is the best kind and the family orchestra plays the sweetest kind of music. Even though family night had not been initiated then, it was held most nights in our home, where candy was pulled, nuts cracked and games played.

This family now has twenty-five grand children and twenty one great grandchildres. We have missionaries, educators, stake clerks, Relief Society presidents and good church members in our ranks.

Archie passed away in 1950 from a heart attack. Mary is now (1976) eighty four years of age and enjoys fairly good health. She is still a wonderful mother at heart and is always concerned about her family.

There was a divorce and Mary Eveline SPROUL md (2) 18 Feb 1946, William MATHEWS Jr. who was b 4 Feb 1878, Panaca, Lincoln, Nev; d 21 Feb 1968; s of William MATHEWS and Ann CHARLES. William was md (1) 28 June 1905, to Annie Matilda WAHLIN from whom he was divorced.

William R. PRINCE, Mary's first husband, was md (2) 15 Mar 1936, to Jennie Bentina BEVINGTON.

An active member of the Daughters of Utah Pioneers, Mary maintained a home in Santa Clara, Utah, for many years to which her brothers and sisters as well as her children repaired for family get-togethers and general good times. She was an entertainer with her one man band, playing guitar and harmonica together and doing her own vocalizing. After Mr. Mathew's death she sold the home in Santa Clara and lived for a time with her daughters, then made her home with her youngest son, Dale, in Burbank, Ca.

Leonard had the opportunity in his youth to become a crooner on radio networks. It was a temptation, but after a close look he turned away, not relishing the unsettled life of an entertainer. His fine voice and musical ability were reserved for his family and friends. He quickly became a tradition at both Chidester and Sproul reunions--neither ever being complete without Leonard, his ukelele and his songs and ready wit.

He sold insurance for awhile, then went into real estate, founding and operating the Sproul Real Estate Co., Salt Lake City, Ut. He became a director in a Savings and Loan Co; built and operated (for a time) a modern nursing home.

One of his most admirable characteristics was the way in which he cared for his sisters who were widowed, visiting them often, seeing that they were able to attend family affairs and in every way meeting their needs and making life more pleasant for them.

MEMORIES OF FORTY YEARS (1945 Christmas letter of Melvin T. Harmon)

Now listen to me and a story I'll tell, of thrills I've had and remember so well. While walking through life, mid pleasure and rain, I'll tell of some things I've had in the rain. I think of the time when a boy I run, at play, on skates, on sleigh or with gun; of pals I had, both girls and boys; our lives were happy and full of joys. I wondered then in years to just where I'd be, with whom I'd run. Then one bright day while at work in the mill, there came a mission to fulfill. I went to see, some twenty miles away, my brother before the departing day. While there I met a lass so true, all through my mission our courting grew.

Thirty months I spent in Father's work and tried my best no duty to shirk. Week by week her letters came, in which she said she felt the same. A short time elapsed, our affection grew and then we promised to each to be true. Together we went to God's Temple grand and there made our vows with hand in hand.

Our first year spent, we had much joy; for 'twas then we were blessed with a fine baby boy. And e'er the next year had time to pass, our lives were blessed with a fine young lass.

I bought a lot on which to dwell, built a two room home. We thought it swell. Borrowed money, bought lumber, quite a large bill, then our babies took sick, grew ill. We thought the Lord would take them away, we dropped to our knees and sure did pray, as mother nursed them back with care.

I borrowed more money, lumber to buy, a larger home to build I sure did try. The home I built -- and Hanson moved in; paid twenty per month to live therein. We took the babies, on a trip we went, building the Enterprise Chapel. The winter I spent, came home in the spring and started work with vim. Hanson moved out and Harmons moved in. . . My work was spasmodic with little to gain, so I spent many hours myself to train. Some three years elapsed with very little change, times grew harder, bringing new plans to arrange. I helped build homes and the church as time passed. . . I went to work as the depression did blow. I worked in Ogden, then in Columbia six weeks, then out by Tooele 'til the days grew bleak.

When the Japs struck Pearl Harbor 'twas a slap in the face to Uncle Sam's children; grave anger you could trace. He called them to his colors from every walk of life. I helped build warehouses; younger men trained for strife. I found myself employed with Uncle Sam's working force, so great was the war our family divided of courage; myself and three children in the city was no fun, while mother and two the home tried to run. We tried it four months then I began to sputter, called mother out of bed which made her heart flutter. I bargained for a place, wanted her to approve; this meant nothing else but for her to pack and move. Located in our home but a year did we tarry. With four married children and four left at home, we were spending this Christmas with no need to moan.

David LeRoy CHIDESTER md (2) 4 Aug 1937, Clarissa Josephine LEAVITT who was b 19 June 1889, Gunlock, Ut; d 1 May 1963, in a Salt Lake City hospital; bur in Richfield, Ut; dau of Jeremiah LEAVITT and Mary Ellen HUNTSMAN. Her first marriage was to Joseph PLATT.

Throughout his life David was an ardent and devoted scouter. Along with others in the community he became interested and sent away for a handbook, subsequently organizing one of the first scout troops west of the Mississippi in 1913. He took the boys camping, fishing, hiking. Taught them to make fire without matches, to climb the highest mountains, and to survive in the wilderness. It was no soft life he led them into. It was no doubt in such activity that he became an excellent fisherman, loving the out-of-doors and all of nature. Or that love could have made him the good scout leader that he was.

Besides farming, he developed great skill as a natureopath, gathering herbs from the forests and brewing tonics and remedies of all kinds.

A thoughtful and considerate man of his family, one of his greatest contributions was the care he gave his sister Myrtle, the girl who sacrificed her life to the raising of her mother's family. He saw to it that she had transportation, that her wood box was always filled and that she did not lack.

For four long, lonesome years, he struggled to raise his own motherless children, teaching his daughters how to make bread, to keep house and to be responsible members of the family, honoring the memory of their lovely mother. Such men are the cream of the earth.

MITCHELL

Glen Madison Chidester, first child of James M and Sarah Jane (Sadie) Casto Chidester, was born in 1898, the year that Lorenzo Snow gave his famous discourse and challenge on tithing and promised the Saints of St. George that they would get rain. Southern Utah was at that time suffering from one of the severest droughts in its history. This drought had continued for several years. Cattle had to be driven to the canyons for water. Thousands of them had died on the range. It was the middle of June and the people were so discouraged that many of them would not plow their land and were not willing to risk the seed for another planting. Some of the settlers had already moved away and many others were preparing to do so. The people had faith and the promise was fulfilled.

When Glen was a youngster of about five his mother would stand him in a tub of sudsy water with a quilt in it. It was his job to tromp around on it to get the dirt out. Gifts at Christmas time consisted of a pocket knife or harmonica, or other small item, then there would also be a gift at New Years. Glen got quite proficient on the harmonica.

"The first money I made as a boy was 15¢ for thinning three rows of beets, which I shared with my younger brother Gordon who was herding the cows while I did the beets. Later I worked for 75¢ a day tromping the hay down on the hay wagon."

Glen used to milk nine cows and his father Matt would throw water on him and Gordon if they did not get out of bed in the morning when they were called to go out and milk the cows. One morning after several calls, they sneaked out the window onto the porch roof and down the porch column. They went into the kitchen where their mother was fixing breakfast and told her their secret--to go milk the cows and let their Dad think they were still in bed. A little later as he was wont to do, Matt took a pail of water up stairs and threw it on the bed that had been fixed to look like two boys were still asleep in it. When Matt came back down to the kitchen Glen and Gordon came in with pails of milk from the barn. Matt was angry and their straw mattress and bedding had to be dried out.

"I took violin lessons from Sam Chidester. I took about 12 lessons and then some girl in the neighborhood came over and tightened the strings so tight that it broke them and tore up the whole violin. The pieces flew all over the house. That was the end of my violin lessons. My Dad bought the violin but I didn't like it even though I took lessons. I liked to go swimming in the canal, instead. I liked horse racing and basketball and baseball. Supper at night, when I was young was always a bowl of bread and milk."

He and his brother Gordon, as they grew older, hauled all of the wood for the family fires. They would take a team of horses and pull the Jack Pine and Cedar trees over that were dead. They would go to the hills in the winter time when the snow was bad, work all day, then start for home. Their clothes would be soaked with the melted snow and would freeze before they got home. They could take their overalls off and stand them up on the floor they would be so stiff.

"When I was 19 a friend of mine decided to join the Navy and he told me if I would go to Salt Lake with him he would pay my way. When we got to Salt Lake we went to get examined and I decided I would join, too. Well, they took me and rejected him. When I got back home Dad gave me a kind of a scolding. He said, 'There is plenty to do on the farm. We need farm boys to work on the farm. Let the city people go in the Navy.' When I left our town to catch the train there were a lot of people who came to see me leave on the train. There must have been fifty or so and we had a three piece band that played.

"I went to San Diego and the first letter I got from home I had to go out behind the barracks to read it, I was so homesick. I had to take a lot of exercises in boot camp. I had a vaccination that took and I was swollen from my arm on up the back of my neck. Those exercises with dummy guns that you had to snap real hard, hurt my arm and bothered me so much I just couldn't keep a straight face. A Chief Petty Officer got me off and said, 'That isn't going to do you any good!'

"After boot camp I staid right there and worked in the galley where they fed the men. I started from the bottom, right from emptying garbage cans and working around the sculley. After I got out of that, they put me on what they called small stores, moving cases of food and stuff like a quarter of beef. We had joined for the duration of the war or four years, whichever came first. I was released after ten months. I didn't get a discharge until our four years were up; we were in the reserves and drew $1 per month until the discharge came. I went back to Venice and topping beets"

Glen worked at many jobs around the Salt Lake City area. In 1922 he met and married Hannah Barnes. Jobs for him lasted only for indefinite periods. He went to work for Utah Copper and for the Bingham-Garfield Railroad, but was laid off just before Christmas, in 1924. With $75.00 saved and $75.00 borrowed, he bought a truck and began hauling coal. He hauled ice in the summer and coal in the winter. His company slogan was, "You can tell our drivers by the slack in their pants!" In 1930, with profits small, he turned the business over to his father, Matt, to make what he could at it and Glen went on the road selling woolens for the Utah Woolen Mills.

In 1927 he and Hannah adopted a son whom they named Ronald. In 1934, Glen found that Hannah had gone to California and when she hadn't returned two months later he divorced her for desertion.

Back on the road, Glen met Doris Miller in Nebraska. She was working in a hotel at the time, but had been raised on a farm. After the death of her father, Doris had worked in the fields by the side of her brothers to maintain the family farm. As the brothers married and left the home farm, Doris assumed more and more of the responsibility until, at the age of 17 she was married to Clem DAY, by whom she had two daughters:

(1) Dorothy Fern DAY b 12 Feb 1923

(2) Ruth Marie DAY b 8 July 1926.

Problems developed with the young family and Doris and Clem separated, finally obtaining a divorce. Doris supported herself by working for a time as a housekeeper in the home of her cousin, Burt MILLER, in Denver, Colo. She returned to Holdrige, Nebr., and worked for an elderly couple for a time, moving from there to Fremont, Nebr., where she worked in the hotel where Glen found her.

Glen and Doris were married in Denver, Colo., then returned to Salt Lake. Glen changed jobs and worked for a time for Shank Woolen Mills, then a few years later he started selling real estate. Moving from Salt Lake to Sandy in 1942, they bought a home with acreage where they could raise a garden and have room for the boys to grow. There were years of struggle and hardship but the children remember fondly how their mother worked hard canning fruit and vegetables; baking bread almost daily to keep them fed; working nights as a nurse to an invalid woman to help meet living expenses, yet always being home when they were; being the last one to get a new dress or a pair of shoes. They remember Dad being involved in an auto accident which nearly took his life and left his left arm somewhat twisted; the emotional and physical drain that came from the lack of money and means to take care of a big family through the difficult depression years.

When the children were raised and most of them married, Glen and Doris sold the two and a half acres and moved to a smaller home. They later sold that also and became managers of a 34 unit apartment building in Salt Lake City. They managed the apartments long past the regular age for retirement and always kept the apartments rented because Doris always kept everything so clean that people wanted to live there. After about nine years as managers they decided to retire and moved to another apartment house owned by the same man. Within the year the boss talked them into managing that 30 unit house which was easier because of less turnover in tenants. They managed that apartment house for one year and then retired again. They were able to take a few trips and enjoy life together before Doris lost her husband of forty years.

Gordon E. Chidester spent many years as a traveling salesman, during which time he made contact in various states with people who carried the same surname. Always interested in the family and its history, he has been active in the family organization, serving four years as president. During his tenure in office he proposed the publication of a book and put into effect a plan to accomplish the feat.

The Pinkerman family lived for a number of years in Ohio near Mr. Pinkerman's parents. While there Reta served on a home mission for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Returning to Salt Lake City, they lived in the Third Ward. There Reta served her church as visiting teacher, work director, social science class leader and as first counselor in the Relief Society. Wiley was a Junior Sunday School teacher, member of the Genealogical committee and ward clerk.

The two Pinkerman sons were the first grandsons of James Madison Chidester to serve their church on missions, Gene going to the Northwestern States and James to the Great Lakes Mission.

When her mother's health failed, Reta and her family moved into the family home, and, at great sacrifice to themselves, tenderly cared for a beloved and gracious Cornelia Terry Chidester.

An outdoorsman at heart, James Reed, known most familiarly as Reed, excelled in football during his high school years, receiving an all state award. After a six months tour of duty with the active reserves he returned home and entered Brigham Young University to study art. Not liking the classes there, he transferred to Utah Technical College where he trained to be a machinist. He obtained employment with the United States Steel, in Geneva, Ut., and established his home in American Fork where he continues his interest in art.

12-322 Dale Eldon CHIDESTER b 10 Nov 1953; is a graduate of American Fork high school and attends the Technical College in Provo, Ut., where he is training to be a diesel mechanic. He served a mission for his church in Bogota, Columbia; enjoys camping, fishing, hunting and music.

12-323 Robin Franklin Strasburg CHIDESTER b 5 Nov 1954; md 15 Oct 1976, Nancy PARKER.

Actually the son of Donald and Rochelle STRASBURG (brother and sister-in-law of Mrs. Chidester) he was brought to the Chidester home at the age of eight months because of the separation of his parents. It was to be a temporary arrangement until the estranged couple could be reconciled. That time never came and after years of anxious waiting, Robbie, who had become an integral part of the family, was legally adopted and became a Chidester. In high school Robbie engaged in sports and also played the trombone in the high school band and in a jazz band. Returned from a mission to Sweden in Apr 1976, he plans to continue his education at the University of Utah, his wife working to help him through.

Still a baby when the family moved from Rich--field, Ut., to the small neighboring farm community of Venice, Earl did his growing up on the farm there, helping his father and brothers in all the varied activities of farm life. At the age of fifteen they moved to Delta, Ut., then from there to Salt Lake City. It was the depression years and there were no jobs for young people. His older sister Reta and her husband had moved to Highland, Utah, to work on a farm and Earl followed them. Highland is a small farm community located between American Fork and Alpine, Utah.

It was while living on the farm at Highland, that Earl had a blind date and met his future wife. Thelma had graduated from high school at age sixteen. A keen student and avid reader, she tried to find work but the only thing available to her was housework or work in the fields picking berries or other produce. This avocation prepared her well to be the wife of a farmer.

Married in Salt Lake City, Ut., by Justice of the Peace Mr. GYGI, the young couple returned to Highland to make their home. James Earl was a farmer, having grown up on a farm and more lately hiring out as a farm hand. Eventually he and Thelma obtained a small farm and made that their vocation until the needs of their growing family could no longer be supported with the income from the farm. It was then that he went to work for United States Steel Co., at Geneva, Ut. He continued his farming and working for the Steel Company for twenty eight years until his retirement.

the others, Russell was the darling in his early years. At age 13 he was in an accident that almost cost him his life. He owes his life to the power of the priesthood. At present he makes his living with Gans Ink of Utah and enjoys working for this small company.

Eldon Price Chidester is a hard working family man. He can do any type of work he tries, his motto being "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again." He loves outdorr sports and traveling. He has been a locomotive engineer for Kennecott Copper for thirty years. Martha and Eldon have four sons and one daughter, plus the love and respect of them all. As of this date (1976) they have 15 grandchildren, which gives them both a lot of joy.

12-345 Jerry Neil MOORE b 14 Mar 1951, Dayton, Ohio

My first recollection was the family moving from Venice, Ut., to a house in Delta, Ut., where I lived just prior to and when I started school. We moved to another house in Delta which stays in my memory because it had a sink. It didn't work but it represented a real step up in status.

When I was 9 we moved from that house to Salt Lake City where I lived the rest of my single life. I went to school at Madison grade and junior high school and then to Granite High for one year. It was two miles away and I dropped out of school and went to work for two years, then went back to graduate at South High in 1941.

In December 1940 I met James F. MOORE at a skating rink. He was in the Air Force and stationed at the Salt Lake Airport at the time. We were married at my home and then went to live in a small apartment on E St. and 2nd Ave. in Salt Lake for the six months before he went overseas. His ship was at sea when World War II began. I worked during the time he was overseas, first at a laundry and then at Remington Arms plant making bullets.

He returned from overseas and I joined him at Pyote, Texas, moving from there to Columbus, Ohio, and then to Dayton, Ohio. Our first son, Frank James was injured at birth and has suffered from cerebral palsy all of his life.

In 1953 Jim was transferred to San Antonio for a brief period and then to Neassuer, French Province, Morroco, where the boys and I joined him in Feb 1954. We lived in Casa Blanca until Sept 1955.

There was a brief assignment in Clearfield, Ut., at Hill Field. In 1959 Jim was sent to Germany for a tour of duty. I sold the home we had bought in Roy, Ut., moved in with my parents till our orders came and we flew to Bitburg, Germany, where we lived part time at the base and part time in town from 1960 to 1962. While there I had surgery on both ears for a hearing problem I had since the birth of the last child.

In Dec. 1962, we had Christmas visits with our families and went on to George Air Force Base at Victorville, Cal. We lived there on base for six months and then were transferred to March Air Force Base so Frank could attend a special class in Redlands for the orthopedically handicapped. We bought a house there and moved in June, 1963. This was to be our last home together as a family.

Our marriage was dissolved on 14 July 1972, by final decree. I staid in the home. I had started to college while taking Frank to school and have finished two years. I planned to become a nurse but started working as a medical secretary and insurance clerk for Dr. WILLIAMSON

Frank has married and lives with other people in a group marriage. Besides his son I also claim the other boy born in the marriage as grandson. His name is Kilynn.

Jerry is living away from home at present and plays drums in a rock band.

11-197 Lois CHIDESTER, dau of James M¹⁰⁻¹²⁴ (David⁹⁻¹⁰⁶ John M⁸⁻⁸⁵ John P⁷⁻⁵⁷ David⁶⁻⁴⁷) and Cornelia TERRY; b 7 Jan 1923, Venice, Ut; md 26 July 1947, in Salt Lake City, Ut, to Ray Dean SALMANS who was

b 8 Nov 1923, Wichita Falls, Kansas; s of Glenn Bertram SALMANS and Pearl DAVIS; and had ch:

12-346 Terry Dean SALMANS b 4 Nov 1949, Anchorage, Alaska

12-347 Sherri Lynn SALMANS b 29 Aug 1953, Corona Del Mar, Cal; graduate in 1976 of Brigham Young University, Provo, Ut., trained as a school teacher.

12-348 Gregory Burt SALMANS b 29 Aug 1958, Newport Beach, Cal.

The first home I remember was in Delta, Ut. It was a large white brick house near the outskirts of town. It was here I enjoyed the companionship of my sister Connie and that of a neighbor boy, Franklin CARRY. When my sister and I found empty thread spools and fastened them to our shoes with rubber bands, Franklin did likewise.

Summer days were sometimes warm enough to warrant an excursion by the family to the "old swimming hole"--an irrigation ditch. Commercial swimming suits were something of a luxury, but one of our older dresses tucked into the elastic in the legs of our bloomers served just as well.

Later on we moved to a house a little further out in the country and it was from this home that I started school. It was necessary to ride the bus. Sometimes when I thought I was ready to leave for the bus stop, Mother would discover that I had not properly rid myself of some honestly accumulated dirt, or that it was time I changed to cleaner apparel and I might be found correcting the oversight when those collected at the bus stop began to call, "Here comes the bus!"

Half way through my first year of school the family moved to Salt Lake City where we lived for a time in a large house on South State St. I have many fond memories of life in this house. There were fireplaces in several rooms, an attic, a long hall and a very large yard which contained several horse chestnut trees. The move to Wentworth Ave didn't change my school at Madison. There, also, I remember attending the Burton Ward, saving grocery receipts to exchange for tickets to the weekly Ward movie.

Our third grade class helped plant trees at the school on Arbor Day. Graduating from Madison, I attended Granite High School, walking the two miles twice a day until my senior year when bus service was installed. I graduated from this school, proud to have made it through, but sorry for my Mother that she was so old that her youngest was graduating.

I was able, with the help of my sister, to get a job in a laundry. Next, another sister helped me get a job in a bakery. It was ventilated by a fan so was better. I worked also in the fabric department of Auerbach's one Christmas season, actually getting this job on my own. Eventually, with the help of a third sister, I worked at United Airlines Commissary.

One Saturday afternoon I stood before Herman GYGI, a justice of the peace, in the front room of our house and said "I do" to Ray Dean SALMANS. There was a very nice reception, after which we left for Topeka, Kansas, to meet Ray's folks. I really can't recommend Kansas for a July honeymoon. The temperatures soared to 110° in the daytime, cooling off to 90 at night.

We had been married about six months when Dean left for Anchorage, Alaska, to take a job there. I followed him shortly and spent two years there, returning to Utah in 1950, and from there to Corona Del Mar. After the birth of our daughter, we bought a home in Newport Beach and have lived there since.

Our oldest son has an apartment in Fullerton and works for Globe Union, making batteries. Sherri is a school teacher and Greg has graduated from high school and is working for a local butcher shop as clean up boy and clerk, beginning to learn the trade in general. Dad works for Benmar Marine Radio in the service department and Mother is deep in genealogy and loving every minute of it.

Born and raised in Bicknell, John William Chidester was known as Will most of his life. He was a good athlete and had a chance to go to college but did not take it because he wanted to work and make a living. He worked in his father's sawmill and was a good sawyer and carpenter. He built a home on a lot in Bicknell and raised his own garden and animals for the necessities of life. After his family got too big for the first home he built another one on a part of the same property.

He was a good fisherman and could catch fish when no one else could. He died while fishing in Nov 1962.

His wife, Amanda, the 3rd child in a family of 15, was also born and raised in Bicknell. When she was just 15 years of age she was returning home from a dance when the wagon in which she was riding overturned. Amanda was thrown onto a rock and broke her shoulder. There was no doctor to take care of her and some of the men tried to set the shoulder by placing an object under her arm and then lowering the arm to her side to bring the bones into position. Of course, it didn't get set right and was always a problem to her. A small woman, she still worked hard and raised a big family besides three of her grandchildren and also providing a home for six of her brothers while they attended school.

After Will's death, Amanda moved to Salt Lake City to be near doctors and to do temple work but still maintained her home in Bicknell which she visits regularly in the summer. At age 85 she has had five pacemakers installed at various times.

herded cattle, and picked up lime rocks to be burned in his father's kiln. He and his brothers, during their high school years, learned to use their initiative in finding work of all sorts. One summer they leased a sand and gravel pit and hauled those commodities for builders. In the winter they made a contract to unload coal at the rail yard. They would attend school during the day, then shovel coal at night. Each car held about sixty tons of coal. Working hard they could unload a car in about four hours and for this they received $20.00 per car.

The summer before his senior high school year, Walter was working on a road job hauling concrete. During the summer he suffered several attacks of appendicitis. Returning home for school the doctor advised that he must have an operation. He was reluctant, for he was a football player and didn't want to miss playing any of the games in his senior year. However, the need was acute and the operation was performed. The fourth day afterwards he was roaming the halls of the hospital and helping the nurses fold clothes, visiting with them and doing all sorts of odd jobs. The eighth day he walked two miles to go home and the third week afterwards he was playing football for the school.

The sojourn in the hospital introduced him to the wonder world of girls and soon he was dating nurse Helen Carr. An elopement to Green River ensued but the marriage was kept secret until Hazel decided that they should go to Colorado to visit her family for Christmas. The Chidester family was advised of the marriage and Walter set out on his life's trail.

The trip was made in Hazel's 1926 Star as far as Montrose, Colo. The roads from there on were impassable because of storm, so the car was parked and the rest of the trip made by train and stage coach to the Meredo Ranch, Hazel's family home. Remaining at the ranch for the winter, Walter worked carrying mail across the mesa from Sapinero to Meredo. When the snow became too heavy he and a brother-in-law fabricated a ski-mobile from an old Ford car, which they used until the snow melted.

In the spring Hazel obtained work at a hospital in Pueblo and Walter worked for the gas company for a time, going from there to Denver. Work was uncertain at best. The telephone company hired him to help build telephone lines from Nebraska but that took him away almost continually. Hazel was working and living at a hospital, It was only natural that differences should arise and the marriage should end in divorce.

Walter obtained a job with the railroad, engaged as a carpenter to build bridges, and was sent to Walker, Wyo., where he met a tyrant of a boss. Never before had he seen a bull whip used to intimidate men, but it was used there. After an altercation with his boss, Walter quit the job, sent the money he had earned to Hazel, and hitchhiked to Casper, Wyo., where he obtained work with a rancher.

Ranching was a familiar field. He enjoyed the work there and loved the family. The pay was good and he could save most of it. Living with a family like that, he began thinking of home and soon decided he had been gone long enough.

After a short visit with the family in Price, Ut., Walter went to Salt Lake City and obtained work with the Mountain States Telephone Co. He helped to rebuild the lines from Richfield to Kanab and back to Thistle. Then, on a visit home he met the girl who was to become his life-long companion. They were married in Salt Lake City and went to live first in Thistle.

This marriage was a good one. He was more mature and had lucrative employment. That made a difference. And Delta was the kind of a girl who dedicated herself to making the marriage work and who could meet the trials and emergencies of life with dignity and serenity.

During their first year Delta bumped her leg on the stove and a sore developed that refused to heal. Walter took her to Price to see the doctor and it was found that she had developed osteomyelitis and an operation was necessary. For several months Delta walked only with crutches and had to be near the doctor. In order to be close to his wife, Walter quit the telephone company and went to work in the coal mine that his father had leased. On the side he also worked cutting logs and operating a sawmill.

The family began to increase. Each time, Delta suffered difficult pregnancies and the births were accompanied by complications that threatened her life.

After the mining lease ran out, the family tried farming in Green River. The depression years were on and the venture didn't work out well. There was a brief try at living in Bancroft, Idaho, and a job for a time on the railroad in Grand Junction, Colo., followed by coal mining in Sunnyside, Utah. After a period of part time work in the mines, Walter finally was put on full time and for eleven years worked as carpenter in the mines. He bought a lot and built their first home that was fully theirs.

A trip with his parents into Arizona and another one to California with his sister, convinced Walter that there were green pastures elsewhere. Coal mining was on the downgrade again and he was back on a part time basis; his children were growing up, marrying and leaving the family nest. It was time for a change.

With a 1941 Chrysler car, a trailer and a tent, Walter and his family set out for California, arriving 2 March 1951. Living in the tent for two weeks after arrival, they finally found a home they thought they could afford and moved in to 16126 Hart St., North Hollywood. Walter found a job under the carpenter's union, Local #844, in Reseda and began work on big buildings, storm drains and freeway bridges.

When the Van Nuys airport was enlarged their home was taken and the family moved to Sylmar, but didn't remain there long. Their last move was to 15128 Marson, Van Nuys.

The Mormon Church was building a stake center in Van Nuys and Walter went to work Saturdays, days off and evenings to help in the building. Delta became involved in the various meetings and activities and soon they were both involved. Since then she has served as librarian, teacher, visiting teacher and supervisor in the church. Walter has answered every call to be successively Elder's quorum counsellor, High Priest counsellor; ward clerk; teacher, building maintenance; home teacher; and together they served two inspirational missions for the Church, building chapels in Japan.

Since their release from the last mission they have been involved with raising the children of their eldest daughter who passed away; and in answering the demands of an ever expanding family. Counting those who have married into the family, Walter and Delta stand at the head of a family of fifty-three--children, grandchildren, great grandchildren.

Orvill's earliest memory was of going out with his older brothers to bring the cows in from the pasture. There was a strange looking animal with the cows and Orvill ran to the house to tell his father of the cow with the big horns on its head. His father realized from the description what it was, grabbed his gun and got to the door just in time to see a big deer jump the fence and disappear into the cedars.

Each time the family moved there was a period of time when they lived in a tent that was mounted on low wooden walls over a wooden floor. During one of those times Father was away at work and Mother had gone to help a sick neighbor, leaving the four boys home alone. A wind came up and whipped the flap of the tent so that it went over the stove in which there was a fire. The flap caught fire and the tent was soon in flames. The boys had presence of mind enough to carry as much of the contents out as they could, all the while trying to put the fire out. Their only water supply was a barrel of water that their father had hauled up from the spring. The tent was a total loss but the boys had managed to save most of the household goods and were unhurt.

Fire was to figure in Orvill's life again, for, still a young boy, he was sent to light a fire under the tub that had been set up in the yard to heat water for the wash. There had been a fire there the night before, but boy-like, Orvill thought to make the job easier he would douse the chips with gas. An old ember was still hot enough to ignite the gas and it flashed out, catching the boy unaware and setting his clothes on fire. He made a dash for the ditch thinking to find water there, but the ditch was dry. He ran back towards the house where he met his father who had seen what was happening and had grabbed a quilt. Pulling the burning overalls from the boy, he then wrapped him in the quilt and extinguished the fire. There were severe burns and Orvill spent six months in bed recuperating. After the burns were healed it was found that he had laid in one position so long that his legs were set in a bent position and he couldn't walk. His brothers worked with him, making him exercise and trying to strengthen the weak muscles. To stretch the tendons they would have him sit on a chair and put his feet on another chair and then they would push on his knees to straighten them out. It was painful, but it worked.

At the age of 16 Orvill quit school to go to work in the coal mine his father had leased in Dead Man Canyon. Orvill had been trained to work hard and he loved to work. He owned a team of horses in which he took great pride. He used the team to haul coal or sand and gravel, whatever his father should require.

As he grew older and decided he needed a change of scenery, Orvill took a week end trip with his cousin who was hauling coal over the mountain to Lehi, Ut. There he met Sadie Beth and fell in love with her. After a short courtship they were married and returned to Dead Man Canyon to live. A year passed and a baby was expected. Sadie Beth returned to her home in Lehi for the birth and remained there for a time, with Orvill coming to see them every week end that he could.

Eventually Orvill was able to build a house in Price to which he moved his family. He continued to work at the mine but was able to be home with his family. Exchanging his team for a truck he was able to do considerable hauling of coal, sand and gravel and other things on the side.

When the steel mill was being built in Provo, Ut., Orvill decided that he would like to see if he couldn't find work other than coal mining and moved his family to Lehi. There he hauled sand and gravel to the steel plant for a time, then operated a fork lift for the brick plant in Lehi where they were making bricks to line the furnaces of the mill. He was doing well economically, but in 1945, decided that he could do better back in Price.

Home again, he began working for the Spring Canyon Coal Company as a tippie mechanic, staying there until 1959, when the mine closed.

Orvill was always kind and considerate of his parents and grandmother, ever ready to help them in any way he could. He remained in Price as long as they needed him. Then in 1961, he moved his family to Salt Lake where he obtained work. They tried apartment living for a short time and decided that was not for them. Looking around at possibilities they settled on a mobile home. They have exchanged homes several times, always going to a larger one. They have lived at the same location for 15 years.

Besides their four children they have sixteen grandchildren.

Bonnie Sue began dancing lessons when she was three and studied ballet, modern tap, acrobats, baton twirling, drill team, Hawaiian dancing for the next 13 years. When she was 10 she began dancing at University of Utah Extension classes and danced in the production of Ballet West's Nutcracker Ballet each Christmas for several years. She was a cheer leader and a member of the elite drill team at Layton High, as well as an honor student. Graduating from there in 1971, she attended Weber State College where she was a member of the Chant-onelle Drill team. She worked at IRS in Ogden for about a year then joined her parents in California in 1973 and attended Pierce College. When Steven Evans SEALY returned from his mission to Japan they began dating and married. Both are scuba divers and live in Van Nuys while Steven is studying to be a doctor, attending Cal State Northridge.

James Ray CHIDESTER was born on the family homestead between Bluebell and Altonah, Utah, the first of seven children born to Charles Ray and Winnie May Heath Chidester. At various times he lived in Altonah, Sunnyside, Huntington, Storrs (now Spring Canyon) and Price, Ut. He graduated from high school in Price, U., in 1931 and soon thereafter the family moved to Green River, Ut.

While living in Green River, James met Irene BOOTH who was there visiting her grandmother and working. After their marriage they continued to live in Green River until 1941 when they moved to San Diego, Cal., where Ray worked for Convair making parts for B24 bombers all during World War II.

In 1945, after VE Day they moved to Clearfield, Utah, where Ray worked for thirteen years. In the fall of 1952 they bought six and a half acres of land in East Layton, a beautiful spot high on the mountain-side overlooking the Great Salt Lake. The land was covered with oak brush. They built a house and planted a garden. Irene went to work at Ogden Arsenal building bombs for the Korean War, to pay for a shetland pony, saddle and bridle which they gave to their six sons for Christmas that year. Irene's mother gave them a cow so the boys could have all the milk, cream and butter they wanted. They moved into the house in March 1953 and continued to build it around them.

In 1957 after the oldest son graduated and went to work for United Airlines in San Francisco, he was able to obtain passes for his parents and they began traveling on their vacations.

Fall of 1957 Ray quit working for the Arsenal and went to work for Marquardt Company in Ogden as a machinist making parts for the moon rockets. Irene worked for Internal Revenue Service and Hill Air Force Base as key punch and a data communications operator.

In 1961 their house burned. They decided to take the insurance money and start to build a new, larger house on the property. They did all the work themselves. Even the littlest ones helped. They moved into it in June 1962, then repaired the damage to the old house and rented it. In 1968 they built another house on the property for Irene's mother. She died in 1969, so they rented that house, too.

In 1972 Marquardt abandoned their plant in Ogden and moved to Van Nuys, California, giving their employees the chance to go with them. Ray and Irene decided to move.

They have always been active in the Church and held many positions. Ray is now (1976) assistant ward clerk and Irene specializes in publishing ward newspapers. She has continued her education since the children are grown and expects to graduate from college.

John Lindon Chidester attended schools in Price and Green River, Ut., graduating from Green River High School in 1943. He attended Carbon College in Price for a time, then went into the U.S. Army where he served during World War II. Following the war he attended Utah State College in Logan, Utah, where he later graduated and continued studying. He also studied at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Not long after his marriage in the Logan LDS Temple, he took his bride to live in Denver, Colo., where he worked for the government in secret experimental work. After the birth of their first daughter, John and Eldora moved back to Logan, Ut., where he taught school in Utah State University.

Eldora (Dora) also taught school and the eldest daughter, Ann , graduated from University with a teaching certificate. Charles Lynn served a mission for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

At the age of three Kathlene began training in ballet and tap dancing, becoming very proficient in the ballet. Her vivid imagination created a "pretend" kangaroo pet who lived in the bathroom. Then while in first grade, she accidentally cut holes in a new dress.
When she arrived home she explained the holes by telling of a huge moth that flew into the room and chewed the holes in her dress.

A graduate of LDS Business College in Salt Lake City, she holds a secretarial degree and worked as a secretary to the LDS Church Building Administrator.

12-641 Michele BUTLER b 23 July 1956, Salt Lake City, Ut; Born with a hip defect, Michele had to wear a brace until she was 9 months old. Overcoming the defect, she studied tap and bal-let. At the age of five she began studying the piano and at eight she added violin, becoming very proficient on both instruments. Just prior to her graduation from high school she received two scholarships: one for violin solo and the other from the Board of Education. In 1976 she was in her junior year tha the University of Utah majoring in elementary education with a minor in music.

When I (Julia Ellen Chidester) was a year old my family moved to Green River, Utah. One of our neighbors was a sweet old lady whom we called 'Aunt Anna' She had a slate so people could write her notes; she was totally deaf. When I was old enough to go to school I would hurry home each day so I could "converse" with Aunt Anna on her slate.

While we lived in Green River my father traveled most of the time on his job. In the summer he would take my mother and me with him. I looked forward to traveling with him throughout the southern and eastern parts of the state where he dealt mostly with Indians. He knew the country well and would always tell me stories to make the trip very interesting.

We lived in Green River for nine years and then my father became very ill and we moved back to Price. About two weeks before my eleventh birthday he died.

While I was attending junior high school and high school I enjoyed writing for the school papers. It was then, also, that I became interested in photography and was the secretary for the Carbon Camera Club for two years. In my senior year a blind girl, Lorna GRAMES, attended our school and I was asked to be her reader. This was a very enriching experience for me.

After graduation from Carbon High School, I moved to Salt Lake City where I attended LDS Business College. While there I was associate editor of the school paper. It was there also that I met Roland DeGraw BUTLER.

I have had the pleasure of holding positions in all the auxiliary organization of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints and doing genealogy and temple work. I have attended sessions in all the temples in the western part of the United States (with the exception of two) and have found great joy in doing so. I pray that I might be able to work in the church all the days of my life.

My father came to Raymond, Alberta, Canada, from Provo, Utah, with the Willie BULLOCK emigrant train in 1902 and had nearly completed a home to live in when Mother arrived with five children, Mar 3, 1903.

I finished public school and took three winters of high school, a mid-winter course. Vocation was farmer and rancher. I was a successful ranch man and a fair broncho rider after many years of hard knocks.

Sept 28, 1918, I enrolled with the Royal Northwest Mounted Police at Regina, Saskatchewan. The date of my discharge from that service was 11 July 1919, at Regina. Theaters of service were Canada and Siberia. Service number was 2772545.

I was recommended by the Locomotive foreman of Grand Forks, B.C; also by our Master Mechanic, Mr. BARON of Nelson, as a first class fireman. Places of residence during this service were: Provo, Ut; Raymond, Twin River, Mountain View, Cardston, McLeod and Calgary, all in Alberta, Canada. We moved to Nelson, B.C., Canada, 12 Oct 1943.

A branch of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints was organized in Nelson 12 Mar 1944, with Barton C. POULSON as Presiding Elder. There were twenty three members, ten of which were Carters.

Lamonde L. Carter

Lamonde passed away in Nelson, B.C. Two children had previously deceased him. He had filled a home mission in Cardston, Alberta, Canada, and was second counselor in the Twin River Branch and counselor in the Nelson Branch Sunday School. He bore a strong testimony to the truthfulness of the gospel and encouraged the children to fill their minds with useful knowledge.

Although only about three and a half years of age when his parents moved from Kanosh, Ut., still Harald Leigh Cropper's earliest memories are of there. He remembers mostly the Indians:

First: A squaw came once a week to help his mother with the family washing. The washing was done, in summer, outside in the yard where an old stove was placed to heat the water. Harald had a beloved pet cat. Her favorite nook was the oven of the old stove where she curled up to sleep. One time the squaw closed the oven door, not knowing that the cat was inside, built a raging fire and left for other chores while the water was heating in the boilers on top of the stove. The tragedy made a lasting impression on the small boy.

Second: A horse in the field across the street was one of the attractions a boy loved to watch. Somehow the horse sickened and died. The owner hired some of the local Indian men to haul the horse away. The boy connected the death of the horse with the Indians who had removed it and formed a sad impression of Indians in general. The Kanosh Indians were among the most peaceful and friendly of all the tribes in all the west, but not in the mind of young Harald Cropper.

Moving to Provo, the family lived in a house owned by the Darlings and were very near Grandma Esther Chidester Pulsipher Snow. There Harald played with cousins Dave Thomas and Elton Sumner and others. Then came the move to Charleston, Utah. He remembered many things about Charleston: his first year at school; deep snow and sleigh rides; going to Midway in Bob-sleighs in the winter to swim in the "Hot-Pots"; fishing; going with a small red wagon to gather mushrooms after a rainstorm; taking the town cows to the meadow; learning to swim in the Provo river; watersnakes around the river; rattlesnakes on the hills. When he was about eight there was a flood that covered all the meadow land.

The railroad depot was very near the hotel in which his family lived. It had a high platform made of planks with cracks between. One day Harald was exploring as boys will, in the dark place under the platform, watching the sunshine make stripes of light in the dark, when he discovered a real gold mine. The sun hit a 50¢ piece. This precious place was searched often after that discovery and was usually good for ten to twenty five cents.

The first automobile he remembers was driven to Charleston by Mr. Auerbach who owned the store of the same name in Salt Lake City. Mr. Auerbach, along with other well-to-do men, came often to Charleston to enjoy the canyon and the fishing. He usually came on the train. The first automobile which he drove there chugged along at about twelve miles per hour. It had no top; the back seat was two feet higher than the front seat and there was a big, square engine.

The train, running from Provo to Heber City, came to Charleston once a day in the summer time. It was really a freight train with a passenger car added. During the winter months the train did not run because of the deep snow. It is still operating and is now called the "Heber Creeper."

One of Harald's favorite people in Charleston was a Mr. Driggs, son of the Howard Driggs who wrote the "Live Language Books" that were used in the grade schools for many, many years. Mr. Driggs taught the boys many things while living at the hotel: how to make bows and arrows, sling shots, flute whistles.

Father Cropper was asked to be principal of the school in Midvale, Utah, a steel and smelter town. There Harald and his brothers were kept busy tending the huge garden which provided vegetables for the table and some to be sold to neighbors. During his teen years jobs included topping and thinning sugar beets. School closed for two weeks in the fall for beet topping. There was a large sugar factory in West Jordan. Harald was only fourteen when he first worked at the factory. . . pushing a wheelbarrow full of beet tops up a ramp, bringing it back empty to find another loaded for him to push up the ramp again. He worked a twelve hour shift each day, walking almost two miles to and from work.

HERITAGE

At the age of fifteen Harald, who was large and strong for his age, began work at the smelter. During the school year he would go to the smelter on Friday after school and "rustle" for a job, then work the entire week end. He learned most of the jobs at the smelter and became what was known as a "swing man"

Working as he had, made Harald strong and hard so that during his high school years he was a valued football player. During the last two years he did not miss one minute of any game despite the fact that he received a broken collar bone, three broken ribs, a broken right foot and a broken nose. When he broke the three ribs, the game was held up for half an hour while the team doctor taped Harald up. He played at half back and the last two years was center.

At the University of Utah where he was studying engineering, Harald was in the quartet with the glee club. They sang in the old Salt Lake Theater; put on the opera "Sampson and Delilah;" and were offered a job with the Pantages Circuit.

His first business venture was a sort of a hot dog-hamburger stand with groceries as a side line. He and his partner called it The Barney Google. One day a salesman who was also a distributor, asked Harald to sell for him on a trial basis. He took the job and was instrumental in introducing the Cardinet Candy line to South Salt Lake City and as far south as St. George. This line included the Baffle Bar and Uno Bar lines.

Always active in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Harald has served variously as counselor and president of Mutual Improvement Associations; Sunday School superintendent; stake missionary; missionary to Texas; high priest group leader; counselor in a bishopric; teacher. He says: "I know that the Church is true, and many of my prayers have been answered. Wherever we have lived, I have always supported the bishop who was over the ward. I love the Temple. That is the closest place to heaven that we can enter on this earth. I hope that all of our posterity will be able to enjoy the temple blessings. My family has always been of utmost importance to me."

Mariam says: "Harald was blessed at birth with a great voice. As a child he sang in public functions. As he matured, he developed a most unusual tenor voice-- clear, great range, great volume. He sang in all the ward choirs wherever we lived."

Most of Paul's childhood, a happy one, was spent in Midvale, Utah, where his father was principal of the elementary school. He finished grade and high school in Jordan District and later graduated from LDS Business College in Salt Lake City, in Accounting and Auditing.

Paul was working in Salt Lake City for Lovinger's Disinfectant Compnay when he met Louise Fenn who was teaching school at Plymouth Elementary in Salt Lake City.

After moving around at different jobs for a time, Paul and Louise went to Twin Falls, Idaho. After the birth of their first son they decided to return to Salt Lake City. It proved difficult to find work in Salt Lake so they moved to Salina, Utah. They remained there for nine years with Paul doing different jobs, ranging from WPA (Works Progress Administra.) accounting in an office and traveling doing government work as District Finance Officer in three counties. Paul grew in his work continually.

From Salina, Paul and Louise moved to Orem into a rented house and from there to a new home in American Fork a year later. Paul became Chief Accountant of Schulman Electric Company when they built Geneva Steel in Orem. The family stayed in American Fork until Aug 1945 when they bought a home in Salt Lake City. At that time Paul went to work for the State of Utah in the Capitol Building as Chief Accountant for the State Road Commission. He spent several years at that job, then moved to the Utah State Prison to the position of Business Manager. He continued to work for the prison for nineteen years when he was asked to return to the State Capitol as Fiscal Director of the Correction Department in 1972. He held this last position approximately two years until his retirement in 1974.

Very devoted in his church service, he filled two stake missions and was President of his 70's Quorum and his High Priest's Group. Paul also did a lot of temple work and was looking forward to a mission with his wife, Louise.

Paul's pride and joy was his family: his four children and their spouses, his thirteen grandchildren. He was very generous with his time and money whenever his family was concerned. They always said that he had a tough exterior with a marshmallow interior.

Paul and Louise traveled extensively through the years, taking their children as long as they were home with them. To celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary in 1975, Paul and Louise traveled to the Caribbean in January that year.

Paul's life was one of service to his government and to the state of Utah, his family and his church. His jobs were of distinction and well performed. He had a very pleasing personality and everyone loved him. The Governor of Utah said that Paul was the only man in the state who could save them money!

Paul died just short of his 50th wedding anniversary.

Dr. Paul Kent CROPPER is a Doctor of Dental Surgery. Gerald Fenn CROPPER owns a jewelry store in Richfield, Ut., and raises quarter horses as a hobby. Lt. Col. Richard Neal CROPPER retired from the Army Service, owns a Phillips gasoline station in Petaluma, California. Although born in Charleston, my boyhood was spent in Sandy and Midvale, Utah. In Midvale we had about two thirds of an acre of land on which many fruits and vegetables were raised. Schooling was at Jordan High and the University of Utah. Boyhood work consisted of selling vegetables, delivering the Salt Lake Telegram, thinning and topping beets, and various other tasks on a farm. Sports included swimming, roller-skating, sleigh riding, basketball, football, tennis.

Following work at Walker Mine, California, and Bingham, Utah, and an extra year at school, there was a mission to England. Then came work as an engineer at the Tintic Standard Mining Company in Dividend, Utah, for five years; then a year's military service in the 15th Infantry at Ft. Lewis, Wash., and the 27th Engineers at Portland, Oregon.

Marriage to Leora Curtis took place in the Salt Lake temple and after a honeymoon in Seattle, Wash., there was work as a metallurgist for four years at Boeing Airplane Co., during World War II. Since Sept 1945, we have lived ten years in Salt Lake City and fifteen years in Granger. There was work a short time with the Galigher Co; Utah Idaho Sugar Co; and War Assets Administration; then twenty five years as a mining engineer for the U.S.S.R. & M. Co at Bingham and Lark, Ut.

It has been a pleasure to take vacation trips, usually with at least some of our six children, seeing the northwest, California, Canada, the Cumorah Pageant,

New England and other points of interest.

Always there has been church activity: with the youth, as stake missionary or in genealogical pursuits. The wife and children have been a delight. The last four years we have lived in a double wide mobile home in Provo. Our tiny lot is easy to keep beautiful with lovely lawn and lots of flowers. The principal form of exercise is riding a bicycle. Hobbies are genealogical research, visiting relatives and playing tennis.

A letter from William (Bill) Chidester, 1976:

"When my mother died we moved to Wendell, Idaho. Our family began to split up and I lived in various towns in Idaho with various relatives. About 1941, my father married Miss Anna OSMASSON, a school teacher, and they moved to Seattle, Washington, about 1942. At the time I was living in Garden Valley, Idaho, with Mr. & Mrs. John GLENNON. We (my brother Delorne and I) went to Seattle to live with my father and step-mother.

"I finished high school in Seattle and went in to the army in 1945. While in the army, stationed in Fort Lee, Virginia, I met Miss Louise MATTHEWS. We were married. After serving six years in the army, I was discharged and returned to LaCrosse, Virginia, to live. We have been living in the community since 1951."

In 1976 Bill was serving as mayor of LaCrosse.

12-746 Wren Darwin ARTHUR b 3 Mar 1951; Huntington Park, Cal; d 18 May 1953.

Born in Gilroy, Calif., the first son of Allen Ross Arthur Sr. and Christa Chidester, I attended school, elementary and high school, in South Gate, Cal. Also, one year of Junior College in Compton. I attended the Walnut Park Ward until my marriage and we moved away from that area.

I was married to Nedra Arden BROUSSEAU and we have two sons. We had the misfortune of losing our second son.

I worked in partnership with my father in the livestock business in the Imperial Valley the first few years of my marriage, then I started in the livestock transportation, in a business of my own. It grew to be quite prosperous, but I decided I would like to haul commodities as well as livestock, so I sold the Allen Arthur Transportation business and bought another business and named it the Thunderbird Freight Lines. This grew to be a very prosperous business, grossing $16 million per year. It was sold to Delta in 1975.

Today I reside in Newport Beach, Cal., with my wife Nedra and I am currently a major owner of Del Taco Fast Food Co. I am still active in the cattle feeding business.

Theodore (Ted) Carlyle CHIDESTER grew up and was educated in the southern Utah town of Panguitch. He taught school for a short time, saved his money and decided to go east to study pharmacy. Working part time to put himself through school, he managed to graduate and returned to Utah to practice his profession. He was manager of Greenhalgh Pharmacy in Salt Lake for many years, moving eventually to San Diego to manage a drug store there. It was while attending pharmacy school that he met Rhoda POULSON who was in Pennsylvania on a mission for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. After their various returns to Salt Lake City, they courted and married.

James Clarence (Clare) CHIDESTER, received his education in the Panguitch schools; was a member of the LDS church and attended to his church duties. He was a farmer and rancher for many years, owning and operating a farm in Junction, Ut., for some years, then moving to his farm in Roosevelt, Duchesne, Utah. He was a member of the Roosevelt police force for eleven years. After retiring from the police force, he sold the farm and moved to Salt Lake City where he owned a cafe for a few years until his health failed him.

A charitable and generous man, no one ever left his home hungry and needy. He took in a number of boys and raised them. He was a good man, husband and father and was always so good to his parents, brothers and sister.

Lorena served for several years as secretary of the CHIDESTER Family Organization in Utah, and as program chairman. During her efficient operation attendance at the reunions grew and the files were enlarged and brought up to date. Her home is run just as efficiently. Her husband, Vernile, has served a number of years as Bishop of the ward in which they live and as high councilman in the stake. The two eldest children have both served missions for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Paul going to the Southern States Mission and Susan to Taiwan as a health missionary.

Close family relationships in her youth gave Thelma CHIDESTER a keen appreciation of heritage and ancestry. Living closely with her mother's people and working with her mother on the Workman family records taught her genealogical research. In her early teens her Mother bought a typewriter for her and said, "You must learn to type so you can be the recorder of the information we find about our family!" After that, her summers and free time during the school year were spent in that activity.

The early death of her father had separated Thelma somewhat from her paternal relatives. They were living in Richfield, Utah, while she grew up in mid-state Delta. Grandfather Chidester, who was a judge and active politically, made frequent trips to Salt Lake City. On the way he would swing around by Delta to see "John's family." Thelma looked forward to these visits. She loved him very much and then, too, it gave her prestige with her peers to have so illustrious grandfather. On these visits he would take the family riding in his car, a rarity in Delta; take them with him to visit other relatives and on picnics. Always there would be a box of flowers addressed to Thelma from Grandma Allie.

Besides the school in Delta, Thelma graduated from high school in Cedar City, Utah, and received her bachelor's degree from the University of Utah in Salt Lake City, Utah. There had been a delightful summer when she accompanied her mother on a genealogical expedition. They attended a term of summer school at the University of Illinois in Chicago, did research there, then went on to Ohio to meet and work with distant relatives there.

Marriage to Elmer C. ANDERSON did not lessen the genealogical ardor. Orphaned at age 16, he had been self-supporting since that time and had spent some years at sea as a radio operator. He loved being a member of a big family. His parents having emigrated from Sweden, he hadn't known the companionship of cousins, grandparents and others. He was caught up in the family fever.

Grandfather CHIDESTER, who had always taken care of the family records and reunions, was dead. So, also, was his sister who had succeeded him in the work. Thelma and Elmer decided that they would take up the task, with Elmer in charge of it. The Chidesters became his family in very deed and soon he was elected genealogist for the Chidester family organization.

In the years that followed, vacations were spent in libraries, tramping through cemeteries, visiting people who carried the Chidester name. During the rest of the year Elmer pursued the project through letter writing and accumulated a valuable file of thousands of letters containing irreplaceable data.

In 1962 Thelma was successful in publishing her mother's work, the WORKMAN FAMILY HISTORY. There had also been a year in England with both the Andersons working on the two family lines, gathering a great deal of interesting information. A summer was spent traveling through Michigan, lower Canada, Ohio, New York and Connecticut to gather early records of the family, then home to record and organize the information.

After his retirement from the National Aeronautics and Space Agency, Elmer has spent the majority of his time in researching the Chidester family and has accumulated vast stores of records. Thelma takes care of family matters, assists and abets. Together they have made this book possible.

Always active in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Thelma has served as Mutual president; Relief Society president; teacher in every organization; has held stake positions; raised a family and for fifteen years worked at Lockheed Aircraft Co., in Burbank, California, a number of years in a supervisory position there. A graduate of University of Utah with a BS in education, she has taught school at various times.

Elmer's chief occupation was radio operator, weather observer, field manager, aircraft inspector and was retired from National Aeronautics Space Agency. In the Church he has served as teacher, Sunday School president, stake clerk, stake high councilor and regional manager of welfare.

Leland was working for the county road department, Knox Co., Ohio, supervising a crew in the removal of trees and brush from a right-of-way. A tree that was being cut down fell erratically, killing Leland instantly.

Millie and her first husband were divorced in 1931. Before her marriage she had studied and worked as a beautician. Moving from Utah to Ohio to be near her mother who then assumed the care of the baby, Millie again worked as a beautician. For awhile she maintained a beauty shop in the home; then took a large house near the Walhonding Dam that was being erected, she cooked for the construction crews.

She was md (2) 22 Aug 1936, in Newport, Campbell, Kentucky, to Walter James SMITH who was b 8 Apr 1911, Georgetown, Brown, Ohio; s of Edward SMITH and Bessie KEARNS. He d 3 Apr 1965, Columbus, Ohio, of a massive brain hemorrhage.

A few years after the loss of her son and husband, Millie decided to move to Utah so that she would be near family members. Her mobile home was moved to Bountiful, Utah, where she enjoyed the companionship of cousins, aunts and could visit and be visited frequently by her sister. While living in Bountiful she established a successful Nite Stand of the Nite Caps of America, a radio talk show.

Grace OGDEN was born on the Frank BAKER farm one hour before assistance came. Her mother and father were alone at the time, so Mother sat up and directed Father on how to tie and cut the cord.

Educated in the Richfield schools, she accepted a call for a mission to the North Central States for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, leaving Salt Lake City 13 March 1937. She returned from that assignment 1 Aug 1939. During the next year or two she served as president of the Richfield First Ward Young Women's Mutual Improvement Association.

Moving to Salt Lake City, she worked in the Presiding Bishop's office in the church until her marriage in 1943. There followed years of moving from place to place in Mexico and Arizona, finally returning to Salt Lake City. Problems developed in the marriage and on 23 Dec 1958, she was divorced from Mr. LeBaron. After that time she supported her family by working in the hospitals of Utah County. A devoted and faithful mother, she raised her children to honorable adulthood. She is an honor and blessing to her parents and family.

"I spent most of my early years on the farm three miles southwest of Richfield, where we had a small dairy farm. My job was to help milk between twenty and thirty cows night and morning, by hand; bottling and delivering the milk by horse and buggy to customers around town. In the summer we had cattle and sheep to herd in the fields or the nearby foothills.

"I attended schools in Richfield, graduating from Richfield High School in 1936, then went to an aircraft school in Los Angeles to learn the building of airplanes but never did work at this trade.

"My earliest steady employment was as a truck driver for a wholesale grocery concern. I spent some six years driving between Richfield and Salt Lake, distributing groceries to the various merchants south of Nephi and Mount Pleasant.

"It was while pursuing this occupation that I met and later married Jean Marie SPERRY. We lived in Salt Lake for a short while, then moved to Richfield where I became self employed as an auto mechanic. This became our livelihood for some twenty years. Then in 1967 I accepted employment with Utah Power and Light Company, where I have worked since, having held several positions such as meter reader; collector; ware-houseman; store-keeper; equipment operator and an automotive mechanic.

"Our three lovely daughters have brought us much joy and happiness and are all devoted to the Church and its teachings.

"I served as second counselor to Bishop Wayne CAMPBELL in Richfield First Ward 1956 to 1961; acted as Priest Quorum advisor; scoutmaster; Young Men's Mutual Improvement president and other positions in the Church."

Born in Richfield, Utah, Clyde moved to Bicknell, Wayne, Uts., at the age of five. As a teenager he played in the family band. He graduated from the Wayne High School in Bicknell and then attended the Branch Agricultural College in Cedar City, where he was prominent as an athlete.

For a period of four years he was associated with Earl COOK in the ice cream business. He then became a uranium miner and was working at a mine in the remote Hansen Creek area of the Henry Mountains when he was injured by a huge rock that had been dislodged by a dynamite blast. The rock rolled to the mine entrance, crushing Mr. Chidester. He was taken by helicopter to Hanksville, then flown to the hospital in Grand Junction, where he died. He was interred in Bicknell, Ut.

When Fred Denzel Barton was two years of age the family moved to Huntington Park, California. He received his education in the Los Angeles area, graduating from North Hollywood High School in 1944. He enlisted in the U.S. Navy that same year; served aboard the U.S.S. Sarasota (APA-204), flagship for Transport Division Fifty, Amphibious Group Eight. Also served aboard the U.S.S. Comet (AP-166.) Participated in the landing operations on Okinawa Island; landing, occupation and surrender of Japanese forces in Jinsen-Keije, Korea and the landing, occupation and surrender of Japanese forces in the Tientsin-Chinwangtae, China area. Also took troops into Sasebe, Japan, for occupation and surrender of Japanese forces.

After discharge from the Navy he attended Los Angeles City College and was then called to serve a mission in the New England States (S. Dilworth Young, Mission President.) Came to a much greater appreciation of the gospel during this period of his life. Entered construction work after returning home, completing his apprenticeship in 1952. In 1956 he was successful in taking out his general contractor's license. He gives credit to the aid of his brother Keith in his efforts to succeed in the building business.

Fred has served as Elder's quorum president, Seventies president, Bishopric and High Council. Their home is in the Newbury Park 2nd Ward, Newbury Park Stake, where one of their daughters is preparing to leave for a mission to the Canada, Halifax Mission.

FALLENTINE

Although born in Deweyville, Utah, Ursal's childhood was spent in the Curlew Valley of Idaho where his parents homesteaded the land for thirteen years. His early schooling - through seventh grade - was obtained in Holbrook, Idaho.

After the family moved back to Deweyville, giving up the struggle of the homestead, Ursal graduated from the eighth grade, then attended Bear River High and Granite High, where he played football.

In 1944, during the Second World War, Ursal joined the Army, serving in the 645th Tank Destroyer Battalion and went to Germany. He was released in 1946.

He had the experience of working in many different professions but settled on the plumbing trade, achieving Journeyman rating and eventually became a Master Plumber. He was the owner and operator of Star Plumbing and Heating, Inc., in Salt Lake City. His two sons took over the business when Ursal decided to retire, although he still kept his hand in.

An avid reader, Ursal's main interests are in history and philosophy. In his youth he memorized many poems and was always fond of poetry.

His favorite sport--taking his grandchildren water skiing. Like other Chidesters in Utah, he claims to be the best fisherman in the state!

My father, Myron Alphonzo Cgidester and his family moved from the dry farm country of Idaho to Salt Lake City, Ut., in 1923 to start a new life. When I was nine years old, 1928, he died. Two years later when Mother remarried, we moved to Huntington, Oregon, where in 1937 I met and married Charles Ronald McCURDY. We moved through the western states, leaving a contribution of landmarks through the occupation of reinforcing steel construction.

Three chosen children (adopted) joined our family as we moved to Canada to help change the skyline of the beautiful city of Edmonton, Alberta, and the surrounding country. Among other buildings, we worked on the International Airport, City Library, Canadian National Railway Tower, 1976 Centennial Building, and the Imperial Oil Project. We had also been party to the construction of the Geneva Steel Mill in Provo, Ut; the Magnesium Plant in Las Vegas, Nev; Nuclear Plants to Hanford, Washington, and Arco, Idaho.

Our eldest son presented us with seven grandchildren, some being the age of our young family, who enjoyed their association.

We are now retired and have come "home" to Utah.

From Pintura to Orderville to see a close friend graduate from high school resulted in my meeting my future husband and eternal mate. Our courtship was different then than the ones now. It was more on a group basis where all the unmarried people met and made ice cream or candy and played games. The jig-saw puzzle was just out and very popular. Joe had not been home from his mission too long and with the mission president's words, "If you're not married in six months" ringing in his ears it didn't take us long to decide to get married.

We were married in the Salt Lake Temple. We made the most of our time there and went to April conference, too, which was a very choice experience for me as it was my first time to attend.

Our first home was the old tithing office where produce turned in for tithing was stored. Here, with the help of my three new brothers and new parents, the place was made livable.

Here, too, on a snowy winter day, our first child, a dark-haired girl, was born. She was the first girl for Grandma and Grandpa Bolander (they having had five boys) and the first grandchild on both sides.

In our early married life we had a policy of having a baby one year and getting a new piece of furniture the next year. We accumulated more new furniture then than we have at any time since.

Our second child, a husky boy this time, we were happy to call Duane Joseph. Duane had a stomach disorder at birth but, with constant care and medication, he was a happy, healthy baby at nine months.

Having two children in the coldest month of the year, we were happy to welcome Karen in August. Karen, with the help of Dr. COVINGTON, made her appearance in our present home. She has always been an independent soul, very religious and a welcome addition to our family.

High noon, Mar. 24, 1942, brought a dainty, curly haired little girl whom we chose to call Shirleen. She was just nineteen months younger than Karen and they were much like twins. I liked to dress them alike. They spent many happy hours together and always sat side by side in primary and Sunday school.

In 1944 Uncle Sam called Joe to serve his country. I was left to care for the four children. It was a time of worry and hard work, as he hadn't been gone three weeks before a series of accidents occurred. Broken bones, cuts, measles, and so on. It is times like this when you appreciate church, family, friends.

In due time Joe was released and we were called upon to lay to rest our little Shirleen who was now four years old. She died in Salt Lake City, after brain surgery for a tumor.

We have had many pleasant experiences church and family wise. Three times in one season we were to go to the temple and see two sisters and a brother married. These are choice memories, enriched each time we go back to the temple.

We were to lose another baby midway in pregnancy before our home was blessed with a second son, Ronald Batty BOLANDER. Dark haired and blue eyed, Ronnie was a special addition to our family.

Dainty, sweet JoAnn came to live with us. She was followed by Laurene, vibrant, fun-loving and quite a tease. Our home would not be complete without Laurene. We have always loved each child in our family. Each so different from the rest, has added something special. We have seven children and ten grandchildren.

Church work has been vital in our life and the offices and callings varied. To name a few: MIA superintendent, high counselor; Bishop, Sunday school board and teacher, genealogy teacher, bishop's counselor and teacher, stake Relief Society board, visiting teacher, Sunday school secretary, High Priest secretary. These with missionary work and trying to live the commandments daily give the true perspective.

We have always stressed education and service. One son served his country and the other went on a mission.

In our forty two years of married life we have had varied experiences--the good and the bad. We have lived through depression and war. Our lives have been enriched with our family and friends.

We still live in the home we built in Orderville. Joe retired last winter and we enjoy average good health.

Adrian Barclay FREDERICKS is the second child and first son of his parents, born in Sterling Mines, New York. It was in Cedar City, Utah, as an adult, that he met and married Iris, taking her to the St. George Temple for the ceremony.

"We have had the pleasure of one son, Terry Lynn, fulfilling a mission for the LDS Church and one son, Adrian Beatty, graduating from Brigham Young University. Also the additional pleasure of all three children being married in the Idaho Falls Temple.

"We are now blessed with seven lovely grandchildren and are enjoying them all so very much. They are all so special in their own little ways.

"We lived for about five months in Tuxedo, New York, then moved to Syosset, Nassau, Long Island, N.Y. and lived there for about five years. After this we moved to Uniondale, Nassau County, New York, and lived there for about twenty one years. It was during this latter time that we were privileged to see the New York Stake, LDS Church (which comprised part of New Jersey, New York City and Long Island) divided into three stakes.

"We are now living in Orem, Utah, and have been for about four years now. We are happy to be here near to the headquarters of the LDS Church and to be so near to our children, grandchildren and other relatives who are living out here in the west."

Ewald and Regina Rapp were married at Ewald's home at 1116 Nassau Dr. Las Vegas, Nev. Ewald had been baptized into the LDS Church that same afternoon. He worked as "garde manger" chef at the Sands Hotel and then went to the Dunes Hotel where he worked for nine years.

In 1971, while on a vacation trip in Utah, Ewald was offered a job at Brigham Young University in food services. We went back to Las Vegas, sold our house there and moved to our new home in Spanish Fork. Ewald has won much recognition for his art work using foods.

Our two children are both studying piano and are in the school orchestra. Both are planning to attend college at Brigham Young University. Daniel wants to become a doctor.

Ewald was born in Minsk, Russia, of German parents who were refugees. He served Germany during the war in Poland, France and Russia, until he was injured and lost his right leg. He was released from the service and became a shoemaker in Braunschweig, Germany. In 1953 he came to Las Vegas, not knowing a word of English. He worked in a cafe owned by a German and worked his way up to become one of the top "garde mangers" in the hotel business in Vegas.

I, Regina, was born in Kanarraville, Utah, and spent several younger years in Pintura and Toquerville, Utah. My father went to Nevada, Goodsprings, and worked in the mines. Graduating from the Las Vegas High School, I went to Salt Lake for a few years. In 1955,

I went for a two year mission in the Spanish American Mission in Texas. When I came home I spent a year on a stake mission in Las Vegas, and was the missionary who taught the gospel to Ewald. When he was baptized we were married.

Christmas Letter, 1967

Greetings from our house to yours. It is good that there is a "year end" and a "year beginning" so as to break the seemingly endless routine and give time to reflect on our past. Hopefully, also to plan anew for the future. 1967 seems from here to be somewhat of a paradox; ie: it seems such a short time since last Christmas and yet so many eventful things seem to have happened and some of these seem so long ago.

Our most happy event was the addition to our family of Garth on Easter Sunday. He is now 9 months old and is a regular member--in fact the most regular member of the family. He is crawling and can manage a smile at almost anything that happens--except being left alone.

Our girl, Michelle, is 3½. She is a typical girl, we suppose, but she is so feminine as compared to the boys it is quite startling to us. Her most prized possession is her long hair, which is really only long to her. Her happiness is a half day nursery school two days a week. Her mother is very proud of her reading vocabulary which is now something like 40 words.

Stephen, 7½, is a very husky, active boy. He spends most leisure hours with Nikki, the pony. He had 4 stitches on the forehead from one fall. He was not deterred. He loves school and has developed some very close friendships. He reads quite well. He can hardly wait to be a cub scout. He causes great consternation in the older brothers by his desired close companionship.

Bruce will graduate from Primary and receive the priesthood this month. He is very conscientious in all he does. He is in band, trumpet. Didn't quite make the 7th grade basketball team, has one more requirement for second class scout and has a morning paper route and still makes respectable grades in school. He is very sports minded. His little league team lost the area championship by one game.

Kim is our individualist. He has respect for others but little concern for time or regulations if they interfere with what he thinks he should or would like to do. His first love is nature in any form. He loves scouting and is working on the star rank. He is the only trombone player in the intermediate band. He has an afternoon paper route and feels quite independent most of the time.

Leatha has developed into the major family project. We are learning so very much how important she is to us and our happiness. A deteriorating health condition over a long period finally culminated in the discovery of heart infection, shortly after the birth of Garth. The infection was successfully arrested but subsequent test showed extensive damage to the mitral valve. Consequently, her activity and physical capabilities have been substantially reduced. We are somewhat saddened by this and yet so thankful she can be as active as she is. We feel that it was only through divine help that the disease was finally diagnosed--Leatha diagnosed it herself with the help of her nurses training.

Kimball is still employed by Aerojet. The employment has dropped from 20,000 in 1964 to about 7,000. However, his job is still very interesting and busy. He was scoutmaster for a short while. He also taught Seminary last year. Presently he is the Elder's Quorum teacher. He manages to avoid most home duties but plays hand ball to keep his weight down to a trim one ton.

(Leatha P. Hall, Carmichael, California.)

Growing up in the farm community of Richfield, Ut., had its advantages. There were summers of pastoral pleasures, lots of swimming, hiking to the hills, and the fruit picking excursions to the farms of uncles and aunts who needed extra help. The picking was work, to be sure, but there was the chance to eat all the fresh fruit one wanted. This was the life of Norma Chidester during her early childhood. On Sunday evenings there was always the additional special treat of the band concert in the town park.

The first motorized vehicle the family had was a motorcycle with a side car. Father would hold sister Ellen as she sat on the gas tank. Mother and the baby occupied the seat of the sidecar and Norma nestled at Mother's feet. The ride could be thrilling, especially when there was a stream of water to cross.

The cycle gave way, eventually, to their first car, a Chevrolet . What a thrill it was for the family to take a ride all together in this shiny black car!

There was the morning of 20 June 1929, that was memorable, for "My Dad woke us up and asked us if we wanted to go visit our Grandma. I knew that the last time he did that, we came home to find another baby sister, so I remember asking him if we were going to get another baby. I don't remember what he said, but I do remember that about a month earlier our neighbor had told me that my mother had miscarried her first child. At that time, I went home and asked Mother and she said yes. I asked her if he was cute, and she said that he was too little to tell.

". . . Sure enough, in the afternoon Dad came to get us and told us we had a big, bouncing baby boy. He was right. He was big--eleven pounds! I could never figure out why they said he was bouncing, though. He was a happy baby, and was a typical boy (later) hating baths, loving to play in the dirt and to eat everything in sight. When he was only a couple of years old Dad cut down a big tree up by the canal and Evan took his little wagon and piled the wood Dad cut in it, and pulled it through the trail in the snow to the woodpile behind the house. Dad would pull big loads in the wheelbarrow and Evan worked hard pulling load after load that seemed like such an impossible task for such a little boy. This was the beginning of a life-time of those two doing things together.

"Dad was a scoutmaster from the time I remember. A group of boys, including his brother Leland and Lynn, were in his first troop. They had heard about the scouting program and inasmuch as the program hadn't come that far west, those boys wanted Dad to be their leader. They wrote to New York for a handbook and instructions and Dad became the first scoutmaster in Richfield, 1913, in what I believe to be the first troop west of the Mississippi River. They were real scouts, not only learning what to do, but really applying it in their lives. They chopped wood for widows, helped poor people with groceries, went on hikes to Cottonwood Canyon, Fish Creek, Fish Lake, Seven Mile, Cove Mountain and many other places. . . In their camps they made beds in the trees, made bridges over little streams and even harnessed the power of the streams and had their own electric lights in camp.

"Dad didn't have any boys of his own for so long that he made scouts of his girls. My mother had also been a Campfire girl, hiking and camping with the girls. But that was before my time. . .

"I dreaded Thanksgiving time for I was usually sick, so the family couldn't join with the other families for the big day. Dad would kill one of our geese and we would have a big meal at home. My mother would make something with wax in it that helped pull the little feathers off, and we (children) would use that wax a year or two in waxing windows at Halloween. Oh, how I wish we hadn't used wax and had used soap instead! But kids don't think about the hard cleaning jobs after such stupid pranks. However, we weren't as destructful as many other kids. Halloween has changed now.

"In the 30's the older boys used to keep the marshes busy all night by taking peoples farm machinery, wagons, etc., apart and putting it together again on top of the farmer's shed; or tying their calves, sheep, goats, etc., on top of a flat topped shed. They also tipped over outside toilets.

"The only time I ever did anything really rotten, was one time when I was about 16, the neighbor kids got together to swipe gates. We went several blocks from our part of town and the boys removed half of a man's corral gate and hung it on the light post on one of the metal things used in climbing the pole. We girls didn't do it, but were there, so therefore we were guilty, too.

"The man discovered us and started chasing us. I've never seen so many directions for kids to scatter. It was every one for himself. I ran down a driveway leading to a corral, thinking he would chase someone else, but he followed me. I climbed the gate and saw to my astonishment a big black bull at the end of the corral. . .I took a chance on the bull standing still, jumped down, ran across the corral, climbed the pole fence faster than greased lightning and started running for the corner. When I reached the corner, for once in my life I thought fast and jumped in the irrigation ditch by the sidewalk and quickly covered myself with leaves. When the man turned the corner he stopped running and I thought he had seen me. He walked past me about 20 feet, looking in all directions, confused because there seemed to be no place I could have got out of sight."

The man stood there for awhile watching for any sign. Norma managed to remain quiet in the ditch, her heart racing in fear, until he finally turned and left.

"I remember my great grandparents, David and Rebecca Ann Price Chidester; going to their house when I was young and stepping across the threshold into the waiting arm of my great grandmother. They went away for awhile, then returned to Richfield to live with Grandpa David and Aunt Myrtle. I have many fond recollections of going there after school and standing at Grandma's side while she was sitting in a rocking chair. She would hold me around the waist with her right arm so tight that I would have to bend slightly, not having courage enough to tell her how tired I was getting. From her I learned about the great Prophet Joseph Smith; and from her convincing stories I knew he was a prophet! I also knew the Mormon religion was true, although I knew very little about it. I learned about the pioneers and how my great grandfather once sat on Joseph Smith's knee; about the crickets coming to eat the crops in Salt Lake. I learned about a time when the babies and others were getting ill from the lack of sweets. One morning they awoke and saw a white substance on the tree leaves, washed them off and cooked the water, making a sort of syrup..

"The depression hit--starting in 1929, but it was a year or so before we really felt the worst of it. My mother used to help Dad make a living by taking in washings and ironings. It must be pretty heart-breaking to wonder what to feed a large family and how to clothe them. We had a large garden and fruit trees, chickens and one or two cows. Dad extracted honey from his bee hives and he had less and less work as he was an electrician and building and remodeling almost came to a halt.

"We continued to eat more or less Danish food such as buttermilk pop (made with buttermilk and sego); red mush (a dessert made from cherries or red currant juice, etc.; soup and Danish dumplings, Mother made bread and butter and Dad stored the potatoes, squash, etc., in what we called the potato hole, next to our underground cellar.

"Times were really beginning to get rough, but in 1933 we had the blackest year for all of us. I was helping my mother hang clothes when I noticed her change a bandage on her foot. She had stepped on a rusty nail about five days before. She wasn't a complainer so I didn't know too much of what had happened. I asked her how she did it, so she told me. I finished hanging out the clothes and she became more ill and her jaws could only open about half way. One of us called Dad on the telephone. I believe he was working that day in the little town of Sigurd. He came home and none of us know how serious her illness was, except her. I asked her what was wrong and she said she thought it was lockjaw. I remember asking her if it was a bad disease and she said, 'Sometimes they don't get over it.'

Dad called the doctor, but there was nothing that could be done. Dr. GLEDHILL, our family doctor, didn't know for sure what it was, having never seen a case before. The next day Mother was worse and Dr. McQUARRIE and Dr. GOTTFREDSON were called in and the three of them held a consultation outside the house. It was decided to take her to the LDS Hospital in Salt Lake City. Our Bishop was there, W. L. WARNER, and he offered to take her in his car. They made a bed in the back seat of the car and Dad sat on a makeshift seat on the floor beside her and they left. What a miserable, empty feeling as they drove away, but after watching her take 11 convulsions, flapping around on the bed until we almost had to throw ourselves on her to hold her down, it was sort of a relief to know that maybe someplace there was someone with enough medical knowledge to help her.

"When the car returned a day later, everyone rushed out to meet it and there they were, my mother lying still and peaceful now and my Dad crying uncontrollably. Mother had passed away just after they had reached Gunnison, Ut., never reaching Salt Lake and the promised help."

After the funeral, the family took up the serious business of living in a world without Mother. The older girls divided the care of the younger children between them and began to take over the care of the house and family. Father taught them how to make bread and to cook. Aunt Myrtle helped with the sewing, cleaning and other matters. Grandma Jensen and the aunts and uncles helped all they could, but no one could really take the place of the gentle mother they had lost. Life took on a serious look. No more weeks at farms for fruit and larks. There was work to be done. And so they continued for several years until Father re-married.

After her marriage in the St. George Temple, Norma lived for a number of years in St. George, Ut., with a brief interlude in Santa Monica, California. Eventually, though, the Leavitts decided to make California their home.

Raising a fine family has been Norma's chief vocation; her avocation is catering, decorating beautiful cakes for weddings and other festive occasions. A gifted entertainer and story teller, she is a favorite at both Jensen and Chidester reunions.

She and her sister Barbara took advantage of the opportunity to visit Denmark to research the records of their mother's family and to find living relatives to re-establish family connections.

One of her daughters experienced a period of blindness. Through her faith and unceasing diligence Norma saw the day when her lovely child could see again.

There is challenging excitement around Norma. Faithful and constant in her devotion to her church and her family, she bears testimony to the goodness of life and the truthfulness of her church.

I was born into a family that I love very much. Raised in Sandy, Utah, with four brothers and two sisters at home, there were also two sisters married and living away from home. I also had an older brother living out of the state. We were a great family and had plenty of room on our two and a half acre farm to run and work! (I didn't do too much of the latter.)

I was always thought of as the bashful one in the family and I guess I still am in ways. When I was young I attended Sandy Elementary School; Mount Jordan Junior High; and one year at Jordan High School, working at odd jobs until I was nineteen, then I went into the carpet installation business, I've been in that same line of work since then and am with the same company I started out with.

Being the "bashful" one, no one thought I'd get married, but at the ripe old age of twenty-one, I married Carolyn Mumm. She was born and raised in South Dakota and moved to Utah in 1959 when her father was transferred there. It was quite a change to come here to the busy life compared to the quiet life in Dakota.

We lived in a house in Salt Lake that I had bought from my father while he was in the Real Estate business. Our first baby--which turned out to be identical twin sons--were born there.

After the birth of our third son we moved to Sandy, Utah, where Bradley Dean was born. When he was about a year and a half old we found that he had Wernig -Hoffman disease, known as a type of muscular atrophy. In 1976 he is a very bright child, confined to a wheel chair. He attends a school for the multiply-handicapped children in Midvale, Ut., where he is in a group of children of the first through fourth grade levels and is doing exceptionally well.

Stan and Dan are in junior high now and Rod is in the fourth grade. They are all very active and involved in a lot of things.

My work and my family really keep me busy at this time in my life. The work gets to be a headache at times, but I am really enjoying my family.

Evar Leon Chidester, known as Leon, graduated from American Fork High School. He went to Brigham Young University until he received and accepted a call to go to the Spanish American mission in Texas (Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints) for two and one half years. Returning in August of 1960, he returned to school at Brigham Young University. Irma Brown had waited for him to complete his mission and they were married in 1960. Irma taught school and supported them until Leon received his Master's degree.

Leon then applied for a teaching position at the College of Siythern Utah as a teacher of Spanish. He received the job, which he enjoys. He and his family have made their home in Cedar City, Ut.

- 13-522 Christian Baxter MATTHEWS b 17 Apr 1975, Panguitch, Ut.
- 13-523 Jennifer MATTHEWS b 26 Apr 1976, Panguitch, Ut.

Elaine enjoyed school. She was active in sports, in music, in cooking classes and in homemaking activities. She graduated from American Fork High School and then went to the Brigham Young University where she met and began dating a returned missionary, Verl B. Matthews. They were married and Elaine quit school to go to work to help support the new family while Verl earned his Master's degree.

After graduation, Verl went to work for the government and has been transferred to several places. Verl is County Agent (1976) over two counties and Elaine does all she can to support him both in his government job and in his church responsibilities.

Elaine enjoys music. She plays the violin and the melodica. She has taught her children to sing well as a group. Elaine also sings with a quartette and the group performs at many civic and religious functions. All the family enjoys all outdoor activities.

 Fork, Ut.

13-528 Amanda Marie CHIDESTER b 5 Dec 1975, American Fork, Ut

Richard grew to manhood on his father's farm in American Fork, (Highland, the suburb) and loved farming.
 He played football, basketball and wrestled his way through high school, then attended Utah State University at Logan, Ut., for a time, then decided to go to Technical College at Provo. After a service of six months in the Active Reserves for his country, he entered the Technical School and studied refrigeration.

Susan lived in Salt Lake Valley until she was thirteen years of age when her parents decided they wanted their children to experience the joys of farm life and moved them to American Fork. Susan and Richard met at church, Highland Ward, and began dating.
 They corresponded while he was away in basic training, then, after his return, they borrowed his Dad's car in March, 1968, (his own had been wrecked earlier) and eloped to Las Vegas.

After his marriage, Richard began working for Hercules, in Salt Lake City, and the couple lived for a time in South Jordan to be near his work, but soon returned to American Fork.

The year 1976 brought a big change to the family.
 An idea developed and grew into the decision to make a difficult move. Plans and a trip in February helped to set a time and place. A beautiful farm was bought by Susan's parents for Richard to run and build a home on.
 One hundred forty five acres of pasture, timber and crop land, complete with NO irrigation.

May arrived along with a rented truck and their own truck, and the move was made to Missouri. Quite a different place than Utah, but they are excited and love it. The crops are in along with a five acre garden and three cows with their calves. They hope to see many of their friends and family from out west. They are eight miles directly east of Queen City on route E, which is in the northeast corner of Missouri--right between Adam-ondi-Ahmen and Nauvoo, Ill.

To Douglas Chidester and Janice were born:

13-532 Cheryl Rae CHIDESTER b 5 Aug 1963, Tremonton, Ut.

13-533 Michelle CHIDESTER b 2 Dec 1965

Douglas attended school in Murray, Ut., and at age 17 enlisted in the U.S. Navy. He was a fun loving boy, much like Tom Sawyer. He spent four years in the service.

At his marriage he became the father of his wife's three children. So well has he performed the task that they love and respect him as do his own two little girl-. A friend to all, he is generous to a fault. He is a firefighter on the Salt Lake force and is very capable in other fields. He is 6 feet 2 inches tall and his wife is less than five feet tall.

13-535 Raymond Scott CHIDESTER b 27 Apr 1967

13-536 Lisa Marie CHIDESTER b 6 Mar 1970

David Lynn Chidester was a loner as he was growing up and a peace-lover to the point he would not even defend himself with other children. He was always very industrious and as a boy could always find some way to make money. He loves the out-of-doors and is a great fisher man. He had a terrible time in school and is self-taught. He joined the Navy at age 17 and was successful there. He was married while still in the Navy.

He works for General Electric and has gone steadily up the ladder. His company sent him to Kenia, Alaska, to start a new shop there. He has found this to his liking.

The first of her family to take an interest in ancestry, Barbara Ellen Chidester was keenly interested in genealogy and worked diligently to collect information concerning her grandparents, uncles and aunts, her brothers and sisters. At her untimely death her parents assumed the responsibility of raising her children and continuing the work she had initiated.

Her parents had separated before Clyta Butterfield Chidester was born, so she never knew her father. Just before she was two years of age her mother married James Orvill Chidester who became in very fact, her father. Although she always went by the name of Chidester, it was not until after her high school days that she requested that her name be legally changed. Accordingly, she was adopted by James Orvill Chidester and became his own daughter.

Clyta was fortunate, being a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, to live in a ward in Price, Utah, where there was a goodly group of her peers who were interested in doing the same things. They attended dances and parties and were closely knit. It was to a member of this group that she was married.

Alfred Reed Richens, home on leave from the Navy, proposed and married Clyta, taking her back to Rhode Island with him when he returned to the service. There followed several years of commuting for Clyta, back to Price to stay with her family while Alfred was out on six month cruises, returning to Boston or Rhode Island when he had shore duty. Part of this time she was accompanied by her baby daughter.

The second child of the family was born as the young couple was returning from the east for the last time. As they stopped in Salt Lake, the little girl was born prematurely and died.

Price was home to both the Richens and they did not desire to live anywhere else. They lost another premature daughter, then adopted two sons, steady, handsome lads in whom they put great trust and faith.

Alfred Richens worked for the state road commission and in 1963 was called to be Bishop of the Price Third Ward, which position he held until 1968. He served on the stake MIA and Primary boards, and in 1971 went into the high council.

Clyta has presided over both the Primary and Relief Society organizations.

13-786 Aimee Camille CHIDESTER b 24 Jan 1968

Graduating from high school, Nyron George CHIDESTER left for the Air Force in June, 1954. His basic training was in San Antonio, Texas, at Lackland Air Force Base; had a time of special training in Denver, Colo., then spent the remainder of his four year service in Oklahoma, with the exception of three months spent in Guam.

After his release from the service he entered school at Carbon College; spent a year at the University of Utah and then attended Salt Lake School of Electronics.

His wife, Karen, graduated from the University of Utah School of Nursing and is an RN. Working for many years at the Salt Lake County Hospital, she eventually transferred to the Veterans Administration Hospital.

Nyron works as an electronic engineer at Litton Industries in Salt Lake. For a hobby he works with turquoise and silver, making jewelry.

One thing I am thankful for in my life is that Mother took us to Church (Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints). Daddy wouldn't go so it was hard for her but she went faithfully and taught us the gospel as we grew up.

When I met Arvin E. Rudd I felt we had known each other before and we enjoyed each other's company. It just seemed as though we were meant for each other. The Lord has blessed us with five special spirits. We have enjoyed our children very much.

Tom, the eldest, is a very serious boy. Having strong leadership ability, he has been an influence for good on his companions. Always active in his religious duties, he is preparing to go to the Philipines to serve on a mission.

Murry is a light-hearted, fun loving individual and makes people happy just to be around him. He earned his Eagle Scout award when he was 16 and a year later got the Duty to God Award. He has been active in the priesthood.

It has been a special privilege to watch the twins, Robert and Roberta, grow up together. Robert is very protective of his sister, very affectionate with the family. He earned his Eagle award at the age of 14; is athletic and confident, Roberta is a sweet, sensi-

Born in Lehi, Ut., I was named for my great aunt, Elizabeth Ann GOUGH. My folks moved to Price, Ut., when I was a year old. There we lived close to my father's parents and his grandmother. My father's grandmother was my favorite grandparent. We called her Grandma Burgess. She had out-lived four husbands but had all her children.

I attended school and the various church organizations in Price. I was a member of the 4H clubs and learned how to cook, bake, sew and do wood work. I also attended their campouts and that is where I met my future husband, Arthur Albert Lake. At the time I met him I was only twelve and he threw me in the creek, so I had no particular designs on him at that time.

Art and I started dating seriously when I was sixteen and he was nineteen. He was in the Navy when we started corresponding and when he proposed marriage to me.

At the age of sixteen I went to stay with a friend of the family for the summer in Glenwood Springs, Colo. I got a job there as a maid at Hot Springs Lodge. At the end of that summer Art came home on leave and came to Colorado to take me to meet his relatives that lived in Salida, Colo. (His mother and brother lived in Helper Utah, and his father was dead.)

The next summer I stayed with a cousin in Van Nuys, Cal. I got a job as a nurses aid in a Jewish Rest Home. Art, who was then stationed in San Diego, came to visit me on week ends.

My parents moved from Price to Salt Lake City so I was there when Art was discharged from the Navy, in 1961. He obtained employment at Graver Tank Manufacturing where my father was also working. It wasn't long until we eloped to Elko, Nev., and were married. My sister Clyta gave us a reception in her home in Price and my Aunt Rose held another one for us in Midvale, Ut. We bought a small trailer and moved in.

When our son Greg was born, he had a hernia and a hydroseal that strangulated when he was three months old and he had to have an emergency operation.

By the time we had three children, Art was working at Sears in Salt Lake. We asked for a transfer to the Price store. We got the transfer but there was also a cut in pay. We were barely making ends meet so Art checked into going back into the Week End Reserves. He was offered a permanent job back in Salt Lake with more pay and medical benefits. By 1966, Art was in the Navy again, in the reserve branch. We moved to Granger, Ut., had a big trailer, and while there I attended evening school and obtained my high school diploma.

Transferred to Cedar Rapids, Iowa, we found a home on a farm--a two story frame house that was very hard to keep warm in the winter, but we loved living on the farm with all the animals. Our landlord let us have all the milk we wanted and sold us our meat. It was here that we began being really active in the Church. I taught Primary and was first counsellor. Art helped with the Scouts because his boys were in the program.

Art went back into the regular Navy so he could make better rank. He was then transferred to Viet Nam and was to receive his training in San Diego, Cal. The kids and I moved to Murray, Ut., going there early enough to start school without having to be transferred med-term. Art was with us in December, enroute to San Diego. He was in San Diego about a month when the peace treaty was signed and he was stationed in San Diego without having to go to Viet Nam at all.

In San Diego the children and I continued our church activity. I served as Sunday School and Primary teacher and as Relief Society secretary.

Art had promised, when we got married, that he would join the church, but with me being inactive at that time I wasn't a very good example. But with my increased activity he began to be interested. He was also influenced by our spiritual child, Sarah. One day when she was only a year old she had a church magazine and was looking at the pictures and pointed to a picture of Jesus and the Apostles. She pointed right at Jesus and said, "Jesus." She had never said an understandable word before and no one had taught her. A little later we decided we'd better try to have Family Home Evenings. It was our first try and we weren't very well organized. Sarah wouldn't settle down. She kept insisting on having this book that was in the middle of a stack of books. When we got it out it was the Family Home Evening Manual. Sarah sat by Art and was content to sit there and look at a picture of Jesus.

So, in March of 1976, Art joined a group called "Smoke Enders" to help him quit smoking. On June 19, 1976, he was baptized a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Our three older children show promise of artistic ability and are all above average intelligence. Terry has a flair for writing stories.

Jeff, our oldest son, was telling us one day about something he remembered. "I was looking through a weird glass. People were getting up and walking around and I was trapped in this strange glass." We are convinced this memory was of the day he was born. He was put in a plastic isolet and wheeled out in the hall where there were people getting up and walking around.

My father came from Provo, Ut., with his family to Raymond, Alberta, Canada, 3 Mar 1903. Mother came with her parents from Salina, Utah, in 1907, settling in Raymond, also.

Places of residence: Raymond, Twin River, Mountain View, Cardston, Macleod, Calgary, all in Alberta. While in Calgary in 1943, I enlisted in the Canadian army and went overseas with the Regina Rifle Regiment.

I was wounded in France and was taken to England for treatment. Was discharged in 1945 and sent back to Canada, Nelson B.C. where my parents and family were residing.

March 13, 1953, I became a fireman for the city of Nelson and an officer on the department from 1957 and First Aid Instructor.

I married Milton Connor Armstrong in Ottawa, Canada, where my husband was employed at the Defense Research Board. We lived in Ottawa three years, during which time two of our children were born.

My husband was then transferred to Churchill, Manitoba, Canada, where we lived for three years, after which we were transferred to Prince Albert. My husband was employed at the Radar Lab in Prince Albert. We were there three years, then moved to Nanaimo. My husband was and still is, employed with the Department of Fisheries.

I have held many positions in the Church: music director in Churchill; counsellor in the MIA and Beehive teacher in Prince Albert. In Nanaimo I have been in the MIA as a counsellor, also as Beehive and Laurel teacher; president of the Primary; also CTR teacher; counsellor in the Relief Society and at present, choir director and in charge of pre-primary. I am also on the activity and service committee.

Our oldest boy left for his mission in the Minnesota-Wisconsin area in April 1974. One year later, April 21, 1975, the doctors amputated my right leg with bone cancer.

On July 26, 1975, our second son left for his Canada-Halifax mission.

The bone cancer is in my breast bone now and is a lump about ten inches wide. I'm in pain quite a bit now but I'm still able to go places and do things so my spirits are high.

Our oldest boy is now (1976) home from his mission and is engaged to be married 10 Sept 1976.

From a letter of 15 June 1977, written by Leta's mother, Viva Jones Carter:

"Our daughter passed away 14th May. We will miss her very much but are relieved that she is now free from suffering. It was a privilege to be with her for the five months, something I will always treasure. She was an inspiration to all who knew her.

"Elder Monson phoned her one night about a month before she passed away and the next morning Pres. Kimball prayed for her in their prayer circle, which made her very happy."

- dau of John Lang WORCESTER and Kay Tess BOOKER
14-21 Kurt Alan ANDERSON b 16 July 1947, Burbank, Cal; spent the summer of 1976 working in a tourist hotel in Switzerland.
14-22 Bret Laird ANDERSON b 11 Nov 1958, Oxnard, Cal; inventive genius and car fancier of the family.

The Anderson family was rather itinerant when Elmer was a boy, so he attended elementary schools in a number of towns and cities, but finished his high school in Burbank, California, where he excelled in academic studies as well as on the football field. Winning a football scholarship to Occidental College in Eagle Rock, he attended school and played football there for two years until 1947.

Always an active member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, he accepted a call to serve in the Swedish mission, the Anderson homeland, where he was diligent in promulgating the gospel from Sept 1947 until Oct. 1949.

Upon his return home, he worked for a dental surgeon for a year and gained a perspective in the medical field. A year of college at University of Utah and a final year at Los Angeles City College, prepared him for medical school and he entered the College of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons in 1952, graduating in June, 1956, having earned the Dean's Award for scholarship.

After a year's internship at the Los Angeles County Hospital he established a general practice in Ventura, Cal. In August of 1958 he was elected to the Ventura County Heart Association and soon was asked to be the Assistant Chief of Staff of the new Osteopathic Hospital in Oxnard, California.

When the state voted to accept osteopaths into the medical association, Elmer returned to school and was awarded his state MD certificate.

His family was growing apace and the first trauma of beginning medical practice was over. He decided to specialize. Always looking for unending challenges, he chose the neurological field and in Jan. 1964, entered Martinez Veteran's Hospital as a resident, making his home in Walnut Creek, Cal.

From Martinez, where he later served as instructor in neurology for some time as well as a practicing physician, Elmer went to Fort Miley where he became, in due time, assistant Chief of Staff. His home, overlooking Walnut Creek, is a horticulturist's dream come true.

Through the lean years of schooling and beginning practice, his wife, Joan, supported him whole-heartedly and was ever a faithful and loving companion. Together they have instilled in their four sons a love of learning and have developed their mentalities and attitudes to be ever questing for new horizons.

 (John N¹¹⁻⁶⁸ John F¹⁰⁻¹⁰³ John P⁹⁻¹⁰² John M⁸⁻⁸⁵ John P⁷⁻⁵⁷ David⁶⁻⁴⁷) and Elmer Clarence ANDERSON; b 22
 July 1930, Danville, Knox, Ohio; md (1) 25 June
 1954, to Rosalyn Cecilia ROSTEN who was b 21 Mar
 1933; dau of William John (Swanson) ROSTEN and Eva Marie THADEN. She had been md (1) to Mr. CONLEY and had a son:

14-23 Robert Michael ANDERSON who was adopted in 1955 by John D. Anderson; he was b 17 Dec 1950, Los Angeles, Cal; md 14 Dec 1970, in Simi, Cal., to Yvonne Eleanor HAWKER who was b 2 Dec 1954, Toronto, Canada; dau of Victor Leonard HAWKER and Eleanor Ruby EAMES. Before their divorce in 1971, they became the parents of:

(1) Tracy Dawn ANDERSON b 17 June 1971, Orange, Cal.
 Robbie was a member of the Marine Corps, serving in the South Seas during the Vietnamese War. Although he went to South Viet Nam on occasional missions, he did not see active service there. At the time of the birth of his daughter he was stationed at the El Toro Marine Base, Santa Ana, Cal)

To John and Rosalyn was born:

14-24 Hans Eric ANDERSON b 2 Jan 1957, Burbank, Ca.
 During his high school years Hans was a football star, playing tight end position with the conference champion team of Burroughs High School, in Burbank.

After his divorce from Rosalyn, John md (2) 17 July
 1964, in Burbank, Cal., to JoAnn DAMATO who was b 11
 Aug 1937, Los Angeles, Cal; dau of Pascale (Pat) DAMATO and Emily ONDRACEK. JoAnn had two children by by former marriages, both of whom assumed the name of ANDERSON:

14-25 Cynthia (Cindee) Louise ANDERSON b 29 Aug 1956, Burbank, Cal; graduated from Burroughs High School in Burbank and became a beautician.

14-26 Anthony (Tony) Pascale ANDERSON b 13 Apr 1959, Burbank, Cal. graduate of Burroughs High School in Burbank; works as assistant manager of a Taco spot; attending Valley College, preparing to become a computer programmer or technician.

In his youth, John was an active member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, holding many positions of responsibility.

World War II was an unsettling force to young men of the restless, questing nature, for enlistment officers of the military services made visits to the schools to encourage young men to join the action. Too young for military service, John elected, in 1946, to join the Merchant Marine, sailing in Aug. of that year on his first ship, the tanker J. H. McGaregill, owned by Standard Oil Co. He travelled coastwise and made one trip to Honolulu. In March, 1947, he left the tanker to ship on the SS Marine Leopard, of the American President Lines. Leaving from San Francisco, he visited Japan; China, where he saw the great wall; thence to India where he saw the hanging gardens; to Alexandria, Egypt, through the Suez canal; to Italy; then to New York, where he debarked and arrived in Salt Lake City in time to celebrate the Mormon Centennial there, July 24, 1947.

Returning to Burbank, he was apprenticed 16 Sept 1947, to learn the plastering trade with a starting salary of $10.00 per day.

The draft caught up with him in 1950 and he served in the occupational forces in Germany until 1952. Returning again to Burbank, he went into the pool plastering business, which he operated successfully for a number of years.

After his divorce John returned to school and graduated 19 June 1959 from Los Angeles City College with Associate of Arts degree in Electronics. Eventually he left the plastering business and became a computer programmer and analyst. Always a mathematical genius, he has been most successful in this field and has served a number of capacities, one tour taking him to far away Djakarta. Eventually he established his own company which he operates most successfully.

- 14-32 Kathleen HUFFMAN b 22 June 1974, Orange, Cal; dainty and very feminine, always loving her many babies.

Graduating from high school in Burbank, Cal., Mary Anderson attended a year at Los Angeles City, College then joined Burroughs Corporation where she trained on office machines and instructed for a time. Leaving Burroughs, she became a secretary at Lockheed Aircraft Corporation. In 1958 she decided to return to school and went to Provo, Utah, where she attended Brigham Young University. It was there that she met Mr. Huffman.

After their marriage Mary and John returned to Provo where they remained until John obtained his BS degree. After graduation he obtained employment with the city of Burbank, Cal and made that city their home until they were able to purchase a home in Simi Valley.

After the birth of their third child, Mary and John decided that more education was in order. Selling their home, they returned to Provo so that John could obtain a MS degree in virology.

Their first position after graduation was with International Nuclear and Chemical Pharmaceuticals, based in Santa Ana, Cal., where John worked for seven years, changing from there to McGaw Industries.

Faithful and active members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, both John and Mary have been outstanding teachers and administrators in the Church, John serving variously as Ward Clerk, Elder's Quorum president and Sunday School president; Mary serving as teacher in Primary, Mutual, Sunday School and Relief Society and as counsellor in Relief Society presidency.

 piano and flute very well; performs in the Shamrock drill team and excels in school.

14-34 Steven Troy ANDERSON b 20 Nov 1967, Burbank, Cal; loveable and very special; succeeds in spite of severe handicaps resulting from a bicycle accident, because of an indomitable will.

Keith Eric Anderson, known more familiarly as Eric, graduated from Burbank High School where he played football on their league championship team. While there he served a semester as president of Boy's League. The following year he attended Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah, then went to England with his parents who were there on a work mission for the government.

Returning to Burbank, California, he joined his, brother John in the plastering business, attending school part time. After his marriage he worked for a time for Lindy Pen Company, leaving there to become credit manager for the Union Bank.

Eventually, he was sent to the San Francisco area when the bank began an expansion program and there he assisted in the training and establishment of the bank practices in that area.

During the time he was working with the bank, he bought a home which he completely rebuilt--doing the work and planning himself, with the occasional aid of family and friends. When the bank decided to re-trench somewhat, Eric decided to go into business for himself, bought a truck and supplies and established a plumbing service. Because of his integrity in business and his demand for perfection in all that he did, his business grew rapidly.

Marilyn is an efficient secretary and has worked many of the years of their marriage, helping to keep the family budget afloat in times of stress, contributing encouragement and understanding in all the family enterprises.

14-50 Jared Stephen GIBSON b 29 Apr 1973

14-51 Louisa Jean GIBSON b 12 Jan 1975

I was born in Ozumba, Mexico, a suburb of Mexico City. I was the first child of the family and was delivered by a native midwife. My father delivered the rest of us except for Jon.

My parents traveled a great deal the first few years of my life and wherever we went people would hold up two fingers and say, "V for Victory," because I had a large red "V" mark in the middle of my forehead. When I was about four we moved to a ranch high in the mountains of Northern Mexico where we produced nearly all of what we used.

At age seven I moved to Salt Lake City and started school. Two years later we moved to Provo and while we lived there I was baptized into the LDS Church. When I was twelve, we moved to Lake Shore, Utah, where my mother still resides.

I graduated from Spanish Fork High School and Seminary in 1963, and in 1967 I graduated "cum laude" from Brigham Young University with a major in English literature and a minor in Spanish. After that I worked for three and a half years as a personnel specialist at the LDS Hospital.

I married Stephen Lynn Gibson in the Salt Lake Temple. Steve was born in Ogden, Utah, but has lived in Salt Lake since he was about four. He graduated from East High School in 1960 and attended the University of Utah for two years, studying engineering. He then spent two years in the U.S. Army and several years in the Utah National Guard. He presently is employed at Kenworth Sales Co., and is a spray painter by trade. He has served in the Sunday School, athletic department, Elder's Quorum presidency and is now Deacon's Quorum advisor and scoutmaster. I have served in the Sunday School and Young Women's program and am now first counsellor in the Primary. We are buying a home in Murray, Utah, and plan to stay here permanently,

In 1967 I graduated from Spanish Fork High School. I continued my education at Brigham Young University for three years. In the Arizona mission I served for eighteen months and then came back to the BYU. This where I met Richard Donald Jacob who had grown up in Los Angeles, California.

We were married in the Salt Lake Temple and made our first home in Springville, Utah. Richard sold insurance and I taught school.

We moved to Bountiful, Utah, and our first child was born. Richard joined the apprentice boilermakers to continue his welding experience. This took us to Rock Springs, Wyoming, and then back to Utah. We are now living in Sandy, Utah.

Clinton Richard Chidester was born and raised in Salt Lake City, Utah. From 1959 to 1961 he served the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints as a missionary in the Austrian Mission.

In 1964 he graduated from the University of Utah and was employed by the Church as a seminary teacher at Highland High School in Salt Lake City. In his first year of teaching seminary he met and later married Kathryn Midgley in the Salt Lake Temple.

Richard taught at Highland seminary and directed the seminary choir there for five years. During that time his first two sons were born. In 1969 he was transferred to Ogden, Utah, where he taught at Weber State College Institute of Religion and served as the bishop of the Ogden 13th Ward. His third son was born while they lived there, the mother returning to Salt Lake for the birth.

In 1973 Richard and his family moved to Provo, Ut., where he completed his Doctor of Philosophy degree in Marriage and Family Counseling. After graduation he was transferred to the Salt Lake Institute of Religion on the University of Utah campus. He and his family then made their home in Bountiful, Utah.

Beverly Jean CHIDESTER attended Riverside grade school, Salt Lake City, Ut., then West High School where she was a member of the R.O.T.C. School Band in percussions. She was captain of the softball and basketball teams.

Beverly and Virgil D. Sessions were high school sweethearts and at the time of their marriage he was in the U.S. Navy. Necessarily, they made their first home in San Pedro, Cal., where he was stationed. While there the couple filled a stake mission for the First Ward, San Pedro, Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

From San Pedro they went to Guam, M.I. where they resided for two years, then were transferred to Oakland, California.

Virgil terminated his tour of duty with the navy to go to the University of Utah where he received his BA degree in English. After completing his degree they moved to Garden Grove, Cal., in Orange County, where he taught high school and completed his MA degree in Speech education. Thereafter he obtained a position at Orange Coast College in Costa Mesa, California.

After the birth of her third child, Beverly went to work at Disneyland for a year. Then, after the birth of her son, she began to desire greater education. By the time he was two years old she had obtained an AA degree at Orange Coast College. She went on to earn a BA degree at California State University at Fullerton, in June 1972. Her aim is an MA in Speech Communication and Counseling, at California State University.

Having been born and growing up in the time of the Great Depression, Myron Chidester was taught the value of hard work at an early age and never forgot the valuable lesson. A gifted boy, he was always entertaining the family either with his impersonations, his music, or his art. He attended Riverside and Franklin elementary schools, Jordan Junior and West High School.

While in High School he joined the navy, 13 Dec 1947, and was assigned to the 103rd Battalion (called Sea Bees,) He served for eighteen months on the island of Guam, three months in Korea, where he saw active duty at the landing of Inchon and Wonson. He completed his overseas duty with a tour of Japan.

Returning to the United States, he was stationed at San Diego, California. On one of his leaves he went to Salt Lake City and married his childhood sweetheart, Helen Jean Gerber. Their first home was in San Diego, until 10 Dec 1951, when he was honorably discharged.

Although Myron always enjoyed building and carpentry, he joined his father and brother in the plumbing business. Eventually he and his brother took over the business from their father--Star Plumbing and Heating, Inc.

Although plumbing was his vocation, building and creating were his avocation and hobby. He added on extensively to his home in Salt Lake and built an entire new one in Heber City, Utah. Then, he sold his share of the plumbing business and embarked upon a new undertaking--the business of importing. Myron and Jeanne enjoy traveling with their new business.

- 14-106 Christopher Vance HUTCHISON b 22 July 1966

Darlene attended Riverside Elementary, Jordan Junior and West High schools in Salt Lake City, Ut. While in high school she entertained extensively with pantomimes which resulted in a television show, "Gaslight Follies." which was shown on a local station for three years. Two years later, another show, "Video Frolics" was begun.

She married Clarence Richard Hutchison, co-owner of the Hutchison Brothers Thriftway Market in Salt Lake. Together they have had many opportunities for service, both in the church and in their community. Richard is a High Priest in the Granger 10th Ward and Darlene is teaching in Relief Society. Darlene has also served for many years in the Parent Teachers Association and in 1976-77 was first vice president of the Utah Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Udell Lynn Chidester attended Riverside Elementary, Jordan Junior and West High schools, and in 1960, graduated from the University of Utah with a BA in psychology.

During his school years he was always active in baseball. As a senior in high school he was chosen for the American Legion All Star Team; and at the University of Utah he made the Western Athletic Conference All Stars. He played semi-pro baseball in Calgary, Canada.

Although Lynn earned his degree in psychology, he minored in business and after college he decided to join his father and brother at the Star Plumbing and Heating Inc. He assumed the responsibility of office management and estimating and bidding. The retirement of his father left the business to Lynn and Myron. Eventually Myron sold his interest to Lynn and Lynn became the sole owner of the one-time family business.

Lynn's interests are still with baseball, both with the playing and coaching. He also enjoys back - packing and hiking into Indian ruins with his son Scott. They also enjoy hunting and boating.

My family moved to California and lived there until I was four years old, then moved back to Salt Lake City, where I grew up. I graduated from West High School and went to the University of Utah.

I have played church ball; worked in the Mutual Improvement Association and priesthood organizations and teach 15 and 16 year olds in Sunday School. I also coach Little League football.

I have had several jobs, but for the last eighteen years have worked for the State of Utah in the Data Processing Center as production manager in charge of the computers.

My wife, RaNae, graduated from West High School where she was senior class secretary. After graduation she worked for a year as a secretary.

She is secretary in the Mutual Improvement Association; sings with a group called "Allegro" and is on the board of National Honors Cotillion Girls. She is attending the University of Utah to finish her education.

Jill and Holly are officers in their MIA classes and are very active in school. They play ball, piano and have had some dance lessons.

As a family we like to go on vacations, ski in the winter, water ski in the summer and go to football and basketball games at Brigham Young University.

(Info for last four families, from records of Evelyn Batty Foster, Salt Lake City, Utah.)

It is altogether fitting that the story of the Chidester-Chichester Heritage should end with the humble testimony of Evelyn Batty Foster. Of her life and family she says:

"Keith D. Foster grew up on a farm west of Cedar City, Utah; attended schools in Cedar City, including the Branch Agricultural College.

"Evelyn was raised on a small farm in Pintura, Utah; attended schools in Toquerville, Hurricane and Branch Agricultural College.

"We were married in the St. George Temple and are the parents of seven children, five of whom are still living (1977). The deaths of the twins, our first born, was a tragedy to us. These babies were wanted very much and it was a great shock to us as parents when Heavenly Father called them home so soon after birth. We were so grieved that the only thing that gave comfort to our souls was to pray--and pray we did! Heavenly Father heard and answered our prayers and Keith was privileged to see these twin babies happy and healthy and well taken care of. This was such a comfort to our souls that the burden placed upon us at this time was easier to bear.

"We have always been so proud of our wonderful family. Each one has tried to live the commandments of our Heavenly Father as they were taught to do.

"All of our lives has been spent in rearing our family and working in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Some of the positions held by Keith have been: Elder's president; Seventies President; High Priest Leader, Statistical Ward Clerk and Stake Missionary.

"Evelyn has held the following positions: Relief Society President; Education Counselor; Work Counselor; MIA teacher; Junior Sunday School coordinator; Primary teacher and Spiritual Living teacher in Relief Society.

"Keith has worked all his life in the Auto Parts Trade. During the time that our son was on his mission to Samoa, I worked in the Art, Needlework Dept. of ZCMI.

"Our two greatest blessings are our good family and our Church. We testify to you that this is the only true Church on the face of the earth today. We have proved in our lives that if we live the commandments of our Heavenly Father, he will bless us and help us in every way that is for our best good. We bear this testimony to our family and to future generations."
